U.S., Soviet in joint appeal to Israel

Urge nogotiating role for Palestinians and pullback from territory

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States joined with the Soviet Union on Saturday in urging Israel to recognize the "legitimate rights of the Palestinian people" and to grant a negotiating role at Middle East peace talks to their "representatives."

A joint declaration, designed to speed up convening of a Geneva conference on the Middle East, called also on Israel to withdraw from territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

In the past, the United States has publicly supported only the "legitimate interests" of the Palestinians. The reference to "rights," included at the behest of the Soviet side, appeared to bring the Carter administration closer toward accepting the idea of Palestinian statehood.

The declaration was issued by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko after the latter's return to Moscow. They met last in New York on Friday morning.

The statement marked the closest Soviet-American cooperation since the two nations cochaired the convening the brief opening session of the Geneva conference in December 1973 following the last Arab-Israeli war.

The State Department spokesman, Hodding Carter, said the "rights" of the Palestinians, including the nature of their eventual "homeland," should be negotiated at Geneva. He stressed that these "rights" cannot be achieved without an end to belligerency in the area and "are not to be purchased at the expense of Israel."

In several respects, the statement appeared to represent further pressure by the Carter administration on Israel. It said the Palestinians should participate in the "work" of the Geneva conference and it did not specifically call for peace treaties between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

Instead, Washington and Moscow agreed there should be "termination of the state of war and establishment of normal peaceful relations."

Israeli diplomats here had no immediate comment. But the statement was expected to displease the Israelis, who have opposed the creation of an independent Palestinian state and have resisted giving the Palestinians a separate role at Geneva.

Israel also has ruled out any negotiations with the Palestine Liberation Organization, which all Arab countries and the Soviets consider the sole representative of the Palestinian people. And Israel takes the position that the Genea conference should have as its objective formal peace treaties with its Arab neighbors.

The State Department spokesman said Israel and the Arab parties were informed of the statement in advance. Vance turned over a copy to Foreign Minister Hasan Ibrahim of Jordan as they had breakfast together

In the declaration, the two superpowers affirmed their readiness to guarantee a peace agreement between Israel and the neighboring Arab countries "should the contracting parties so desire."

"The U.S. and the U.S.S.R. appeal to all the parties in the conflict to understand the necessity for careful consideration of each other's legitimate rights and interests and to demonstrate mutual readiness to act accordingly," it said.

In the view of U.S. officials, the declaration does not call for participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — in peace talks or advocate creation of a Palestinian state. At the same time, there is no specific reference to the 1967 U.N. Security Council's Resolution 242 which has served as basis for U.S. policy in the Middle East.

Hijackers release 59 hostages

Negotiations hampered by attempted coup, but troops quell uprising

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Five heavily armed hijackers released 59 of their 140 hostages from a Japanese jetliner early Sunday in a step-by-step exchange for $6 million in ransom and six "comrades" freed from Japanese jails.

But negotiations were interrupted by an attempted coup in Dacca, and officials had no indication where they planned to go with the remaining 80 hostages.

Shortly after the exchange was completed, gunfire erupted at the airport, and three miles away in downtown Dacca, and rebel troops announced an "armed revolution" over Radio Bangladesh. By daybreak the shooting had died down and the radio said loyal troops had quelled the revolt.

The rebels had apparently hoped to capitalize on the government's preoccupation with the hijacking to seize power. Witness said that rebels at the airport executed as many as seven military officers.

Officials said the hijackers — members of the radical Japanese "Red Army" who had seized the Japan Air Lines DC8 over India on Wednesday — were informed of the disorders and ordered food and air conditioning equipment brought to their plane.

But the officials gave no indication what they planned to do next. There was also no word on the fate of Air Vice Marshal A.G. Mahmoud, who had led the negotiations with the hijackers. One of his assistants was reportedly killed.

In Tokyo, the JAL officials said a bus carrying released hostages from the airport had turned around and returned to the airport when the shooting broke out. Officials later said the passengers were safe in a lobby near the control tower.

The hijackers, members of the terrorist Japanese "Red Army," gave no indication what they planned to do next with their remaining 80 hostages. The Japan Air Lines DC8 was refueled and stood poised at the southern tip of an isolated runway, apparently ready to take off.

Officials in the Dacca control tower said the plane was expected to head east, but they did not elaborate. Earlier, Japanese Foreign Ministry sources said the terrorists wanted to go to a "revolutionary" state willing to accept them.

Before the step-by-step release of the 59 hostages, the hijackers freed California banker John Gabriel, who officials said had been singled out for execution. He was reported seriously ill late Saturday and was rushed to a hospital after his release.

FIRST HOSTAGE RELEASED

John Gabriel, a bank president from Montebello, is carried on a stretcher from a hijacked Japanese jetliner in Bangladesh. Gabriel was the first of 59 hostages released by terrorists after they received $6 million in ransom and the release of six fellow terrorists from Japanese prisons. Another 83 persons continued to be held hostage, however.

MARY FORD

Singer Mary Ford dies at 53

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Ford, the singing and guitar-playing partner of Les Paul in the 1950s, has died of pnuemonia after nearly eight weeks in a diabetic coma.

Paul and Miss Ford put out a string of silkily harmonized pop hits such as "How High the Moon," "Vaya Con Dios," "Mockingbird Hill" and "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise."

The duo pioneered the multiple recordings technique used to provide full harmonies on their records of the 1950s.

Although Miss Ford retired from performing after her divorce from Paul in 1964, letters and phone calls poured into the hospital from people who remembered the couple's hits.

"She died after being here 54 days," Marilyn Morrison, Arcadia Methodist Hospital spokeswoman, said Saturday. "Her cause of death was the insulin reaction that brought on pnuemonia."

Miss Ford, 53, was admitted to the hospital in a diabetic coma Aug. 8, and died Friday.

"She had worked too hard for too many years; she just wanted to retire and be a housewife," said Don Hatfield, a building contractor and boyfriend in her youth whom she married in 1965.

Born Irene Colleen Summers in suburban Pasadena on July 27, 1924, she took the stage name Mary Ford to fit better with that of her monosyllabic partner.

Russ, Bulgaria fishing ships seized; 2 hit by gunfire

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Argentine navy reported Saturday it seized four more foreign fishing trawlers, three Russian and one Bulgarian, and that two of them were hit by gunfire from Argentine destroyers.

There were no reports of casualties in the incidents which the navy said occurred late Friday and early Saturday 30 miles inside Argentina's 200-mile territorial waters limit in the South Atlantic off the oil port of Comodoro Rivadavia, which is about 900 miles southeast of Buenos Aires. A Soviet vessel was reported adrift after being hit by gunfire.

Carter celebrates 53rd birthday

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — Jimmy Carter celebrated his 53rd birthday Saturday, and in a way it was a comedown. He got just one cake.

It was pistachio nut — his favorite

One year ago, as he campaigned for his presidency, he got a birthday cake at every stop.

Carter, who figures he has aged "probably three years" in the nine months since he took office, rode a helicopter to this presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains in western Maryland late Friday. He was accompanied by his wife, Rosalynn.

Mercy Marie Liddle died at Pomona Valley Community Hospital two hours after the 10:54 a.m. accident. Her husband George, 76, who was driving the car, was reported in critical condition at the Pomona hospital after suffering head and internal injuries.

Officers reported the auto was eastbound on the San Bernardino Freeway at the Garey Avenue offramp when the car's brakes apparently failed. The auto continued at a high rate of speed, traveling off the freeway and across Garey Avenue into the gas station.

The car rammed into two parked cars and struck a post outside the station's garage area, officers said. No one was injured at the station.

Mrs. Liddle was treated by emergency room personnel at the hospital for more than an hour before being pronounced dead at 12:50 p.m.

Trailer burns on freeway; 2 escape

A Palos Verdes man and his wife escaped injury Saturday morning when their vacation trailer caught fire on the Kellogg Hill stretch of the San Bernardino Freeway.

Firemen said the trailer was completely destroyed and the damage was estimated at $10,000. The trailer Was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Eisentraut.

The trailer, being pulled by a car, began moving from side to side on the freeway, causing a leak in the vehicle's butane refrigerator which ignited with the pilot light, firemen said.

Honorary degree to Rose Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy accepted her first honorary college degree Saturday and was hailed by her son as "the Rose of all roses, the Rose without thorns, Rose of Old Boston."

"Thank you a million times," Mrs. Kennedy, wearing an academic cap and gown over a tailored royal blue suit, told the Georgetown University officials who gave her a doctor of humane letters degree for her work on behalf of the mentally retarded.

All-time fair attandance mark?

Los Angeles County Fair officials are predicting a possible all-time attendance record may be set as the fair closes out its 17-day run today.

Unusually good weather was cited by officials as the reason for high attendance figures during the 50th run of the Pomona fair.

Linda Robinson of West Covina became the one-millionth visitor to the fair this year at 9:36 p.m. Friday. She was awarded a bowl commemorating the occasion and was given a guided tour of the fairgrounds.

Total attendance as of Saturday evening was 1,109,276.

The all-time attendance figure was set in 1972 when 1,268,446 persons visited the fair. Last year, a total of 1,116,741 came to the fairgrounds.

Youth bands will be the feature today at the Pomona event. A youth band jubilee is scheduled from noon to 4 p.m. in the amphitheatre. At 3 p.m., a youth band parade will be held.

Byrd vows Senate vote on natural gas pricing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd pledged Saturday the Senate will take a conclusive vote on natural gas pricing no matter how long it takes to end a filibuster on the issue.

As the Senate held its second consecutive Saturday session, Byrd conceded that supporters of lifting federal natural gas controls have the votes to win.

But he predicted that federal controls still will be in effect when Congress completes work on the critical portion of President Carter's energy bill, although he said producers will be permitted to charge higher prices.

"The Senate is tired of this filibuster," said Byrd, predicting that a conclusive vote is likely by Tuesday.

Despite the prediction, leaders of the filibuster refused again Saturday to agree to set a time for a vote to end a fight that is threatening to block passage of the President's entire energy package.

The Senate worked on the natural gas bill for six hours Saturday, then quit after a long series of parliamentary squabbles that did little to end the filibuster.

Some senators have urged that Byrd should withdraw the bill and move on to other matters because militant foes of deregulated natural gas prices appear determined to keep up their filibuster indefinitely.

"I won't take the bill down," Byrd said heatedly during an informal weekly meeting with reporters. "You can forget that rumor. We have to have an energy bill."

Among other filibusters during his 19 years in the Senate, the West Virginia Democrat said, "This is the most difficult one I have experienced."

Meanwhile, on the Senate floor, filibuster leaders refused to concede defeat and continued to block a direct vote on the natural gas issue.

Despite a defeat on a key test vote Friday, Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and James Abourezk, D-S.D., said they were prepared to keep the Senate tied up for two more weeks if necessary.

At issue in the protracted battle is whether Congress should end 23 years of price controls over a fuel source which the administration says is running out.

Backers of deregulation say only if producers are allowed to set prices will they earn high enough profits to provide enough incentive to find new reserves.

Deregulation opponents say that while higher price ceilings may be needed, an end to controls would raise home heating costs sharply and give the producers excessive profits.

The Senate is considering a deregulation plan that would allow the ceiling to rise from its present $1.46 per thousand cubic feet to about $2.48 for two years, with the lid taken off thereafter.

The administration is supporting a plan for a $2.03 ceiling which would rise with inflation, but remain as a cap nonetheless.

FREEDOM BY RANSOM

Two Japanese terrorists, still in handcuffs, are led to a special plane in Tokyo for their flight to Bangladesh as part of a ransom demand made by hijackers holding 140 hostages aboard a jetliner. Tsutomu Shirosaki, 29, left, and Yukiko Ekita, 26, were among six terrorists released from Japanese prisons and turned over to the hijackers along with $6 million. In return the hijackers released 59 hostages, but the drama continued late Saturday.

GOP rejects bid to change name of party

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Republicans' Rules Review Committee rejected on Saturday the idea of changing the party's name as a way of improving its public image.

A motion to launch a year-long study into the name change question and the broader image problem was tabled by voice vote after a debate in which several members said the name Republican is a "stigma" which its candidates must bear.

"It is a massive burden we bear," said John East of North Carolina, who offered the study motion. "The principal obstruction we have going against us is this label."

But the suggestion was shelved after several members complained that the committee was getting into a divisive struggle not really related to its function of reviewing and updating party rules.

While a simple name change is a rules matter, party counsel William Cramer ruled that the bigger question of improving GOP perception by the public was not.

He said this already was being worked on by the Republican National Committee.

The name change was first raised at the National Committee meeting in Chicago last January. Party Chariman Bill Brock referred it to the Rules Committee at that time. The decision Saturday means the committee does not want to do anything about changing the name at least at this time, although the issue could be revived later.

Several party members and leaders have been agitating for a new name which would be easier to run under and reconstruct the party around.

Rites mark return of war dead

HONOLULU (AP) — A silent and solemn military ceremony marked the return to American soil Saturday of the remains of 21 U.S. servicemen and a civilian released by Vietnam.

Squads made up of men and women from the different military services carried the flagdraped caskets down the ramp of a U.S. Air Force transport, past a line of dignitaries and to a military bus.

The only sound on the hot runway apron at Hickam Air Force Base was the sharp bark of an Army sergeant who ordered an honor guard to present arms as each casket came from the belly of the C141 Starlifter.

Fewer than 100 spectators were there for the ceremonies.

The remains were taken to the Army's Central Identification Laboratory here where military investigators will attempt to confirm or establish identification of the servicemen.

Frank Sieverts, the State Department's expert on prisoners of war and servicemen missing in action, said none of the names would be disclosed until all the remains have been identified.

Smith, foe in secret meeting

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — In a surprise opening to a long-time foe, Prime Minister Ian Smith secretly crossed into neighboring Zambia and conferred with President Kenneth Kaunda about prospects for peace in Rhodesia, the government disclosed Saturday.

An official statement said the two met last Sunday in the Zambian capital of Lusaka and discussed the latest BritishAmerican plan for a transition to black-majority rule next year in this white-governed country.

Sources close to Smith said the talks were "cordial" and lasted most of the day.

Informed sources said one issue discussed was U.N.-supported efforts to negotiate a cease-fire between the Smith government and the black nationalist guerrillas who for five years have been fighting it.

Smith has refused to bargain directly with guerrilla leaders, but Zambia is one of the five "front-line" black states in southern Africa that support and shelter the guerrillas.

The well-concealed meeting seemed to signal Smith's intention to suspend his efforts toward an "internal" settlement with moderate blacks inside Rhodesia and to try to reach an accommodation, though indirect, with the guerrillas.

It is not clear how much pressure Kaunda can exert on the insurgents to bring about a cease-fire. Zambia is the base for Joshua Nkomo's Zimbalwe African People's Union ZAPU — one of two elements in the guerrilla Patriotic Front. The other front partner, Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union — ZANU — is based in Mozambique.

Zimbabwe is the nationalists' name for Rhodesia.

Kaunda and the presidents of the other "front-line" states — Tanzania, Mozambique, Angola and Botswana — have given their backing to the new British-American plan for a Rhodesian settlement.

But Smith and the guerrilla leaders thus far have been critical of parts of the plan, particularly sections dealing with the makeup of security forces during and after the transition. They have said, however, it could form the basis for negotiation.

The plan calls for appointment of a British administrator and the stationing of a U.N. peacekeeping force in Rhodesia to oversee one-person, one-vote elections in the country, which has a population of 6.4 million blacks and 270,000 whites.

The white-led Rhodesian security forces would be replaced by a new Zimbabwe national army based on the guerrilla units and some elements of the existing army.

The U.N. Security Council on Thursday set the peace plan in motion by approving a resolution for Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to appoint a U.N. representative to take charge of a peace force.

One dead, 2 dozen injured, thousands without power

Storms cause millions in damage

By The Associated Press

Storms and tornadoes caused millions of dollars in damage and at least one death over the weekend in Illinois and Ohio. More than two dozen persons were injured and thousands were left without power.

A dozen people were injured, three of them hospitalized, as high winds, hail and sheets of rain pounded the Danville, Ill., area Friday night.

Mayor David Palmer estimated damage at $20 million in the east central Illinois city of 43,000. After a helicopter tour of the storm-ravaged area, Palmer said he would seek federal disaster emergency aid.

Officials said power to about 10,000 Danville residents that was knocked out during the night probably would not be restored until Monday.

Most of the city's streets were blocked by up to two feet of water and many cars were abandoned in the flash flooding.

A boy identified as Wayne Burton, 14, drowned when he fell into eight feet of water that had accumulated on a loading ramp at Danville High School, authorities said.

A severe thunderstorm apparently accompanied by a tornado battered suburban areas near Cincinnati at dawn Saturday, causing an estimated $2 million in damage. Police said more than a dozen persons were injured and 12 homes were destroyed.

Winds clocked at 59 miles per hour raked the area, along with one to three inches of rain, weather officials said.

Resident Laverne Brown said she heard "a terrible roar" shortly after 7 a.m. and saw a twister approach. She said it narrowly missed her home then demolished five nearby houses. "I saw a house buckle and pop. Then it went whirling and whirling away."

In the Montford HeightsWhite Oak area northwest of the city, sections of homes were found 600 to 700 feet away on wooded hillsides. Most of the damage was confined to a single street.

Hamilton County Sheriff Lincoln Stokes said 27 homes were damaged in the neighborhood, and many of the injuries were suffered there. Hospital officials said most of the injured were treated and released.

Gov. James A. Rhodes was asked to declare the neighborhood a disaster area.

Sea of lava from erupting volcano heading for ocean

KALAPANA, Hawaii (AP) — Madame Pele — the legendary Hawaiian volcano goddess — was said to be holding back a wide river of lava just above this tiny coastal community, but officials said there is no question it would rush through and into the ocean.

"It's only a question of what path it will take," said Harry Kim, Hawaii County civil defense director.

The 500-foot-wide lava flow from Kilauea Volcano had slowed to only 30 feet per hour by Saturday noon and was not expected to cascade into the ocean until Monday noon, Kim said.

It was hovering about threequarters of a mile above sea front homes, filling a series of gullies and low spots in a fairly level forest area.

The lava had earlier been expected to complete its 10-mile flow to the sea Friday or Saturday.

The 175 residents of this community 30 miles southeast of Hilo began evacuating Wednesday, taking most of their possessions with them.

A few remained behind to keep watch on homes, and tend to animals and gardens. But the area was expected to be cleared before the lava arrived.

"I wish it would rain buckets for several days," said one woman resident as a light sprinkle fell.

"I know it won't stop the volcano, but somehow it would be reassuring," she said.

Scientists said there is no end in sight to the latest phase of eruption, which began Monday afternoon.

The outbreak of the volcano's east rift zone began Sept. 13. Fountaining has been intermittent, with the current phase the longest and strongest.

"This is a close-knit, religious community, and there are strong spiritual vibes," said resident Eugene Dudoit. "The people feel this is an act of God."

But since many residents are of Hawaiian ancestry, cultural traditions are strong. Pele is an honored and respected goddess in Hawaiian folklore.

"The people believe they have done nothing to hurt Pele, and she won't hurt us," said Dudoit, who is part-Hawaiian.

The community repeatedly has resisted development in the area, and many believe the eruption and lava flow to the village is Pele's response to those who would change simple, rural lifestyles.

Some native Hawaiians also frown on recent army experiments aimed at diverting lava flows. Dudoit said they see this as interference with Pele.

There have been no efforts to divert the latest flow because of technical problems and lack of preparation time, officials said.

ONE-MILLIONTH VISITOR

2 women ordered to return welfare funds

Pomona Superior Court judges have ordered two women to make restitution for welfare funds they accepted illegally in separate cases, authorities said.

Judge Sam Cianchetti made repayment of more than $5,000 to the county a condition of three years' probation granted Geraldine Ann Kirkham, 41, of La Puente. He also ordered her to serve 10 days in jail. Department of Public Social Services workers charged Mrs. Kirkham obtained the funds under the county's child support program at a time when she claimed not to have been employed, but was.

Judge Howard D. McClain made repayment of more than $1,700 a condition of three years' probation he granted Christina Hildago, 29, Pasadena, who also was accused of illegally accepting child support funds while she was employed.

Bonita sets food service

A new food service program for residents over 50 years old will be started Monday by the Bonita Unified School District and the city of San Dimas.

Dorothy Gee, the school district's director of food services, said a noon dinner will be served daily, Monday through Friday, at the Ekstrand School cafeteria.

The meals will be served at the same time as children in first through fifth grade students receive their lunches. These will consist of an entree, vegetable, salad, bread and butter, dessert and a beverage. The adults will share the meals with young children who will find a "grandparent" to share their table.

Cost will be $1.25 for adult servings. A sample menu will include spaghetti with meat and cheese, tossed green salad with Italian dressing, hot bread, a fruit cup and beverage.

Still haggling over new SALT pact

Arms accord expires Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1972 U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreement, the first joint effort aimed at restricting the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers, expires Monday with both still haggling over an accord to replace it.

In the legal sense, the lid will be off the arms race when the deadline passes. The ceilings that have been in effect for the past five years will no longer be binding and either side could begin immediate production of deadly new weapons beyond those limits.

But in recent days, both nations have issued unilateral statements pledging to abide by the terms of the expiring agreement so long as the other side exercises similar restraint.

The Carter administration has gone out of its way to emphasize that these statements do not represent a full extension of the old agreement.

Some members of Congress contend that the administration's tactic is designed to circumvent a 1961 law requiring the Congress to approve any agreement that places limits on U.S. arms.

Among them is Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who has alleged that the arrangement amounts to a formal agreement in everything but name. Jackson plans to summon government witnesses before his Senate Arms Control subcommitee and says he will insist that congressional consent is required.

The administration says it has no objection to approval of a joint congressional resolution endorsing the procedure, but it wants to avoid congressional debate on the merits of the expiring agreement.

Officials say this would lead to public debate over U.S. arms policy and could hamper administration flexibility in on-going negotiations with the Russians.

The ability of the two sides to agree on a new accord is regarded in both capitals as a crucial test of Soviet-American relations.

Officials say other issues — trade, human rights and ideological competition — are secondary to the question of whether a competitive escalation of nuclear forces can be averted.

A breakdown in the current negotiations, officials say, would have extremely serious political and military consequences.

Among the most important of these would be accelerating distrust and fear between the superpowers, a rapid nuclear arms buildup in all sectors, and proliferation of nuclear weapons in other countries. As one official said, "If we don't exercise restraint, we can't expect others to do the same."

Even under the SALT I, a major achievement of the Nixon-Kissinger detente policy, the Soviet-American arms buildup has not been contained. The agreement did not preclude modernization of existing weapons systems nor research and development of new systems.

In a speech two weeks ago, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said the Soviets are "now deploying a further generation of intercontinental ballistic missiles at the rate of between 100 and 150 a year."

At his news conference Thursday, President Carter noted that SALT I imposes no limits on the U.S. cruise missile, a highly accurate pilotless plane with a nuclear warhead that has become the centerpiece of U.S. defense strategy since production of the B1 bomber was halted.

Restraints on the cruise missile and on the new generation of Soviet ICBMs are two of the issues the United States and the Soviet Union have been negotiating in their efforts to reach a SALT II agreement.

The United States also wants restrictions on long-range use of the Soviet Backfire bomber. Moscow has challenged Washington's assertion that the Backfire is an intercontinental weapon.

Carter took office eight months ago promising to work toward abolition of nuclear weapons in all countries, and two months later the administration proposed to Moscow a ban on the testing of new weapons and deep cuts in existing forces. The Soviets reacted angrily, accusing the United States of seeking unilateral advantage.

There was little progress at a subsequent round of negotiations in May, although there was agreement to work within the guidelines established by former President Gerald R. Ford and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev at Vladivostok in 1974.

Head of sheriff station to speak

Capt. Lawrence Dykehouse, commanding officer of the sheriff's station in Industry, will address the meeting Monday night of the Rowland Heights Community Coordinating Council at 7:30.

Dykehouse will discuss various sheriff's department procedures including the "team policing concent," and neighborhood involvement programs.

The meeting will be held at Alvarado Intermediate School and is open to the public.

Noise ordinance considered

Los Angeles County's CETA programs and a model noise ordinance will be discussed Monday at 8 o'clock at the Pomona City Council's monthly study session.

In addition to talking about the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center program funding for the past year, the council will go over all the CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) programs which the city administers for local agencies and for surrounding cities.

Councilman Adrian Wright had asked that the city attorney draft an ordinance to provide for control over loud noises.

City Attorney Patrick Sampson said that it is only by adopting a sophisticated ordinance such as the Model Community Noise Control Ordinance would the city be able to go beyond the pre-emption issue and set meaningful standards for noise abatement.

Newspapers valuable as learning tool

Twelfth in a series

By ROBERT COCHNER and JUDITH HINES

This article is concerned specifically with the daily newspaper because, in many respects, it can be an extremely valuable tool in the learning process. Many school systems have recognized the newspaper's value and they have reading and spelling skills, increase vocabulary, keep up with current affairs, and learn about science, politics, government, business and the major social and economic problems which confront all citizens. And the newspaper-in-the-home can be even more useful, particularly if the child is encouraged to read it every day — not because the child should, or because he or she will learn about things and thus become a more knowledgeable individual, but simply because reading a paper is fun.

Obviously, the discipline imposed by the classroom environment helps the learning process. Some skills can only be learned with a group, and the letters of the alphabet, the words and phrases which create sentences — the very basics of reading and writing — should generally be left to highly trained teachers. On the other hand, the extraordinary success of television's "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" has certainly demonstrated the importance of education (with fun) in the home.

An habitual newspaper reader is discomfited when there is no newspaper available. When the carrier fails to de;iver the paper, a considerable amount of irritation is directed not only to the carrier but to the newspaper itse;f.

Millions of people simply must have their daily newspaper. In homes where the reading habit is well-entrenched, it is likely that books — well-thumbed books — line the shelves and current magazines are always handy. In such homes, television probably has less importance, and the children are very likely to be readers. These are the children who invariably do well at school.

If the home environment favors reading, children will read. How, then, can such an environment be established if it does not now exist? How can the reading habit be transferred, without pain, from parent to child?

If you have fallen out of the newspaper-reading habit, the first thing to do is to get back into it. Nothing will work unless there's a fresh, new paper in the home every day. And if you haven't picked up a paper lately, you may be very surprised, for it's likely your local paper contains a great deal of information it once did not carry.

More and more newspapers are also becoming usepapers. Although your paper is certainly not neglecting the coverage of news, it is also filled with the kind of information designed to make your life easier and more pleasant; solid consumer reporting, columns on health, family problems, recreation and leisure activities, calendars of local events, coverage of movies and television and sports . . . plenty of interesting items which can't be covered satisfactorily by television or radio.

Too, many newspapers realize that you may no longer have the time to devote to a thorough reading of the paper, which is why information is better arranged and easier to find. Newspapers even look more inviting.

Subscribing to the paper is easy; just call the circulation department and within a few days the paper will begin to become part of the family.

Order your copy of PARENT POWER today. It's the book that tells you how to help your child succeed. For your copy send $1.75 plus 25 cents postage and handling to Parent Power, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44113.

Liechtenstein

The Principality of Leichtenstein, on the Upper Rhine River between Switzerland and Austria, is slightly smaller than the District of Columbia with a population of less than 25,000. It became independent in 1866 with the dissolution of the German Confederation. By treaty, Switzerland administers communications, customs and foreign affairs. There is no army and a police force of only 40 officers plus 25 auxiliaries.

Cooperative: way to bury dead

NEW ULM, Minn. (AP) — The cooperative, a popular way since the 1800s for Minnesota farmers to market goods, store grain and fuel homes, is being used by some to bury their dead.

The 3,000-member Minnesota Valley Burial Association was formed in 1929 because "families who needed the services at that time did not feel their needs were being met," said manager-mortician Eric Dulka.

Households pay $5 to belong to the co-op. If someone is buried, a portion of the funeral cost is returned. Last year, a member paying for a $1,000 funeral received a $48 dividend.

The average cost of a co-op funeral last year was between $1,100 and $1,300, and a state Consumer Services Division survey last fall found the average funeral price in the state was $1,609.

By the end of last year, the association reaped 24 per cent in profits. State laws require customer-members to get 20 per cent of the profit in dividends. The rest is reserved for working capital by a 12-member elected board.

Other funeral co-ops work in a similar way. Range Cooperatives of Virginia, Minn., operates two funeral homes, as well as service stations, food stores and home heating services. Its customers get a share of the business in cash or stock.

"Because we're a co-op doesn't get us any more funeral business," said Ronald Held, manager of the Range co-op. "We have to do a good job and just like any other business. Some people don't even know they have a chance of sharing in the profits, until the end of the year. Once they find out, we may get them to use one of our other services.

"It's a tough market to penetrate," he added. "There's a public relations thing, involvement in the community. People just don't talk about funerals very much."

At one time there were 30 funeral cooperatives in Minnesota but they have dwindled to about 10 now.

Hayseed revolution: small towns growing

EDITOR'S NOTE: A couple of decades ago, nothing seemed likelier than the continued attrition, even the demise, of small towns. The next time somebody looked closely, there was a surprise. Plenty of Americans were changing their idea about the good life, and they were finding it in the hinterland hinterlands. The effects are far-reaching.

BOYNE CITY, Mich. (AP) — While nobody was looking, this tiny place and thousands like it across the United States quietly reversed the nation's most "irreversible" population trend.

They stopped dying.

Since 1970, when Census Bureau figures first recorded net population gains for rural areas over the 25 largest cities, 300,000 urban Americans annually have become emigrant hayseeds. Agricultural college enrollment has doubled in the last 13 years and has gone co-ed.

Instead of being razed to cut taxes, dilapidated old homesteads are being snapped up for renovation.

Polls disclose a new outlook. In 1950, two of every three Americans preferred life in cities. Last year, the National Opinion Research Center reported a complete reversal. Two-thirds of the sample population said that given a choice, they would live someplace with fewer than 50,000 inhabitants.

Jim Kuhn knows nothing of the surveys and cares less. They remind him of the statistically oriented, highly interdependent urban world he recently fled for Boyne City. In so doing, Kuhn forfeited the $32,000 remuneration, free car and pension benefits he earned as an upward-bound research engineer at General Motors Corp.'s laboratories in Detroit.

Kuhn craved personal achievement and physical security unavailable in high-pressure corporations and high-crime cities. The anonymity of bigness, he feels, projects an appearance of freedom — and the reality of considerable danger.

"At GM, nobody is totally responsible for anything," says Kuhn. That protects anyone from being blamed for the goofs that cause costly recall programs, but it also prevents an individual from getting full credit for success. Rewards also are often skewed. Just as Kuhn developed enough seniority to bring his creative engineering ideas on line, GM promoted him to supervisor. Corporate brass thought they were pleasing him. To Kuhn, however, it seemed that "they were taking away my drawing board and giving me a telephone to boss other people who were doing what I have always loved."

Hayseed revolution: families heading for the boondocks—

Kuhn believes that high crime rates cloud even the most ordinary sense of personal security in the big city with a mist of fear. As he puts it: "Sure, people are freer in big places. The trouble is that if good people can do as they please, so can bad people — and they do."

To work off the frustrations of job and urban stress, Kuhn bought 10 acres of wooded land near Boyne City and with his wife Arleen and son Chris began building a vacation home.

Construction means cement, cement requires water and, in the country, water comes from wells. So, dapper as usual in smart sports clothes, with aviator-style glasses setting off an immaculate coiffeur and trim blond beard, Kuhn rented drilling equipment from an openlyskeptical hardware store owner. Word circulated that "some damned fool was trying to hit water," as the raucous racket of well-work reverberated through the hills. Natives stopped by to watch.

The well failed, but the Kuhns' social acceptance had been assured by the time the old-timer at the hardware store took back the equipment with the remark "Didn't think you'd make it, but it's good you tried."

When they moved into their house last spring, it had become a charming, Tudor-style cottage set in deep woods at the head of a ravine. The Kuhns scavenged its heavy, exposed beams from local barns, the deep "Michigan basement" is designed for five-foot snows, and Kuhn made the stainedglass windows himself.

Jim has hired himself out as an laborer to gain the skills he needs to start his own construction business. Arleen has taken a job at a nearby ski resort, and Chris has entered the local school.

"You trade mental strain for physical exhaustion," says Kuhn, "but we knew that."

Since 1970, fully half the town's businesses have been bought by new arrivals who are busily revamping the once-decaying Victorian storefronts.

Joe Gierlach, 34, now runs the local cinema. Jim White, 28, operates one of three hardware stores. Don Toffolo and Chuck Rivard bought the little department store. Bruce Janssen opened a woodworking shop, and a commune of young people set up a stained-glass works in an abandoned Baptist church. Paul Haynes, 29, notes that not long after buying Gocha's Dress Store, he and his wife had "more friends than we had in the city" because so many people share the new hayseed experience.

A cheerful real-estate man named Arthur "Frenchy" Poineau, 49, midwifes the rebirth of many urban folk in Boyne City. If housing or business proposals sound good to him, he "risks a few bad checks" for the chance to build his clientele and community. Poineau, who has seen many attempted resettlements fail, notices something different about people arriving now. "These aren't retirees who didn't count on our winters, or youngsters who didn't know how hard it is to make a living. The new people have thought it out better. They'll stay."

The Boyne City experience is being repeated across the United States, according to Calvin Beale, leader of population studies for the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Growth can be as spectacular as the six-year doubling of population in Citrus County, Florida, and as problematic as the dilemma of Petaluma, Calif. Response to the town's "settle here" drive in the 1960's proved so successful in the 1970's that officials tried to ration housing permits. They failed. The city manager of Bow, N.H., faced with quickly-trebled size, bemoans the need for a sewage system and a second firehouse. The 450 citizens of Meeteetse, Wyo., drew national attention in 1975 with their mixed feelings about the 900 "new folks" coming when copper mines opened in the ranchlands.

Beale, widely-credited with having "discovered" the hayseed revolution, explains it in terms of a national reaction against urban problems dramatized by the "massive riots following the death of Martin Luther King Jr." Suddenly, people became hyper-aware of pollution, crime and alienation in cities, many of which began losing population.

A coterie of experts on rural population now watches the trend closely. Professor Glen Fuguitt of the University of Wisconsin sifts Census Bureau figures for the latest movements. Michigan State University's Professor James Zuiches investigates the increasing tendency of the hometown young to stay put, instead of seeking jobs in cities. Peter Morrison researches the history and direction of what he calls "the rural renaissance of America" for the Rand Corporation "think tank."

— The countryside itself has become a far more hospitable place, some of them contend. Superhighways and vastly improved local airprts enable escapees from the city to return occasionally for entertainment or business, the pro-country forces also contend.

Rural areas will have more clout as their populations and economies grow, but this is not seen as an automatic boon to entrenched interests. Urban people bring citified liberal values with them into the traditionally conservative countryside, which produces two kinds of results. Overall, it homogenizes views, breaking down long established city-country voting patterns. Attitudes may be changing on a massive scale. Transplanted people slowly accept the mores of adopted communities, while older settlers change their outlooks slightly to account for new ideas. As

Hope through music composer's message

NEW YORK (AP) — Stan Satlin, social group counselor turned theatrical composer, like some of the theater's song men, can't read a note of music or even begin to write down his musical creations.

Satlin, 39, only recently discovered his flair for music, wrote about 150 songs and launched a successful off-Broadway "all-music musical" called "Children of Adam."

The young composer's penchant for more than just a lively tune surfaced on an aptitude test he took when he was 17. The surprised Brooklyn teenager found that he scored highest in music. Since he had never played an instrument or ever considered it, he agreed with his guidance counselor who said, "I guess it's too late for music," and settled for the social sciences.

He forgot about music and went on to Brooklyn College, and then to New York University for a master's degree in social group work. He also logged enough credits for another master's in American history, and planned to go into advanced therapist work.

Instead, Satlin discovered Daytop Village, a therapeutic community for ex-addicts who were helping to cure addicts by using a group encounter approach.

Eventually, Satlin began running encounter groups with universities and he trained psychiatrists, psychologists and military officers during the Vietnam War, preparing them to return to their posts and establish drug programs.

Many group encounters later, Satlin confronted himself in Tepoztlan, Mexico, where he was then living and doing free-lance counseling.

"My wife and I separated," he said. "At the same time, someone gave me a copy of Whitman's 'Leaves of Grass.' Before this, I had only written about ten songs in my entire life. Suddenly, I started to write a lot of music.

"Thirty songs came out of that one-and-a-half-month period after the separation. As a counselor, I had talked to people who wanted to commit suicide, and I started to feel a similar despair. Then the music started to happen — it was like a rebirth."

One of the songs to emerge from that period in 1973 was "You've Got To Die To Be Born Again," now one of the catchy show-stoppers in Satlin's show.

The reflective songwriter, who composes his lyrics first, then works out a melody and sings it into a tape recorder, points out:

"A lot of my songs come from moments and feelings of my own experience. They reflect my struggle, yet are positively oriented. We all have that choice — to overcome despair, transcend it and make life more meaningful."

In his program notes for "Children of Adam," Satlin states that his songs "are inspired not by any musical predecessors, but by such notables as Walt Whitman, Krishnamurti, Hesse, Camus and Castaneda."

His own philosophy celebrates a simple "belief in life, self and the oneness of the universe. I believe in an optimistic way of life, the power of faith and in God. Anger, despair and cynicism are boring and bring harm to the system," he asserts.

As a full-time composer, Satlin says he wants to offer hope through music. "It's the same kind of approach I'd have if I were running a group."

For this reason, he made his career change with relative ease:

"Running groups was rewarding and satisfying. With music, it's similar — to reflect on the time, to help people. I've been in the help profession all my life and I feel that I'm doing something to help. People are not threatened by music — they're very open."

"Children of Adam" focuses on relationships, a theme which prevails in Satlin's work. Romance is the hub of the songs in the show, but many of his other pieces comment upon the ties between a person and his work, family and environment.

Quoting Krishnamurti, Satlin, now divorced and living in Greenwich Village, indicates: "We only learn in a relationship — never in a vacuum."

If "Children of Adam" becomes a long-running hit, Satlin hopes an album will result and he says that sometime he'd like to perform some of the songs himself.

Hayseeds happy—

it grows more powerful, the farm vote also gets harder to predict.

Recently, the bell-bottomed pioneers of the 1970's began encountering a phenomenon that perturbed their predecessors a century ago. Their very arrival destroys the bucolic "frontier" they seek. Hayseed watchers report that whole communities like Bloomington, Ind., have lost their rural character through migration.

When an urban escapee from Detroit strode bravely into the evergreen forests of the Pacific Northwest to build a secluded cabin, he discovered that previous immigrants had produced more entanglements in red tape than he encountered in the underbrush. A woman who moved to Northern California's Mendocino County to escape city restrictions found building code specifications against her carefully-researched, ecologically-sound Swedish dry toilet so infuriating that she felt forced to organize resistance. Result: She is now a building code inspector, and a bureaucrat.

The irony of all this is summed up by Clayton Denman, editor of "Small Town" magazine and professor of anthropology at Central Washington University. "It is a movement of people who reject their urban or suburban backgrounds to escape what they see as restrictions in city life," he says. "Yet sometimes these things follow them."

White hunter era is ended

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Thick dust covered the upturned hardwood captain's chairs and six-sided tables piled by the iron gate door of the long bar here, once the hangout of white hunters of East Africa.

A scratched and well-worn Yale padlock on the chain around the door, framed by fluted, Victorian Empire-style columns, was symbolic of the end of an era of big game hunting.

A recent Kenyan government ban on hunting put 90 professional white hunters out of work.

One was Edgar de Bono, 63, who for 40 years was a gem ranger or hunter in East Africa.

"I read about the ban in the newspaper as I was coming in from my last safari," said De Bono. "I thought the floor had disappeared under me."

De Bono, who became a Kenyan citizen last April, did not have to worry about leaving the country like most of the other hunters whose guns were silenced.

"I advertised in the paper and got a job," he said as he checked the day's receipts behind the desk in a tour company vehicle rental office.

A widower with four grown children and four grandchildren, the stocky hunter - turned - manager said: "I was forced to take a job."

He said some hunters were leaving Kenya, while others were organizing photo safaris or were trying to find jobs.

Dressed in casual tan slacks, a print red shirt with a cigarette hole near the pocket, he smoked locally-made Embassy Braid cigarettes as he spoke of safaris in days gone by.

Born in Egypt of Maltese parents, De Bono, who was a British citizen, said he had an early fondness for guns and animals.

He learned English, French, Italian, Greek, Portuguese, Arabic and Swahili as he journeyed over ancient desert caravan routes or followed game with wealthy clients in the shadow of Mount Kilimanjaro.

His hair streaked with gray, the former hunter looked younger than his 50 years. His tanned face showed few lines around the eyes.

He said most white hunters worked for safari companies but some were free-lancers. In the old days when the going was good, hunters swapped stories and information of game movements over drinks in the long bar in the New Stanley Hotel in the center of Nairobi.

"The image of the white hunter was to be tough and hard-drinking," he said. "The hunters would gather after 11 a.m. and stay for a few hours but I was never a drinker."

His last safaris, he said, cost about $400 a day and lasted three weeks on average. De Bono ran about eight safaris a year.

He worked three months with John Wayne while they filmed "Hatari" — a Swahili word for danger — and took Jimmy Stewart on a hunting trip.

Hunting safaris resembled a baggage train with 10 local porters, a Land Rover, a five-ton truck and the hunter-guide. They would drive to areas near game, especially the big five: elephant, lion, cape buffalo, rhino and leopard.

"The clients shot the game and sometimes I would help with the wounded ones," said De Bono. His main weapon for more than 40 years was an English-made, .500 (half inch), double-barreled Army-Navy model rifle.

He said the herds of game that roamed the mile-high plains of East Africa had been reduced to a fifth of their prewar size. Poachers were responsible for 50 per cent of the decline, development, land misuse, and population pressure for 30 per cent, and 20 per cent was from natural causes, he estimated.

"The future for the animals looks awful, even in the national parks," De Bono said.

Few countries in Africa still allow big game hunting. Botswana and Rhodesia are the main two left. Hunters say it is poachers, not professionals, who are depleting the herds.

In Nairobi, zebra skins sell for about $350, while a lion skin can cost between $4,000 and $10,000.

MISSILE MADE IN POMONA

This extended-range missile, developed and produced by General Dynamics Pomona Division, has been fired by the Navy aboard the USS Wainwright in the Atlantic Fleet Weapons Range off Puerto Rico.

'We're beginning to wake up . . . that's the challenge we're faced with today'

Sputnik lured Pomona into the Space Age

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Sputnik revolutionized the science of military defense.

It pulled Pomona into the Space Age as the home of one of the country's major tactical missile designer-producers.

Ralph E. Hawes Jr., general manager of that missile plant, Pomona Division of General Dynamics, said Sputnik abolished the idea that the USSR was a second-rate power, technologically.

The 22-inch ball orbited around the earth by the Russians on Oct. 4, 1957, placed the USSR into the tactical-weapon world.

"During World War II, the U. S. realized its gun systems were ineffective against the kamikaze, Hawes continued. He described Japan's suicidal kamikaze pilots as "aircraft with infinite courage."

That's what the U. S. has today with its Cruise Missile Guidance System, made by Boeing for the Air Force.

This missile is 14 feet long, 26 inches around. It is tipped with a 200-kiloton nuclear warhead and flies at 550 miles per hour to targets 1,500 miles from its launch platform, according to information released by Boeing.

After Sputnik, Hawes said, the U. S. had to switch its emphasis from the Japanese to the Russians, causing technical people to pay attention to the USSR and "what we needed to build to defend ourselves."

Five years before Sputnik, the Pomona plant, known then as Convair, opened to produce small surface-to-air missiles and a weapons system for ground soldiers.

The Korean Conflict clearly demonstrated in the early 1950s that "superior power on a land mass, as opposed to the sea, had to be developed," Hawes explained.

"When the plant opened here in 1952 we had to start considering where might we have to fight? It would not be in the Pacific. It would be on land."

After that determination had been made, the shoulder-fired, Redeye System was developed and produced in Pomona. It gave the ground soldier protection from aircraft.

At about 1960-61, the plant became General Dynamics Pomona Division.

"Until just recently," said Hawes, "Pomona's main thrust was in air defense. Then it expanded to sea and land defense.

"We've widened our technical ac-

Who will be on next bus to the moon

Many scientists see colonization of space

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

A group of scientists, technicians, workers and a few bewildered journalists gather in a spacious hallway of barren walls and polished steel.

At 2 p.m., a space bus will take them from an airfield in Southern California to the nearest space station in L-5 — a location that forms a triangle with the moon and earth.

The trip to L-5 will take three days. Rocket engines roar deafeningly as the shop leaps into the heavens.

Outside, where the panels are being erected, there is no gravity. Inside the mile-diameter wheel-shaped station, it is much like earth. More than 10,000 people work and live here.

Fantasy? Science-fiction?

According to many scientists and space experts, the day of colonizing space is not far away.

Man presently has the capability to build huge space stations that could house from 10,000 to 1 million persons, claimed a Princeton physics professor.

Others believe such grandiose schemes are possible, but indicate

CONQUERING THE HEAVENS

In March of 1979, a new era of the space age will begin with the secheduled launching of the first of many manned orbital space shuttle flights. By the late 1980s, many scientists technicians and workers may be living in orbiting space stations hundreds of miles from earth. Some believe that within 40 years space colonies with populations of from 10,000 to 1 million persons may be operating almost autonomously in space. These pictures, provided by Rockwell International, show an artist's conception of the space shuttle modules and demonstrate what future space stations might look like.

Space Age

'Sputnik' spurred changes

Advanced countries of the world are 20 years into the Space Age. On Tuesday, the 20th anniversary of the Russian launching of Sputnik will be observed.

The technology which allowed the Russians to place their 22-inch ball into orbit around the earth brought many changes.

The "egghead" was born. Colleges changed their ideas of what the youths of today needed to meet the challenges of exploring space in the 21st Century.

Military defense changed. Rockets and missiles were refined and tipped with nuclear warheads.

Even the weatherman gained an ally — a satellite which sends back pictures of cloud formations and storms over earth.

The possibilities of finding life forms in space, of establishing space stations and colonies — perhaps more than any other wonder of the Space Age — catches the imagination and makes it easy to drift off into the "Buck Rogers" world.

Weather service finds an ally in space; forecasting revolutionized

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

When Tropical Storm Doreen came up recently, Jack Murphy grabbed some pictures from a contraption that looks like a washing machine and made a weather prediction.

The glossy prints that Murphy took from his satellite receiver at the Los Angeles office of the National Weather Service wouldn't have been available 20 years ago.

Murphy, a forecaster for the weather service, is well aware that Sputnik, the Russian satellite, changed the scope of weather forecasting for years to come. The 22-inch ball soared into space on Oct. 4, 1957 — 20 years ago this Tuesday.

In the years since Sputnik, about 1,900 satellites have been sent into earth orbit on behalf of dozens of countries. Some are just weather satellites that can spot and track hurricanes, typhoons and tropical storms like Doreen which raked the Southern California coast recently.

"When Doreen came," said Murphy, "you could see a spiral of clouds on our pictures that was moving toward the center of a storm. By looking at the pictures, we can tell where the rain is the heaviest."

The weather service can receive satellite pictures every 30 minutes, and from looking at a series of prints, forecasters can determine the movement of clouds, Murphy indicated.

In that way, hopefully, weathermen can pinpoint where a storm will hit next, said Murphy.

Weather satellites have "sensors" attached that take pictures of clouds and other formations.

Those pictures — especially a series of prints — can give forecasters accurate information on all kinds of storms, including dust storms, Murphy related.

Dust storms show up as 'dirty clouds' on the pictures, he added. "We know what it's like when it's clear — so when we see a dim cloud, we can predict a dust storm."

During normal weather conditions, satellite pictures are used primarily as backup to other information coming from teletype machines and amateur forecasters in the "areas," said Murphy.

Murphy emphasized that satellite photos are a tool and "are not in themselves a forecast." Teletype reports from all over the country, charts drawn by computers, and other information are used in making forecasts.

But Murphy noted the satellite prints are "such a useful tool that we'd be lost without them. When the machine breaks down, you don't know what to do."

The photos can even determine if there is snow in the mountains around Southern California. "We can't tell how thick it is, however," Murphy noted. "I couldn't tell you if there was enough for skiing."

The prints basically show white and dark areas — the whites are clouds, the darks are clear areas.

In the future, Murphy said, the Los Angeles weather station will have moving satellite pictures. In fact, Washington, D.C. and San Francisco already have them and Los Angeles should get them by September, 1978.

The photos will come over every 15 minutes, and forecasters will be able to determine in what directions clouds are moving, he stated.

The Los Angeles station also will be totally computerized, with a computer replacing teletype machines.

Murphy predicted that within the next 20 years, there will be a "mating of information received by satellites and computers. Computers will take information directly from the satellites and use it. We will only monitor the operation."

Murphy claimed there is absolutely no question if the satellite pictures are helpful or not.

"They are one of the big innovations of the 1960s — and they have been refined in the 1970s."

New frontier issue: technology vs. ethics

What could possibly kindle the imagination of the public as much as Sputnik did?

What will be the next development — not necessarily in space — to capture the interest and influence our educational system like the orbiting of the 22-inch ball into outer space by the Russians on Oct. 4, 1957?

Six professors at Harvey Mudd College in Claremont say there's nothing planned in the foreseeable future which would attract as much attention from the public and the government as the news of Sputnik's firing.

The professor met recently to review the effect of the space age on education and to discuss present developments in the fields of science and engineers.

Three of the professors were members of the original faculty when the college of science and engineering opened its doors just a few days before Sputnik was fired. They are Dr. Graydon D. Bell, chairman of the physics department; Dr. J. Arthur Campbell, professor of chemistry; and Dr. William H. Davenport, emeritus professor of English literature and Fellow in the humanities.

Two others, Dr. John B. Rae, emeritus professor of the history of technology and humanities; and Dr. Courtney S. Coleman, professor of mathematics, arrived at the college just two years later, in 1959.

Is man alone? NASA would like the answer

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Is man alone?

For thousands of years this question has remained unanswered.

Reports of creatures from space, incredible flying machines and manipulation of events on earth from beings in the heavens have been described since the dawn of civilization.

There are billions upon billions of stars, galaxies and solar systems in our midst.

Is it unreasonable to think that none have life?

Does extra-terrestrial intelligence exist somewhere in space?

Are there other advanced civilizations much like our own? Are some superior?

For centuries, the only answers have been pure speculation.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena (JPL), however, hope to study such questions in an academic and scientific manner.

They are presently seeking funds from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to continue a project that would scan the skies for evidence of extra-terrestrial life.

Using huge radio telescopes, located throughout the U.S., scientists hope to monitor the sky for unusual radio transmissions in space.

Although the experiment may seem like one based on fantasy and science fiction, researchers are taking it very seriously. Very careful planning has gone into the project.

"We want to be able to say that there either is or is not something out there," said Dr. Samuel Gulkis, a senior scientist and radio astronomer at JPL. "I would say there is only a minute possibility we will discover something, but the rewards if we do would be tremendous."

Radio telescopes — which can detect radio transmissions millions and billions of miles from earth — are the basis of the experiment.

Gulkis said JPL is presently developing sophisticated sound equipment to help measure and analyze radio telescope data.

"This experiment will differ from some of the searches done in the past because we will be scanning the entire sky," he said. "Previous searches have worked towards identifying particular objects for study such as single sun-like stars."

The senior scientist said 12 prior searches failed to turn up any evidence either proving or disproving the existence of higher intelligence in space.

"We will be looking for radio signals of a much more narrow band than those commonly found in nature," he explained.

If NASA goes ahead with the project, radio astronomers and researchers will be hard at work for

Why pay even more?

A new study by a North Carolina economist confirms what many energy experts have been saying all along — that Congress will be making a serious mistake this fall if it fails to deregulate the price of natural gas.

Dr. Edward W. Erickson of North Carolina State University argues (in a report prepared for the gas industry) that Americans could save at least $100 billion in fuel costs over the next 12 years if gas producers were given a financial incentive to drill new wells.

Without the new gas, Erickson points out, the country will have to import expensive oil from the Middle East, convert power plants from gas to coal and rely more heavily on synthetic and liquefied natural gas at premium prices.

Erickson's analysis is timely because the Carter administration wants to clamp a lid of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet on the price of natural gas. The House already has approved this dubious proposal. And the vote in the Senate is likely to be close.

The administration, it seems to us, is being penny wise and pound foolish on the deregulation issue. What's the sense in keeping natural gas prices artificially low (rolling them back from $2 or $2.25 in some states) if production falls off and the country is forced into using more expensive forms of fuel?

Call for help first

For an example of why good Samaritanism can be expensive, consider the financial problems being encountered by a small-but-generous hospital in South Williamson, Ky.

The 143-bed hospital, operated on a shoestring by the Presbyterian Church, offered refuge, meals and medical care to hundreds of coal miners and their families who were driven from their homes in Williamson, W. Va., last spring by flooding along the Tug River, which divides the two towns.

Hospital staff members served 1,500 meals a day, provided insulin to diabetics and took part in a massive immunization program to prevent typhoid, typhus and diptheria epidemics in the valley.

Yet when the hospital, which has been losing money for years, asked the government for $125,000 in reimbursement, the request was turned down by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration because the aid hadn't been officially authorized.

It is, of course, always gratifying to learn that federal agencies are doing their best to protect the taxpayer's dollar. But it seems to us that when dozens are killed and hundreds made homeless by flash flooding, a hospital can be excused from neglecting the normal chain of command.

"If you provide services," insisted an AA official in Atlanta, "your obligations should be understood before you provide them." That may be reasonable in some situations. But it doesn't make much sense when people are hurt, hungry and paddling around in rowboats looking for help.

There's a chance the hospital will be able to recover its money by appealing to Maj. Gen. Richard L. Frymire Jr., the director of disaster services in Kentucky.

The lesson so far, though, is that if you're going to provide emergency relief to disaster victims, you'd better be sure the government knows about it in advance.

Thoughts

And when the Lord smelled the pleasing odor, the Lord said in his heart, "I will never again curse the ground because of man, for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; neither will I ever again destroy every living creature as I have done." — Genesis 8:21.

The real problem is in the hearts and minds of men. It is not a problem of physics but of ethics. It is easier to denature plutonium than to denature the evil spirit of man. — Albert Einstein.

"Behold, I am coming soon, bringing my recompense, to repay every one for what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end." — Revelation 22:12, 13.

No man who continues to add something to the material, intellectual and moral well-being of the place in which he lives, is left long without proper reward. — Booker T. Washington, American educator.

"Truly, I say to you, this generation will not pass away before all these things take place. Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away." — Mark 13: 30, 31.

The sages and heroes of history are receding from us, and history contracts the record of their deeds into a narrower and narrower page. But time has no power over the name and deeds and words of Jesus Christ. — William E. Channing, American clergyman.

Schools not all at fault

Dear Editor:

As an elementary school teacher, I realize the need for parents to understand and be aware of the type of education their children are receiving. I believe the goal for most parents and teachers is for the children to be educated and prepared to become the citizens of tomorrow.

The statistics of the competency level of our high school graduates, as quoted by John Douglas in his first article of the series "Parent Power," are devastating. Although the schools are producing many high school graduates that have tested "below" the average 12th grade level, the educational system cannot entirely be blamed.

Many of our entering kindergarten students suffer from handicaps that children of yesteryear did not have. With the increase of divorce and the changes of the "family structure," many children lose the security and identification that is necessary for a positive self-image. Because of society's ever-changing lifestyles, the diets of our children are not nutritionally balanced (as needed for a healthy body) which has caused many behavioral and emotional disturbances in some children.

I am not saying that the schools are without blame, but I am saying that the educational institutions are not exclusively at fault. When the youth of our country witness corruption within our government, the breakdown of the family structure, exploitation of the media and the fallacies in our laws, they are without the necessary guidelines needed to become productive citizens within our democracy.

I feel a great need for parents and educators to communicate and work together to educate our children, for they are our only hope for the future. If some parents would accept the responsibility of teaching their children manners, values and respect, many teachers would be able to fulfill their responsibility in teaching the "basics." I have wasted many valuable hours of "teaching time," because of discipline problems.

I am looking forward to reading more of John Douglas' articles on "Parent Power" and anticipate finding some answers to the problems that teachers and parents face in order to help our children.

More on a tin-medal tyrant

WASHINGTON — This is another report on the private world of Anastasio Somoza, the vainglorious dictator who runs Nicaragua like a private estate. We have dubbed him the Idi Amin of Latin America.

Somoza is caught up in the vision of his own grandeur. He is a tin-medal tyrant of unmilitary bearing, who loves to dress like a military peacock and adorn himself with sashes and medals.

He is not as heroic, however, as the medals would attest. He prefers to speak to his subjects, for example, from the safety of a bulletproof booth inside a three-sided, steel-plated shed, surrounded by a fence. The bulletproof glass grossly distorts his owlish, ogling face.

In the tradition of his dictator father, Somoza uses his power to bleed his people. This massive transfusion has enriched his own bloodstream; he has amassed a personal fortune that runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

He uses the political machinery to keep his people in line. No one, for example, is permitted to hold a government job unless he is a member of Somoza's political party, the Nationalist Liberal Party.

As evidence of their political allegiance, party members carry a membership card widely known as "La Rosadita," or the little pink card. The more irreverent call it "La Magnifica," after the prayer card which Catholics carry as protection from unknown dangers.

La Rosadita is the key to government employment. Ministers and managers, truck drivers and garbage collectors alike must produce their little pink card before they are put on the government payroll.

Under the Somoza system, the obligations of a public servant are unique. They are expected in addition to their governmental duties to attend Somoza's parades and speeches and to hail their chief with compulsory cheers. In the past, they were actually required to report to their places of employment and punch time clocks before a parade. Then they were bused or trucked like cattle to the appointed location.

Government employees must also kick back part of their pay to finance the party. Each payday, five percent of their gross salary is automatically deducted from their paychecks for party dues. The money is used to pay for rallies, parties and anything else Somoza chooses to charge to the party.

A decade ago, while Somoza's brother Luis was president, the government was reorganized into a system strikingly similar to the communist system the Somozas denounce. Hundreds of "cantons" were created at the local level, giving the Somozas a tighter grip on the populace down to the grassroots.

The canton leaders are expected to know everyone in their jurisdictions. Almost all government services — roads, schools, permits, licenses — are administered through the cantons. Thus it is impressed upon the peasants that if they expected to live a trouble-free life, they must jump when the government so orders.

So today, when Somoza needs a large crowd to cheer him, he merely passes the word and the local leader rounds up the required number of bodies. As an inducement, Somoza turns on the party money valve and a flow of cash trickles down to the cantons.

The canton leaders, of course, help themselves to the biggest share. But all the way down the line, the other organizers take their cuts. There is little left for the peasants who pour out of the buses. Usually, each peasant is presented with a little banner to wave and a glass of "guaro" — rotgut liquor produced by the government — to wash away his doubts and ease his burdens.

Some readers may ask why we would spend five months investigating an obscure dictator of no consequence beyond his own borders. In recent years, the American people have found themselves uncomfortably allied with a host of two-bit tyrants. They have been recruited into the U.S. bloc by the power brokers in Washington.

Anastasio Somoza is the epitome of these petty tyrants — a bemedaled, beer-bellied potentate who has developed an epoxylike bond with Washington. He toes the U.S. line at the United Nations. He allowed the CIA to use his country as the staging base for the Bay of Pigs invasion. He is the darling of the Pentagon.

As the price of Somoza's friendship, the United States has provided the economic and military support that has kept his family in power. This has brought about the Americanization of Anastasio Somoza. He even spurns the Spanish language, preferring instead the American slang he learned as a student at West Point. He has become a foreigner in his own land.

Somoza rules a country bedeviled by oppressive heat and humidity. The human birth rate is as high as the productivity is low. Most Nicaraguans are born into poverty; they toil for some of the lowest wages in the Western hemisphere. The average hourly pay is barely 30 cents.

Yet their ruler is estranged from them; more accurately, he has insulated himself from their problems. He has a low opinion of his people and, according to one source, "doesn't believe the country can be developed through the Nicaraguan people." It is a disdain, Nicaraguans tell us, that the people reciprocate.

How important is canal?

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Writer

WASHINGTON — Some see it as another concession to anti-American pressure. Others see it as a contribution to the return of American isolationism.

And still others see it as a bold and benevolent correction of a wrong done some 75 years ago. However you see the new Panama Canal treaty, there is surely some doubt in your mind — at least just a little.

For example, if you oppose the treaty, isn't it a little difficult to justify occupying a 50-mile strip of another country's land? Especially when your country is the world's foremost prophet of democracy.

If you support the treaty, won't you concede there is a great deal of doubt about the continued security of the canal?

It is also a little difficult to explain why we could claim a right to continue holding Guantanamo Bay in Cuba when the canal is an almost identical situation.

On the other hand, treaty opponents, you surely can't question the public relations value in Latin America.

Oh, you can? You think we would be showing a weakness by ratifying this treaty. You think that we have to draw the line somewhere and that the Panama Canal is an important place within our sphere of influence.

That raises an interesting question: Just how important is the canal? Those who oppose the treaty always point out its economic and military importance, but is it really that important?

After all, only about 5 percent of our intercoastal cargo is transported through the canal. Is that enough to warrant all this concern?

We can't get our aircraft carriers through the canal, treaty proponents point out. Well, that doesn't mean it is militarily insignificant, but the military importance is not what it once was.

We now have a two-ocean navy and the need to transfer ships is not what it was before World War II.

I can see both sides of this argument. Proponents have a good point when they talk about ending colonialism, but isn't Guantanamo Bay important to our national defense and couldn't it be described as a colony? You can bet Castro thinks so.

Supporting or opposing the treaty boils down to several factors, but perhaps most importantly, (I realize you won't all agree) what is the world opinion?

If it is perceived as a sincere and generous gesture, ratification is probably worth the grief it could cause.

If it is perceived as a further sign of American weakness, perhaps disapproval would be worth all the grief it surely will bring.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Automotive vehicles in the United States traveled a total of 1,390 billion miles last year. If they averaged 13 miles to the gallon of gasoline, that means 107 billion gallons of gas were consumed to go the distance. Therefore, a conservative estimate would be that motorists paid approximately $64 billion for the gasoline they burned up during the year. But what is perhaps even more interesting is that every time the price of gasoline is upped one cent a gallon, there goes another billion dollars down the exhaust pipes over a 12 month period. Which just goes to prove the truth of that old saying: If the oil companies take care of the cents, the dollars will take care of themselves, or to put it another way, a penny added on is a billion dollars earned.

Hawaii

The Hawaiian Islands were settled by Polynesian seafarers from islands 2,000 miles to the south about 700 A.D. The first Europeans arrived at the end of the 18th century, followed in the next century by a heavy influx of Asian settlers. The present population by national descent, according to the 1970 census, is 39.2 per cent Japanese and the remainder Hawaiian, Chinese, Filipino, Korean and mixed ancestry.

Brandy shot too spirited for bird

DEAR DR. MILLER: You seem so set against spirits for birds, I just think you ought to know I've saved my parakeet several times with a quick shot of brandy. He has a tendency to fainting spells and he would have died long ago if I hadn't been right there with a brandy bottle to revive him. — E.O.

DEAR E.O.: Whether your bird's brandy bottle bouts are beneficial would best be determined (and should be) by a local veterinarian. Crediting the brandy for helping him survive these "attacks" is questionable — it might even be to blame for his having had them.

MEMO TO M.N.: Epilepsy can only be diagnosed after a complete examination by a veterinarian. Other conditions may cause seizures. The sooner your Yorkie is examined, the better.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've always been leery of poisons, but when my new kitten came up with a crop of fleas I looked around for the safest flea powder I could find. It contained rotenone and derris root which is not supposed to hurt anything but the fleas, but I didn't even use this inside. I took the kitten outside and dusted her with powder there. I wouldn't even have any of the stuff in the house. Then I kept her out for a few hours and brushed out the powder. It seemed to do the trick. She didn't have any more fleas. But, oh tragedy! My goldfish are all belly up in their little fish pond. They're all very dead and I'm afraid maybe I killed them with the flea powder? I thought it was so safe, but I don't know of anything else that could have happened to them so suddenly?? — D.R.

DEAR D.R.: Rotenone is probably the safest insecticide. It has a very low toxicity — for warm-blooded animals. Unfortunately, many flea families have become highly resistant to the poison, and they can literally shake it off without lethal effects. Not so for fish, or other cold-blooded species however. You're probably quite right in assuming your fish fatalities were due to rotenone poisoning. (It's actually used to kill off unwanted fish in streams and lakes.)

What people say

"We don't claim that any album cover or any other form of media causes any particular act of violence to women. What we do claim is that when millions of people see women portrayed as victims day in and day out, the impression is created that it's safe, and even normal, to pick on women, that it's not surprising (and finally not even upsetting) that women are assaulted."

—Julia London, member of 'Women Against Violence Against Women," pressing for record industry-wide policy against the use of violence against women for promotional purposes, and urging record buyers to boycott albums with covers depicting such violence.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Monday, Oct. 3, 1977
Your Birthday, Oct. 3, 1977

You will make a friend this coming year, one who will be very valuable to you. This person will be older and very well respected in his field and the community at large.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Let what you've learned from past experience serve as your guide today. New methods can be better, but it ain't necessarily so. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're doing business today and things degenerate into too much small talk, find a way to bring them back into perspective.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is something important pending that you've been reluctant to make a final decision on. Procrastinate no longer. Act on it today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things won't quite come together for you today. You're giving your best efforts, but your short attention span could hold you back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Although you could be attracted to someone of the opposite sex today, it's a passing fancy. Don't jeopardize a good relationship through a momentary lapse.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Anything you do to beautify your home today should be along lines that you can live with indefinitely. Faddish improvements are boring.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a bit of a dreamer today until it comes down to push and shove. Your good, old-fashioned horse sense will come to the fore.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't spoil young ones today by lavishing material things upon them. They may be upset if you deny them, but the lesson will be invaluable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If your mate takes a view of a family situation that is a little too Pollyannaish today, inject your realistic approach and straighten it out quickly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A person indebted to you may try to give you a song and dance routine to avoid paying. If you press, you can recover at least a portion today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A friend who is in a financial muddle may want some cash today. You'd be better off showing him how to undo his own mess.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Shallow praise won't cut it with the boss today. Good, solid performance will.

Ann Landers

ADC mothers human beings

Dear Ann Landers: Can you stand one more letter on ADC mothers? After working in the Michigan welfare system for nine years I've learned people cannot be placed into neat little categories. Individuals who receive assistance (I hate the label "ADC") are as different from one another as "people who have never asked for anything" — another phrase I hate and hear a lot.

Nearly half of my caseload clients worked at the best jobs they could get — in restaurants, hotels, county hospitals, small businesses and other jobs that don't pay too well. Many tried to go to school nights when they were working days. I learned plenty from some of those fine women. Now that I am a working mother myself I understand a little better what they go through.

Of course there are some slobs and freeloaders who never cooked or cleaned the house, who drank and kept men, rarely spoke to their children except to send them for another six-pack of beer, but ADC mothers are not all alike. They are human beings — just like the rest of us. — C.C., Saginaw, Mich.

Dear C.C.: Amen. I couldn't have said it better myself. In fact, I couldn't have said it at all. But you can and did because you have been there.

Dear Ann Landers: On the advice of — and I must be honest and say with strong encouragement from — a close male friend (I'm a woman), I made an investment which resulted in the loss of a rather substantial sum of money. My friend feels just awful about it and wants to reimburse me for 50 percent of the loss.

I am finding it very hard to agree to let him do it. On the other hand, he has a finely honed sense of responsibility, along with a desperate need to save face.

Do you have any suggestions that will make us both feel comfortable? — A.M. In The Big Apple

Dear A.M.: I have been sitting at my typewriter for 15 minutes trying to come up with an answer — and let me tell you, it's not easy.

Finally I asked myself, "What would I do if I were in YOUR place?" The answer is this: I would take my lumps — all of them — and not let a friend bail me out even though he encouraged the investment and feels rotten about giving me a bum steer.

The only way he will feel better is by resolving never again to give financial advice to a friend. If you want a double rationale, address yourself to this question: Had you made an enormous profit, would you have given him half? I doubt it.

Dear Ann Landers: I read somewhere that a very smart guy who worked with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus figured out a clever way to leave every town as clean as they found it. He sent the word out to home gardeners that exotic manure of camels, elephants, llamas and jungle cats was available at no cost — just come and get it. Within a few hours the grounds were spotless! Do you believe it? — A Skeptic

Dear Skep: Yes, I do. The three most irresistible words in the English language are "something for nothing." (P.S. People will never learn that nothing in life is free. Everything costs something.)

There's a name for jogging

This jogging business has really gotten out of hand. My street used to wake up lazily to chirping birds, an occasional clatter of milk bottles, and the gentle thud of a newspaper as it lodged in the spouting.

Not any more. Joggers in an assortment of shapes and stages of deterioration parade in front of our house 16 abreast like a Russian revolution. Cars zoom in and out, honking and screeching. Dogs bark and occasionally snap a thigh in their teeth. The sweat alone is enough to raise the humidity significantly.

My husband is one of them.

He panted into the kitchen yesterday where he grabbed either side of the sink, bowed his head and gasped for breath.

"I don't want to alarm you," I said, "but there's a tire mark on your throat."

"It's not a tire mark," he said irritably, "It's gym shoe treads. One guy was running the wrong way."

"Couldn't he have stopped?"

"And lose his rhythm?"

I pulled the draperies. "Look at 'em. I haven't seen crowds like that since Bloomingdale's half-price sale on Christmas ornaments. It's not good for you."

"Who said?"

"Dr. Peter J. Steincrohn said. He contends jogging is for horses. Listen to this," I said, grabbing the paper. 'Have you ever taken a good look at the jogger as he labors by? Look at his face. Have you ever seen a happy one? It's usually serious and contorted. If he's a masochist, he's having a great time. If he's like you or me, he's having a heck of a bad time.' He's right, you know. Look at that guy . . . there's nothing in his face but pain."

"That's because the turkey is running against the traffic. You should never make eye contact with the driver of a car. Besides, you're just jealous because you don't have the discipline to get out there every morning and keep fit."

"You mean like the guy jogging along beside you this morning with a cigarette dangling from his mouth?"

"He's awfully good with dogs, though. What you don't understand is that we joggers share something special out there . . . an esprit de corps, so to speak. We're special and we know it. We're doing something for our bodies and our country and it's worth everything we have to sacrifice. There's a name for it."

"I know. We used to call it World War II."

Articles on health confusing

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have no medical background. My concern is to keep my family healthy and happy, but when I read articles pertaining to health care, I am sometimes confused. Please help!

Is it true that taking zinc as a supplement tends to decrease the symptoms of arthritis? If arthritis is neglected will it lead to bone cancer?

With all the controversy over estrogen and uterine cancer, can vitamin E be taken, not as a substitute, but at least to alleviate menopausal symptoms?

Does a high protein diet add cholesterol to the body? I take gelatin capsules to solve the nail splitting but do not want to risk another problem.

DEAR READER — There is a lot of misinformation in print, particularly by those hawking vitamins, minerals and food supplements for pay and quasi health magazines that depend upon revenues from advertisements from firms marketing such items. I am not surprised that you are confused.

Zinc in limited quantities is important to the body and a deficiency in zinc can be responsible for the loss of taste and smell. There are some inconclusive studies of its use in arthritis. The place to get proper guidance for the treatment of arthritis is from your doctor or a rheumatoid specialist. Wasting time and money on highly advertised so-called arthritis cures may delay or even decrease your opportunity for getting proper treatment.

Incidentally, we know that people feel better if they take almost anything and think it will help. This is true even with a serious disease. Hence, unscientific testimonials prove absolutely nothing.

Arthritis will not become bone cancer. The reason to treat arthritis is to eliminate pain and maintain function.

Vitamin E has no value at all in alleviating the symptoms of the menopause. Any so-called results are simply the faith healing response. If a person had faith in sugar pills they would do just as well.

A high protein diet alone will not increase your cholesterol unless that means taking in more calories than your body needs. The problem is that many so-called high protein foods also contain a lot of fat such as some cuts of meat, whole milk (about 50 per cent of its calories are fat and a high percentage is saturated fat).

Gelatin will not hurt you. You can get better protein out of lean beef with all the fat removed or from lean fish, such as flounder or sole or from the lean pieces of chicken, such as breast meat with the fat and skin removed. Some women find that nail polish or polish remover is a factor in causing nail problems.

The best thing you can do for your family is to give them a balanced diet. To help you I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Women in the childbearing years often need extra iron and a single all purpose vitamin tablet a day with iron will not hurt you.

Opening lead — K♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Pessimistic Pete thought: "Anyone else would think of a slam. I hope I can make game." So he opened the bidding with four hearts. Everyone passed.

West opened the king of clubs. Pete thought some more. "Everything is going to be wrong. Can I make game against the bludgeonings of fate?"

Then Pete discarded a spade!

West shifted to the nine of that suit. Dummy's jack was covered by East's queen and South's ace.

Pete led a trump to dummy, ruffed the six of clubs, led a spade to the king, ruffed dummy's last spade.

Then he entered dummy with a second trump, led the queen of clubs and discarded the three of clubs.

West was in and had no way to collect more than one further trick. A diamond lead would make Pete's king good. Any other lead would allow him to ruff in dummy and discard one diamond.

Pessimism had paid off. Any other line of play would have lost the hand.

A Kansas reader wants to know what the "Notrump forcing" convention is.

It is very popular with experts who never open four-card majors. It provides that the one-notrump response to a major opening is a one-round force. It has lots of merit, but also is very complicated.

Sweden likes twin beds

Nowhere in the world are twin beds more popular than in Sweden, it's said. And twin bedrooms there have turned into quite a status symbol. There aren't all that many of those, however. Not enough space. Still, the Scandinavian situation is odd. What our Love and War man today chooses to call premarital permissiveness is a fairly well accepted pattern among the Nordics. Yet the husbands up in the chilly countries tend to be somewhat undemonstrative towards their wives. At least, in public.

MONKEYS

Q. "Do monkeys throw coconuts at people?"

A. Not on purpose. They might drop leaves, branches or nuts from trees, just fooling around, but they don't aim when they toss.

Q. "How old does a kid get before he stops being afraid of the dark or of being left alone?"

A. Most youngsters overcome both at least by age 10.

NECKTIES

You could buy 109 different neckties every day of the year seven days a week and still not duplicate any one of them; that's how many various patterns are on the market. Most men, though, only get three new ones a year, and throw their extras away, keeping a stock of about 18.

When one wave hits the beach, they start counting off the seconds — one-thousand-one, one-thousand-two, one-thousand-three — until the next wave hits. Then they multiply the number of seconds between the arriving crests by 3.5. If the lapse time between crests is 10 seconds, for example, those waves are moving at 35 m.p.h.

Counseling Corner

Attitude keyed to adjustment

By R. CLIFF WATERS
Marriage and Family Counselor

I am often asked, "What is normal?" or "What is a well-adjusted person like?"

Some characteristics of the well-adjusted individual are that he accepts himself as a worthwhile person. No drum roll.

In contrast, the poorly adjusted person may view himself as inadequate and a failure. Him, you notice. It isn't just the "hang-dog" look and the tendency to self-pity, it is the attitude . . . like a dark cloud of doubt, pessimism and negativism that hangs over all he says, all he does.

The well-adjusted person is able to enjoy pleasurable activities. He doesn't opt out or make excuses to not get involved. He understands and is not threatened by experiencing and expressing emotion. He enjoys rewarding, close relations with people.

The maladjusted person is a chronic worrier always geared for an emergency situation. Around him, you sense tension. You may feel his anxiousness and desire to move away. He withdraws from social contacts and close interpersonal relations. He experiences strong feelings of depression.

Characteristically the well-adjusted person is willing to be a part of life and continue trying. He is honest with himself and others. He lives in the present, not in the past or future. He sets realistic goals for himself. He is versatile in types of responses and roles assumed with others. He does not expect others to be as he is and he is willing to accept some ideas from others which are counter to his previous notions.

The poorly adjusted individual will often resort to fantasy (daydreaming) for reward rather than real-life situations. He holds on for too long a period of time to grief or bitterness. He blames others for his own problems. He drifts through life, lacking purpose and goals.

The well-adjusted person has both humor and purposiveness in his life, not just one without the other. He is not driven by undue competition nor perfectionism. He loves others and is concerned for them.

Sputnik lured Pomona into the Space Age—

tivity now to include anti-armor, or tank defense. Much of the technical work in the last few years has been to develop defenses against mass-armored threats on land.

"Also, we study what the USSR might do. They emphasize missile saturation, which could penetrate our systems. The Russians send 10 to 15 missiles per ship.

"So, we turned to the question of how do you improve ship gun systems? The Phalanx, a close-in weapon system for the Navy, resulted."

"As the Soviets were forcing the world into the Space Age and a strategic program of defense, our capabilities of projecting, technology-wise, were stimulated," said Hawes.

"We thought more of what we had to do to protect ourselves, in a tactical program. We knew the Soviets would also apply technology. In technology, they are not second rate. They are very, very competitive," Hawes said.

"The Russians develop systems in a shorter time than we do. They have an autocratic type government, compared to our open government.

"Now in procurement of our weapons systems, we're facing kind of another Sputnik. We're beginning to wake up. That's the challenge we're faced with today."

Since Sputnik, weapons produced at Pomona have included the Standard Missile 1, the surface-to-air Terrier and Tarter family; the Redeye; the Phalanx; Sparrow Aim-7F, an air-to-air missile; the five-inch Anti-Ship Missile; Standard Arm, an anti-radiation missile; Viper, the Army's shoulder-launch, tank defense weapon; and the Sparrow AIM-7F, an advanced air-to-air missile.

Fire striking public employes say delegates

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Delegates from 415 California cities have endorsed strongly a state ballot initiative which would require the firing of public employes who strike.

By a four to one vote Wednesday, the general assembly of the League of California Cities approved the anti-strike resolution at a convention here.

San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, a sponsor of the resolution, said the mandate by California mayors and councilmen "reflects a clear understanding that the public will not put up with public employee strikes."

Wilson said about 100,000 of 500,000 required signatures have been gathered.

Doctor 'eyes' a degree in law

NEW YORK (AP) — Vivien Boniuk is going to have another sheepskin to tack up on her office wall among the certificates that identify her as an ophthalmologist, a pathologist, a surgeon and a professor.

After one more year at the other end of the classroom, of going to lectures at night, of cramming for exams and fighting to get into over-registered courses, she will be a lawyer — duly graduated from New York Law School and ready to stand before the Bar.

"It's like being given the key to a secret club," Ms. Boniuk said in an interview. "You learn the meanings of the words. You get to know the people. You don't feel intimidated by anything."

But, says the native Canadian, she has no intention of giving up her practice at Flower and Fifth Avenue Hospitals and New York Medical College. And she says she has no intention of quitting her job as associate professor of ophthalmology and pathology at the college, or her work with retarded children.

"I didn't begin with the idea of giving up medicine," she explained. "It simply was the largest gap in my knowledge. I began with the idea of expanding my own horizons and, so far, what I've learned has had that effect."

It was also the ubiquitous nature of law that attracted the 36-year-old optical surgeon.

"It's difficult to open any medical journal — or any magazine at all — without hearing about the interface of law and medicine," she said. "There are an incredible number of people studying law — and not just people fresh out of college either."

New York Bar Association figures show there are some 500 Americans holding both the Doctor of Medicine (M.D.) and Juris Doctor (J.D.) degrees.

Alhough she doesn't plan a full-time legal practice, or any real practice at all, Ms. Boniuk says her studies are not just an intellectual exercise. There is enough in the large number of malpractice suits and the volume of legislation on medicine, drugs and related issues to occupy a part-time lawyer concerned with physicians' needs, she said.

In any case, Ms. Boniuk does not see the law as a smooth road to riches.

"A lot of doctors have this notion that if they become lawyers then all of a sudden they will be highly paid — called to serve as expert witnesses and that kind of thing," said Ms. Boniuk, who has never been called as an expert and doesn't expect it.

"That's just ridiculous. You can wind up with a general knowledge of both, but you're not going to be an expert in either."

She said many medical witnesses had no legal background at all.

The same discipline and drive that got her an M.D. in 1963 from Dalhousie University Medical School in Nova Scotia helps her legal studies, she said.

"To tell you the truth, it's significantly less difficult to get by," she said. "You don't have scads of material to memorize like you do in medical school. It's more a logical, reasoning kind of approach."

Ms. Boniuk was a resident at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, an affiliate of Washington University Medical Center, at Baylor University Hospital and at Yale University Hospital. She is also a fellow of the Canadian Royal College of Surgeons.

Ms. Boniuk is no stranger to prejudice against women. In San Francisco, she said, she was rejected for a residency because of her sex.

"They told me they were afraid I'd work for a couple of years, then get married and quit," she recalled with a trace of old anger. "I don't know what they thought I went through medical school for."

She says her feminist politics are primarily on a personal level. "I speak up now," she explained. "I used to be silent and grit my teeth."

Gang violence at high school

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gang violence broke out at Roosevelt High School in East Los Angeles, leaving a 17-year-old youth seriously injured after several members of a rival gang beat him with a baseball bat and stabbed him, authorities said.

Police said Thursday's attack, the first such incident of the new school year, was committed by four nonstudents, apparently in retaliation for a previous slaying. The youth was in critical condition at County-USC Medical Center.

and professor of engineering, joined the faculty in 1975. He moderated the discussion.

Dr. Bell recalls that in the late 1950s, brighter students in high schools were told "your future is in science."

"Sputnik was merely a 'moment' in the development of scientific technology . . . now it's a question of technology versus ethics," says Dr. Davenport.

Dr. Tanenbaum ponders whether there is a "new frontier" out in space, or will future breakthroughs be more earthbound?

According to Dr. Coleman, Harvey Mudd and other colleges across the country received funding for the space program "because a lot of people had money and were looking for something to support."

Dr. Campbell adds, "Sputnik had nothing to do with the first 48 adventuresome students who came here, but a lot to do with students who entered in the next 10 years."

There was a great resurgence in engineering, sciences and maths and the opening of the space age did much to publicize the existence of the small college recently established as a part of the Claremont Colleges.

"We hit the scene at the right time," said Dr. Bell. "National Science Foundation grants were given to colleges without too much concern for exactly what results might be expected. In the early days, we got nearly every grant requested.

"Now, grants are harder to come by. The government now wants a grant project to have an immediate application."

"Not only was the national news media focusing on us, but by 1965, half of the high school chemistry students in the nation were using a textbook written at HMC," adds Dr. Campbell, one of the authors.

"The $3 million government grant to write the book probably wouldn't have been forthcoming without the interest in space study."

The professors said that in the early space days, everyone was called a scientist, where actually many were physicists or engineers.

"If a project was successful, it was considered a 'scientific achievement' but if it failed, it was called a 'failure of engineering'," adds Dr. Davenport.

Dr. Rae states, "The effect on education in general was disappointing. There was a great deal of excitement — or panic — at first and some very useful things were done.

"Basically, I feel that when the panic wore off, a lot of business of refining education was lost."

Dr. Coleman disagrees. He believes the positive effects included a continued interest in the sciences.

Dr. Rae and Dr. Davenport agree that the effects of the space age on literature actually started with the bombing of Hiroshima.

Dr. Davenport pointed to the C.P. Snow lectures on "Two Cultures" and the famed Pauling-Teller debates.

The professors said that since the Industrial Revolution, writers and philosophers have been questioning the advantages and disadvantages of scientific changes upon mankind.

"The bombing of Hiroshima was the beginning of a revulsion by many," adds Dr. Davenport. "There started a horror in the minds of man and a feeling that science and the humanities were separate.

"But the moon shots put scientists in a better light. There was a tremendous positive reaction, both professionally and with the public, to landing on the moon."

Dr. Davenport continues, "There is now a major question about the relationship of science and ethics. We have to consider what happens when this technology changes life.

"Man must develop some sense of social responsibility."

All the professor agree that art and music have been more affected by other aspects of science than the space age.

They point out that while every rock group must have an electrical engineer, the lyrics still deal with green pastures and the days before Sputnik became a part of our vocabulary.

Dr. Rae said that there was a certain element of jealousy because the Russians had fired their space capsule first. This, he feels, probably started many students toward the sciences.

Dr. Bell confirms this, saying "High school teachers would tell the brighter students to study in science or engineering while, actually, many of these youths could have gone in many directions."

As the pendulum has swung from studies of a specific science to a generalized education which includes many fields including humanities, the professors fear that some students will not be adequately trained in one specialization.

At HMC, this pitfall is avoided through a program whereby all students become involved in a practical project which must be solved.

The professors agree that computers, while refined during the past 20 years, had to be fairly sophisticated before the flight into space was possible.

But, Dr. Tanenbaum pointed out, there have been many developments evolving out of the space age. These include radio astronomy, space medicine, more computer science and mapping.

Dr. Campbell adds, "With such a large fraction of the research budget assigned to the space program, if one is to take everything that came out of it, there were many developments.

"But that doesn't prove these developments wouldn't have happened anyway, without a space program."

"And you never know what was missed by too much emphasis on the space program. What hasn't been discovered which might have been?" asks Dr. Rae.

The group agreed that Americans react to crises, but also become blase and disinterested rapidly.

The six professors voiced pleasure in the fact there is a renewed interest in college education.

They agreed that there appears to be a higher percentage of extremely gifted students entering the college today.

What will be the next development to spark the imagination of Americans?

It probably will not be in space — since no gold or metals were found on the moon or Mars, only rocks, the professors believe.

And, they agree, it would really have to be a spectacular development to match that first 184-pound ball which pierced the outer space just 20 years ago.

Volunteers map; fight on crime

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A volunteer citizens' group has announced a citywide crime-prevention effort similar to the Neighborhood Watch program started by police several years ago.

The Citizen Support Forum made the announcement Monday in a press conference with the endorsement of Police Chief Edward M. Davis, Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp, Deputy Mayor Grace Davis and school Supt. William J. Johnston.

Dorothy Hall, forum president, said volunteers will distribute crime prevention pamphlets within the Los Angeles Police Department's 17 divisions.

The Neighborhood Watch Program was started by LAPD in an effort to involve citizens in crime prevention.

Vacation time out in Japan 'juku' in

TOKYO (AP) — Summer may be vacation time for youngsters in some places, but for many in Japan it is a time to cram for examinations for higher schools in future years.

In some cases it can mean 18 hours or more of study a day in special schools called juku.

Officials at the Ministry of Education said they had no exact figures on how many students attended juku sessions during the summer vacation period recently ended, but as part of the highly competitive Japanese education system the number is large. The head of one preparatory school in Tokyo said 20,000 students registered there alone for various cram sessions during the summer months.

One pupil, 13-year-old Yasuhiko Ohta, told The Associated Press in an interview: "I come here at 8 a.m. and study until 12:30 p.m. every day because I have an entrance exam for high school next spring. When I finish the day here, I go home and study until late at night."

Asked about missing vacation time, he replied: "I went to a swimming pool last Sunday, but that was the only time I took leave from my study. My mother told me if I do not study, I cannot get into a good high school."

Education in Japan is compulsory up to the ninth grade. After that pupils must take entrance examinations to enter high schools, public or private.

Many in Japan believe chances for success are better for students who start off in private schools. For them, what is known as "shiken jigoku" or examination hell, begins with the effort to get into a prestigious private kindergarten.

"The competition for getting into high school in Japan is very keen," said Ikuo Tatamiya, 60, president of the Yoyogi Seminar Preparatory School. "Sometimes one point difference on exams is the key to admission. So pupils must work harder, even in summer."

Shin Iriye, the 54-year-old headmaster, said about 400 youngsters from all over Japan took part in summer sessions at the school.

"These boys and girls get up at 6:30 a.m., study five hours in the morning, take a one-hour nap and then study four hours in the afternoon, eat supper and study eight hours at night — a total of 17 hours," he said. "I tell them to go to bed at 11:30 p.m., but they are eager to learn more, so I let them do their own work until 2 a.m."

Iriye said he did not consider such schedules too severe, adding that the pupils "simply want to work, so I let them."

"What's bad about Japanese education," he said, "is that teachers at formal schools do not care even if some of their pupils cannot understand what they teach.

"Worse than that are the entrance exams. Pupils have got to know, for example, more than 3,000 English words to pass entrance exams for high school. But, according to study guide lines mapped out by the education ministry, teachers are required to teach no more than 540 words. This is utter nonsense.

"So there is a natural need for this type of school to supplement their formal education and get them prepared for entrance examinations."

San Clemente Island use

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Navy says responsibility for its San Clemente Island research and development test center will be transferred Saturday to the North Island Naval Air Station.

San Clemente Island for the past 10 years has been under the domain of the Naval Undersea Center at Point Loma, and more recently the Naval Ocean Systems Center on the point.

"It's the dominant user theory," said Cmdr. Robert Nevin of the Ocean Systems Center about the island, which also is used as an aerial fleet and gunnery range.

"The fleet uses the island more than we do. The island will continue to have a dual purpose," Nevin said.

Navy officials said several long-range testing programs are being conducted in the island, including those for the San Diego-built Tomahawk cruise missile.

Camera angles: teaching photography

Audio-visual 'technique' offers learning reward

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

In a previous column, I described an innovative new method to teach certain facets of photography using modern audio-visual techniques. Peter Nicastro, of Garfield, N.J., founded Photography Learning Systems and introduced a series of lessons which combine a tape-recorded cassette of instructions illustrated by a sequence of slides and a printed studybook for reference. The learning experience can take place anywhere you can set up a screen and slide projector and listen to a tape recorder.

With school sessions under way throughout the country, I found it much more convenient to have one of Nicastro's teaching modules at home. I listened and looked at an "Audio-Visual Portfolio" by Eva Rubenstein. It was a rewarding encounter with a noted photographer whose work is in the collections of major museums here and abroad. It was like having a personal chat with someone whose discerning appraisal of her work and emotions can illuminate your own ideas and motives in picture-taking.

Eva Rubinstein is known for the personal style in her photographic encounters with people and environments. She was the subject of a monograph, one of a series on important photographers, published by Morgan & Morgan. It is remarkable because photography came into her life late, after careers as a dancer and an actress. In 1967, while working in the Long Wharf Theatre in New Haven, Sean Kernan came to photograph the productions. Eva started to assist him ... and was hooked.

Photography became an obsession. She applied herself with passion, working out of a basement darkroom she had set up. Then Eva moved to New York and photography dominated all her activities. She took a course in photography, enrolled in a Lisette Model workshop, devoured photo books and felt the influence of masters like Irving Penn, August Sander, Paul Strand, Cartier-Bresson, Yousuf Karsh, Eugene Smith and Evelyn Hofer.

Among other facets of the craft, Kernan showed Eva what good print quality was like and she worked to perfect her technique in that area. She learned that a print has personality which can be changed through contrast.

"Taking a picture can be instinctive," Eva says, "while printing is a slow, introspective time which I enjoy. I can work for hours until the print says, 'This is the way I look best. This feels right.'"

The format of the lesson itself is an interview by Will Faller, editor of "Photograph" magazine. with Eva Rubinstein. The 34-minute discussion is illustrated with 44 slides, each one advanced by an audible signal on the tape. The photos shown were made in war-torn Ireland, Spain, Romania, Italy and the United States. Faller probes for reasons why she chose each scene and how the creative process produced the images.

"Is your seeing a deliberate act or intuitive?" Faller asks.

"When I see the possibility of a picture," Eva replies, "I put the camera to my eye and the scene in the viewfinder 'happens' or it doesn't. I may shift the camera a bit, eliminating or adding something until it feels 'right.'

"I never studied art or composition seriously so I don't have theories to go by. But when I was younger, I saw a lot of paintings and reacted to them. Maybe I got a sense of design or graphics by osmosis. Most of my later shooting is instinctive."

Eva uses public transportation and walks around a lot with a camera handy for unexpected, interesting vignettes. On a train in Ireland she focused on four schoolboys deeply engrossed in smoking a last cigarette before getting home. In embattled Londonderry, she photographed a battle scene with the feeling that she was safe behind her camera although there were daily casualties.

She found a street corner that "turned her on," a sharp ascending curve that had possibilities. She waited there for more than an hour but her patience paid off. A schoolboy came along going up the steep street just as two elderly men passed him. She clicked. It had symbolism: Youth ascending while old age is on the downward path.

"I shoot a lot of images of hallways, empty rooms, waiting rooms and stairways,' Eva says. "Stairs have a sense of mystery — you don't know where they're leading but they invite you up. When I shoot such images, I may not be conscious of their meaning to me, that usually comes later and sometimes through other peoples' eyes and their reactions."

Her pictures of people were greatly influenced by August Sander, the great German photographer, and Irving Penn.

"In portraits, I'm basically doing what I see and feel for myself," Eva says, "but I hope the subject approves the results. We must both find it valid or I won't use it. I like to work by window light or outdoors. I hate using strobe flash for portraits but sometimes there is no other choice if daylight isn't available. It's almost impossible to maintain the right atmosphere in a portrait session with a blinding flash going off periodically."

News quiz

Editor's Note: How much do you remember about the news of the week? If you score fewer than five correct answers, you had better read the paper a little more carefully. If you get eight or more right, you rate an "A."

1. Fuel economy ratings for 1978 cars were released by the Environmental Protection Agency. Winner of the "1978 Gas Mileage Derby" and leading in three of five categories were: (a) eight-cylinder limousines; (b) foreign compacts; (c) diesel-powered cars.

2. The 32nd General Assembly of the United Nations opened in New York, with the admission of Vietnam and Djibouti bringing membership to: (a) 149; (b) 125; (c) 139.

3. Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa announced the dissolution of parliament and provincial councils and called for general elections on: (a) Jan. 1; (b) Dec. 15; (c) Nov. 30.

4. In a brief filed with the Supreme Court, the Carter administration endorsed special consideration for minority groups in university admissions. With regard to specific racial quotas, it: (a) was strongly in favor; (b) avoided the question; (c) was strongly against.

5. An Associated Press public opinion poll found that the treaties that would relinquish U.S. control over the Panama Canal were: (a) approved of by a considerable margin of the American people; (b) opposed by an overwhelming margin; (c) opposed and approved of by equal numbers.

6. President Carter announced he would support the District of Columbia's bid to elect: (a) full-fledged representatives and senators; (b) its own mayor and judges; (c) nonvoting delegates to Congress.

7. The rise in consumer prices last month, three-tenths of one percent, was the smallest monthly increase since last: (a) March; (b) November; (c) June.

8. Twenty-seven religous sects, including the Salvation Army and all but three Christian churches, were banned as security risks from: (a) Israel; (b) Albania; (c) Uganda.

9. An appeal for aid went out, prompted by the possibility of severe food shortages next year if international efforts are not made now to help: (a) Laos; (b) Chad; (c) Chile.

10. The National Center for Health Statistics disclosed a puzzling trend. A study had found that the rate of childbearing and illegitimacy of 15-to 17-year-old girls had: (a) risen slightly; (b) fallen slightly; (c) fallen dramatically.

Broncos fall to UC Davis

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly football fans were treated to a display of fireworks when the Broncos scored Saturday night in their home opener.

The only trouble was the fireworks were shut off in the second half as Poly's offense couldn't do anything against a tough UC Davis defense as the visiting Aggies took a 27-14 decision at Kellogg Field.

Actually, the officials were the big yard gainers in this contest as the whistles blew all night to keep a large home opening night crowd looking for better things to do.

The refs called a 31 penalties in what turned into a sloppy contest with Davis being charged for 206 yards of infractions and Poly 154.

Poly accounted for a grand total of 89 offensive yards (33 on the ground in 43 plays and 56 through the air) while Davis managed 280 (55 on the ground and 225 passing) as it's obvious it's going to take some time to get any kind of consistency going.

The big reasons why Davis is 3-0 and Poly 0-3 after Saturday's performance can be attributed to Poly's problems on pass defense in the second quarter, the inability of Poly ever to get decent field position in the second half and an onsides kick gamble that backfired.

"I guess at this level of competition it's just going to take us longer to put it together than I ever thought," Poly coach Jim Jones said after the loss.

One of Jones' coaching decisions had to be questioned.

Poly had just tied the score at 14-14 with 57 seconds left in the first half when quarterback Sammy Ross ran for nine yards after sophomore Jim Middleton of Pomona returned an interception 66 yards.

UCD then cashed in on its golden opportunity with quarterback Mike Moroski completing his third touchdown pass of the quarter on an one-yard toss to Steve Griffin to give the Aggies a permanent lead (21-14) with 14 seconds left in the half.

Earlier in the quarter, Moroski completed TD tosses of 19 yards to Randy Wilson and 12 yards to Griffin. The scores came 1:07 of each other midway through the period with the second score coming after Mark Markel intercepted a Ross pass at the Bronco 13.

Davis wrapped up the victory with 10:37 left in the game on fullback Fred Wheeler's one-yard TD run to climax a 46-yard drive.

Poly got the home fans excited when the Broncs scored on its first offensive series of the night with Ross running 13 yards for a touchdown to finish a 46-yard march.

Turnover were also a big item in the game with Poly losing four fumbles and seeing three passes intercepted. But the Broncs also recovered four Aggie fumbles and stole four passes.

Owens paces Bruins, 34-16

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ready or not here we come," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue about the Pacific-8 Conference football race following the Bruins' 34-16 intersectional victory over Iowa Saturday night.

"We'll have to wait and see how we'll do," said Donahue, whose team begins Pac-8 play at Stanford next Saturday. "This evens us up on the nonconference season and was a very important win for us to gain our confidence."

Speedy James Ownes zipped 67 yards for a touchdown and Rick Bashore fired two scoring passes to help give the Bruins their second victory against two defeats.

"James' run gave us the momentum we needed," said Donahue. "It came on a trap play which is new in this offense this year. We were pleased to score that many points.

"I felt the defense did an outstanding job and it hasn't played poorly yet," added Donahue. "We needed points on the board to relieve the pressure on the defense and we got that in the first quarter."

"We lost the game in the first five minutes," said Iowa Noach Bob Commings. "UCLA's a heck of a team. Without a doubt, it is the best offensive team we've played."

Owens, who competed as a hurdler in the 1976 Olympics, blasted off right guard and raced to a touch down after just 2:10 of play and the Bruins led the rest of the way, although Iowa scored two fourth quarter touchdowns.

Owens, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound junior, finished the game with 134 yards on 16 carries.

Bashore, the Bruins' sophomore quarterback, hit Glenn Cannon with a six-yard scoring pass in the first quarter, and Don Pederson with a 16-yard TD strike in the third period as UCLA evened its season record at 2-2.

The Bruins, who had been struggling offensively this fall, scored on their first three possessions. Peter Boermeester kicked a 28-yard field goal, the first of his two three-pointers, to give UCLA a 10-0 lead after 7:35 of play, and Bashore's scoring strike to Cannon with 2:56 left in the first quarter made it 17-0.

Iowa's only score until the fourth period was a 42-yard field goal by Dave Holsclaw on the final play of the opening half. That came after a personal foul against UCLA on the kickoff return following Boermeester's second field goal and a 27-yard pass from Bob Commings Jr. to Brad Reid.

Iowa, also 2-2, scored its touchdowns on a six-yard run by Rod Morton and a 26-yard pass from Tom McLaughlin to Mike Brady.

UCLA completed the scoring with 2:10 to play on a 13-yard run by backup quarterback Steve Bukich following a fake punt by Iowa which failed.

Owens became the first UCLA player to rush for more than 100 yards in a game this season.

Bashore, who gave way to Bukich in the third quarter, finished with 10 completions in 16 attempts for 97 yards. He rushed for 73 yards on 17 carries.

Morton led the Hawkeye ground game with 60 yards on 14 attempts. Commings completed just three of nine passes with one interception for 44 yards before being relieved by McLaughlin in the third quarter.

McLaughin connected on 7 of 11 passes for 123 yards in bringing the Iowa offense to life. The Hawkeyes gained only 67 yards in the first half, including the long pass to Reid in the closing seconds.

McLaughlin engineered scoring marches of 84 yards in 11 plays, climaxed by Morton's touchdown with 13:20 left, and 80 yards in four plays ending with his pass to Brady with 7:31 to go.

UCLA's third quarter touchdown was set up by the first freshman Kenny Easley's two interceptions.

The Bruins had only one turnover compared to 13 in their first three games this season. However, UCLA was penalized for more than 100 yards, which possibly kept them from scoring more than they did.

Texas kicker sets FG mark

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas kicker Russell Erxleben set a major college football record Saturday when he connected on a 67-yard field goal in a 72-15 rout of Rice.

The third quarter kick broke the record set last year when Texas A&M's Tony Franklin blasted a 65-yarder.

Erxleben's kick, however, was two yards short of the small college mark. Abilene Christian's Ove Johansson booted a 69-yard field goal last season against East Texas State.

The Longhorns were leading 54-7 when Erxleben set the record. The Horns' kicker was the nation's leading punter last season.

Don Lugo and Webb tie

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Don Antonio Lugo High, in the first varsity home game in the school's history, earned a 20-20 tie with Webb School of Claremont Saturday night at Chino High.

The Conquistadores' performance is going to cost coach John Monger his hair.

"The kids played their hearts out tonight," Monger said after his squad, made up of only sophomores (except for freshman placekicker Luis Zendejas), preserved the tie when Willie Hadsock and Todd Meideros broke through to block Webb's extra point kick with 10 seconds left to play.

"I'm very pleased," Monger continued. "I told them if they won tonight I'd shave off my hair — they played so well I'm still going to do it."

The Conquistadores looked as though they might win the game when scatback Carlos Sanchez took a pitchout and sprinted 76 yards for a touchdown with 2:44 remaining in the game. That score gave the Chino school a 20-14 lead, but Zendejas missed the PAT kick for the first time in five tries this year.

But Webb quarterback Kerry Bensinger directed a nine-play, 69-yard scoring drive to tie the game with 10 seconds left. He completed four passes for 55 yards on that series and ran for the other 14 yards himself. The TD came on a nine-yard screen pass to Leon Harrison.

Bensinger finished the game with 131 yards passing and 50 yards rushing. He completed eight of 24 and was not intercepted.

Sanchez, by virtue of his 76-yard TD, rolled up 128 yards on 17 carries. Teammate Manuel Villalobos also carried 17 times, for a net of 72 yards.

Villalobos ran two yards for a touchdown in the the third quarter after Hadsock came up with his first big kick block of the night. Hadsock got in the way of a Webb punt and Don Lugo took over on the Gaul's nine-yard line.

The Conquistadores made a big goal-line stand midway through the fourth quarter. Webb had a first-and-goal on the DL six but three runs netted just two yards and Bensinger's fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Besides his offensive contributions, Bensinger intercepted a pass and returned it 72 yards for a TD just 10 seconds before the end of the first half. That score gave Webb a 14-7 halftime lead.

Webb totaled 277 yards and 13 first downs to Don Lugo's 226 yards and nine first downs.

Steve Moore, a Don Lugo linebacker who suffered a concussion last week, left the game on a stretcher after a head injury Saturday night.

Don Lugo (0-1-1) will host Lutheran La Verne at Chino High and Webb (0-1-1) will visit Brentwood Friday.

Webb	0	14	0	6	—20
Don Lugo	0	7	7	6	—20

Don Lugo — Malins 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Webb — Larsen 1 run (Richards pass from Bensinger)
Webb — Bensinger 71 pass interception (kick failed)
Don Lugo — Villalobos 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Don Lugo — Sanchez 76 run (kick failed)
Webb — Harrison 9 pass from Bensinger (kick failed)

OUCH!

AUSTIN, Texas — The season grew a bit longer for Rice's beleaguered Owls Saturday, as the University of Texas downed the Houston school 72-15.

Rice is now 0-3 on the year, having been beaten 48-3, 77-0 and 72-15.

Lone bright spot for the Owls Saturday was freshman quarterback Randy Hertel, who passed for the two Rice touchdowns and collected over 200 yards via the airlanes.

Lakers win exhibition

RENO, Nev. (AP) —Kermit Washington converted two three-point plays in a 30-second span in the fourth quarter Saturday night to break a tie and lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 100-93 National Basketball Association exhibition victory over the Golden State Warriors.

The six-point spree vaulted the Lakers from a 79-79 tie to an 85-79 lead the Warriors were unable to overcome in the final six minutes and 30 seconds.

Jamal Wilkes, in his first appearance against his old teammates, scored 16 points to lead the Lakers.

Baltimore helps Yanks clinch flag

While the Yankees' game in New York with the Detroit Tigers was being held up by rain, the Orioles defeated Boston 8-7, killing the Red Sox' last hope of catching the Yankees, the East leaders.

The Yankees had clinched a tie for the East title with a victory against Cleveland last Wednesday night, but had been unable to win a game since. Saturday, they eventually lost their third straight, 10-7 to the Tigers.

The Orioles outslugged the Red Sox with a barrage of six homers, including two by rookie Eddie Murray.

Dave Skaggs, Lee May, Rich Dauer and Doug DeCinces also homered for the Orioles, who were eliminated from the AL East race by the Red Sox Friday night.

Boston's Rick Wise, making his first start since Aug. 19, was bombed for four runs on three homers in three innings as the Orioles rallied from a 4-1 deficit. The victory went to Mike Flanagan, 15-10. Jim Willoughby, 6-2, took the loss.

Ben Oglivie drove in four runs and Jason Thompson had four hits, including a triple and a home run, pacing Detroit's victory. Aurelio Rodriguez added two clutch doubles for the Tigers.

Orioles extend Weaver's pact

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver, who led a young, untested Baltimore team to the verge of a division title, has signed a new contract to manage the Orioles through 1980, the American League club announced Saturday.

It was the first multi-year contract offered to an Oriole manager since Hank Bauer signed a two-year pact following the 1966 season, in which Baltimore won the World Series. Terms of Weaver's contract were not disclosed.

"We thought Earl should be justly rewarded for the outstanding season the Orioles have had," said General Manager Hank Peters in a prepared statement.

With three front-line players—outfielder Reggie Jackson, second baseman Bobby Grich and 20-game winner Wayne Garland—gone in the free agent draft and rookies and young veterans at several key positions, Weaver faced a monumental rebuilding task this season.

Smith's homers guide Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reggie Smith slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of three Dodger pitchers Saturday as Los Angeles defeated the Houston Astros 4-3.

Smith hit a two-run homer in the third inning, his 31st, off loser Joaquin Andujar, 11-8. He hit his 32nd to lead off the fifth inning.

Houston retaliated when Dennis Walling singled home Julio Gonzalez and Jose Cruz later scored on a wild pitch in the sixth.

Burt Hooten, 12-7, hurled the first seven innings for the victory.

Afterward, Smith said he was going through a letdown since the time the Dodgers clinched the pennant a week and a half ago.

"I took some time off, but I lost a lot of my edge," replied the Los Angeles rightfielder. "You're keyed up all season, then win it, and still have all those games left to play. I kind of lost my drive, and it hurt."

Smith said he took extra hitting and now is looking forward to the National League playoff series.

"I wish it would hurry up and start," he said. "I'm sure everything will be different once we get to that workout on Monday."

Leftfielder Dusty Baker doubled in four at-bats and still needs one home run to make the Dodgers the first team in baseball history with four players at 30 or more homers.

"I thought I got it in the fourth inning," said Baker. "I got one more shot at it, against James Rodney Richard and he is hardly the easiest guy to hit home runs against."

Richard, 17-12, will start for Houston in the final game of the regular season today. Roberto Castillo, 1-0, will go for Los Angeles in his first major league start.

Barlow hurls Halo victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike Barlow and Dave LaRoche combined for a three-hitter as the California Angels stopped the American League West champion Kansas City Royals 4-1 Saturday night.

Barlow, 4-2, a right-hander making his first start for California since being acquired from Houston in June 1976, was touched only for singles by George Brett in the fourth and Clint Hurdle in the seventh. LaRoche came on to blank the Royals through the final two innings, allowing only a ninth-inning single to Joe Zdeb.

Kansas City starter Andy Hassler, 9-6, took the loss, giving up all four California runs before giving way to Jim Colborn in the sixth.

Either Hassler or Larry Gura, both left-handers, is expected to pitch against the New York Yankees in the second game of the American League playoffs, which start Wednesday.

Rusty Torres and Ike Hampton led the nine-hit Angel attack with solo home runs as California pecked away for single runs in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings.

Camera angles: teaching photography

Audio-visual 'technique' offers learning reward

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

In a previous column, I described an innovative new method to teach certain facets of photography using modern audio-visual techniques. Peter Nicastro, of Garfield, N.J., founded Photography Learning Systems and introduced a series of lessons which combine a tape-recorded cassette of instructions illustrated by a sequence of slides and a printed studybook for reference. The learning experience can take place anywhere you can set up a screen and slide projector and listen to a tape recorder.

With school sessions under way throughout the country, I found it much more convenient to have one of Nicastro's teaching modules at home. I listened and looked at an "Audio-Visual Portfolio" by Eva Rubenstein. It was a rewarding encounter with a noted photographer whose work is in the collections of major museums here and abroad. It was like having a personal chat with someone whose discerning appraisal of her work and emotions can illuminate your own ideas and motives in picture-taking.

Eva Rubinstein is known for the personal style in her photographic encounters with people and environments. She was the subject of a monograph, one of a series on important photographers, published by Morgan & Morgan. It is remarkable because photography came into her life late, after careers as a dancer and an actress. In 1967, while working in the Long Wharf Theatre in New Haven, Sean Kernan came to photograph the productions. Eva started to assist him ... and was hooked.

Photography became an obsession. She applied herself with passion, working out of a basement darkroom she had set up. Then Eva moved to New York and photography dominated all her activities. She took a course in photography, enrolled in a Lisette Model workshop, devoured photo books and felt the influence of masters like Irving Penn, August Sander, Paul Strand, Cartier-Bresson, Yousuf Karsh, Eugene Smith and Evelyn Hofer.

Among other facets of the craft, Kernan showed Eva what good print quality was like and she worked to perfect her technique in that area. She learned that a print has personality which can be changed through contrast.

"Taking a picture can be instinctive," Eva says, "while printing is a slow, introspective time which I enjoy. I can work for hours until the print says, 'This is the way I look best. This feels right.'"

The format of the lesson itself is an interview by Will Faller, editor of "Photograph" magazine, with Eva Rubinstein. The 34-minute discussion is illustrated with 44 slides, each one advanced by an audible signal on the tape. The photos shown were made in war-torn Ireland, Spain, Romania, Italy and the United States. Faller probes for reasons why she chose each scene and how the creative process produced the images.

"Is your seeing a deliberate act or intuitive?" Faller asks.

"When I see the possibility of a picture," Eva replies, "I put the camera to my eye and the scene in the viewfinder 'happens' or it doesn't. I may shift the camera a bit, eliminating or adding something until it feels 'right.'

"I never studied art or composition seriously so I don't have theories to go by. But when I was younger, I saw a lot of paintings and reacted to them. Maybe I got a sense of design or graphics by osmosis. Most of my later shooting is instinctive."

Eva uses public transportation and walks around a lot with a camera handy for unexpected, interesting vignettes. On a train in Ireland she focused on four schoolboys deeply engrossed in smoking a last cigarette before getting home. In embattled Londonderry, she photographed a battle scene with the feeling that she was safe behind her camera although there were daily casualties.

She found a street corner that "turned her on," a sharp ascending curve that had possibilities. She waited there for more than an hour but her patience paid off. A schoolboy came along going up the steep street just as two elderly men passed him. She clicked. It had symbolism: Youth ascending while old age is on the downward path.

"I shoot a lot of images of hallways, empty rooms, waiting rooms and stairways," Eva says. "Stairs have a sense of mystery — you don't know where they're leading but they invite you up. When I shoot such images, I may not be conscious of their meaning to me, that usually comes later and sometimes through other peoples' eyes and their reactions."

Her pictures of people were greatly influenced by August Sander, the great German photographer, and Irving Penn.

"In portraits, I'm basically doing what I see and feel for myself," Eva says, "but I hope the subject approves the results. We must both find it valid or I won't use it. I like to work by window light or outdoors. I hate using strobe flash for portraits but sometimes there is no other choice if daylight isn't available. It's almost impossible to maintain the right atmosphere in a portrait session with a blinding flash going off periodically."

Broncos fall to UC Davis

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

The only trouble was the fireworks were shut off in the second half as Poly's offense couldn't do anything against a tough UC Davis defense as the visiting Aggies took a 27-14 decision at Kellogg Field.

Actually, the officials were the big yard gainers in this contest as the whistles blew all night to keep a large home opening night crowd looking for better things to do.

The refs called a 31 penalties in what turned into a sloppy contest with Davis being charged for 206 yards of infractions and Poly 154.

Poly accounted for a grand total of 89 offensive yards (33 on the ground in 43 plays and 56 through the air) while Davis managed 280 (55 on the ground and 225 passing) as it's obvious it's going to take some time to get any kind of consistency going.

The big reasons why Davis is 3-0 and Poly 0-3 after Saturday's performance can be attributed to Poly's problems on pass defense in the second quarter, the inability of Poly ever to get decent field position in the second half and an onsides kick gamble that backfired.

"I guess at this level of competition it's just going to take us longer to put it together than I ever thought," Poly coach Jim Jones said after the loss.

Poly had just tied the score at 14-14 with 57 seconds left in the first half when quarterback Sammy Ross ran for nine yards after sophomore Jim Middleton of Pomona returned an interception 66 yards.

UCD then cashed in on its golden opportunity with quarterback Mike Moroski completing his third touchdown pass of the quarter on an one-yard toss to Steve Griffin to give the Aggies a permanent lead (21-14) with 14 seconds left in the half.

Earlier in the quarter, Moroski completed TD tosses of 19 yards to Randy Wilson and 12 yards to Griffin. The scores came 1:07 of each other midway through the period with the second score coming after Mark Markel intercepted a Ross pass at the Bronco 13.

Davis wrapped up the victory with 10:37 left in the game on fullback Fred Wheeler's one-yard TD run to climax a 46-yard drive.

Poly got the home fans excited when the Broncs scored on its first offensive series of the night with Ross running 13 yards for a touchdown to finish a 46-yard march.

Turnover were also a big item in the game with Poly losing four fumbles and seeing three passes intercepted. But the Broncs also recovered four Aggie fumbles and stole four passes.

Owens paces Bruins, 34-16

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ready or not here we come," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue about the Pacific-8 Conference football race following the Bruins' 34-16 intersectional victory over Iowa Saturday night.

"We'll have to wait and see how we'll do," said Donahue, whose team begins Pac-8 play at Stanford next Saturday. "This evens us up on the nonconference season and was a very important win for us to gain our confidence."

Speedy James Ownes zipped 67 yards for a touchdown and Rick Bashore fired two scoring passes to help give the Bruins their second victory against two defeats.

"James' run gave us the momentum we needed," said Donahue. "It came on a trap play which is new in this offense this year. We were pleased to score that many points.

"I felt the defense did an outstanding job and it hasn't played poorly yet," added Donahue. "We needed points on the board to relieve the pressure on the defense and we got that in the first quarter."

"We lost the game in the first five minutes," said Iowa Noach Bob Commings. "UCLA's a heck of a team. Without a doubt, it is the best offensive team we've played."

Owens, who competed as a hurdler in the 1976 Olympics, blasted off right guard and raced to a touch down after just 2:10 of play and the Bruins led the rest of the way, although Iowa scored two fourth quarter touchdowns.

Bashore, the Bruins' sophomore quarterback, hit Glenn Cannon with a six-yard scoring pass in the first quarter, and Don Pederson with a 16-yard TD strike in the third period as UCLA evened its season record at 2-2.

The Bruins, who had been struggling offensively this fall, scored on their first three possessions. Peter Boermeester kicked a 28-yard field goal, the first of his two three-pointers, to give UCLA a 10-0 lead after 7:35 of play, and Bashore's scoring strike to Cannon with 2:56 left in the first quarter made it 17-0.

Iowa's only score until the fourth period was a 42-yard field goal by Dave Holsclaw on the final play of the opening half. That came after a personal foul against UCLA on the kickoff return following Boermeester's second field goal and a 27-yard pass from Bob Commings Jr. to Brad Reid.

Iowa, also 2-2, scored its touchdowns on a six-yard run by Rod Morton and a 26-yard pass from Tom McLaughlin to Mike Brady.

UCLA completed the scoring with 2:10 to play on a 13-yard run by backup quarterback Steve Bukich following a fake punt by Iowa which failed.

Owens became the first UCLA player to rush for more than 100 yards in a game this season.

Bashore, who gave way to Bukich in the third quarter, finished with 10 completions in 16 attempts for 97 yards. He rushed for 73 yards on 17 carries.

Morton led the Hawkeye ground game with 60 yards on 14 attempts. Commings completed just three of nine passes with one interception for 44 yards before being relieved by McLaughlin in the third quarter.

McLaughin connected on 7 of 11 passes for 123 yards in bringing the Iowa offense to life. The Hawkeyes gained only 67 yards in the first half, including the long pass to Reid in the closing seconds.

McLaughlin engineered scoring marches of 84 yards in 11 plays, climaxed by Morton's touchdown with 13:20 left, and 80 yards in four plays ending with his pass to Brady with 7:31 to go.

UCLA's third quarter touchdown was set up by the first freshman Kenny Easley's two interceptions.

The Bruins had only one turnover compared to 13 in their first three games this season. However, UCLA was penalized for more than 100 yards, which possibly kept them from scoring more than they did.

Texas kicker sets FG mark

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas kicker Russell Erxleben set a major college football record Saturday when he connected on a 67-yard field goal in a 72-15 rout of Rice.

The third quarter kick broke the record set last year when Texas A&M's Tony Franklin blasted a 65-yarder.

Erxleben's kick, however, was two yards short of the small college mark. Abilene Christian's Ove Johansson booted a 69-yard field goal last season against East Texas State.

The Longhorns were leading 54-7 when Erxleben set the record. The Horns' kicker was the nation's leading punter last season.

Don Lugo and Webb tie

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Don Antonio Lugo High, in the first varsity home game in the school's history, earned a 20-20 tie with Webb School of Claremont Saturday night at Chino High.

The Conquistadores' performance is going to cost coach John Monger his hair.

"The kids played their hearts out tonight," Monger said after his squad, made up of only sophomores (except for freshman placekicker Luis Zendejas), preserved the tie when Willie Hadsock and Todd Meideros broke through to block Webb's extra point kick with 10 seconds left to play.

"I'm very pleased," Monger continued. "I told them if they won tonight I'd shave off my hair — they played so well I'm still going to do it."

The Conquistadores looked as though they might win the game when scatback Carlos Sanchez took a pitchout and sprinted 76 yards for a touchdown with 2:44 remaining in the game. That score gave the Chino school a 20-14 lead, but Zendejas missed the PAT kick for the first time in five tries this year.

But Webb quarterback Kerry Bensinger directed a nine-play, 69-yard scoring drive to tie the game with 10 seconds left. He completed four passes for 55 yards on that series and ran for the other 14 yards himself. The TD came on a nine-yard screen pass to Leon Harrison.

Bensinger finished the game with 131 yards passing and 50 yards rushing. He completed eight of 24 and was not intercepted.

Sanchez, by virtue of his 76-yard TD, rolled up 128 yards on 17 carries. Teammate Manuel Villalobos also carried 17 times, for a net of 72 yards.

Villalobos ran two yards for a touchdown in the the third quarter after Hadsock came up with his first big kick block of the night. Hadsock got in the way of a Webb punt and Don Lugo took over on the Gaul's nine-yard line.

The Conquistadores made a big goal-line stand midway through the fourth quarter. Webb had a first-and-goal on the DL six but three runs netted just two yards and Bensinger's fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Besides his offensive contributions, Bensinger intercepted a pass and returned it 72 yards for a TD just 10 seconds before the end of the first half. That score gave Webb a 14-7 halftime lead.

Webb totaled 277 yards and 13 first downs to Don Lugo's 226 yards and nine first downs.

Steve Moore, a Don Lugo linebacker who suffered a concussion last week, left the game on a stretcher after a head injury Saturday night.

Don Lugo (0-1-1) will host Lutheran La Verne at Chino High and Webb (0-1-1) will visit Brentwood Friday.

Webb	0	14	0	6—20
Don Lugo	0	7	7	6—20

Don Lugo — Malins 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Webb — Larsen 1 run (Richards pass from Bensinger)
Webb — Bensinger 71 pass interception (kick failed)
Don Lugo — Villalobos 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Don Lugo — Sanchez 76 run (kick failed)

OUCH!

AUSTIN, Texas — The season grew a bit longer for Rice's beleaguered Owls Saturday, as the University of Texas downed the Houston school 72-15.

Rice is now 0-3 on the year, having been beaten 48-3, 77-0 and 72-15.

Lone bright spot for the Owls Saturday was freshman quarterback Randy Hertel, who passed for the two Rice touchdowns and collected over 200 yards via the airlanes.

Lakers win exhibition

RENO, Nev. (AP) —Kermit Washington converted two three-point plays in a 30-second span in the fourth quarter Saturday night to break a tie and lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 100-93 National Basketball Association exhibition victory over the Golden State Warriors.

The six-point spree vaulted the Lakers from a 79-79 tie to an 85-79 lead the Warriors were unable to overcome in the final six minutes and 30 seconds.

Jamal Wilkes, in his first appearance against his old teammates, scored 16 points to lead the Lakers.

Baltimore helps Yanks clinch flag

While the Yankees' game in New York with the Detroit Tigers was being held up by rain, the Orioles defeated Boston 8-7, killing the Red Sox' last hope of catching the Yankees, the East leaders.

The Yankees had clinched a tie for the East title with a victory against Cleveland last Wednesday night, but had been unable to win a game since. Saturday, they eventually lost their third straight, 10-7 to the Tigers.

The Orioles outslugged the Red Sox with a barrage of six homers, including two by rookie Eddie Murray.

Dave Skaggs, Lee May, Rich Dauer and Doug DeCinces also homered for the Orioles, who were eliminated from the AL East race by the Red Sox Friday night.

Boston's Rick Wise, making his first start since Aug. 19, was bombed for four runs on three homers in three innings as the Orioles rallied from a 4-1 deficit. The victory went to Mike Flanagan, 15-10. Jim Willoughby, 6-2, took the loss.

Ben Oglivie drove in four runs and Jason Thompson had four hits, including a triple and a home run, pacing Detroit's victory. Aurelio Rodriguez added two clutch doubles for the Tigers.

Orioles extend Weaver's pact

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver, who led a young, untested Baltimore team to the verge of a division title, has signed a new contract to manage the Orioles through 1980, the American League club announced Saturday.

It was the first multi-year contract offered to an Oriole manager since Hank Bauer signed a two-year pact following the 1966 season, in which Baltimore won the World Series. Terms of Weaver's contract were not disclosed.

"We thought Earl should be justly rewarded for the outstanding season the Orioles have had," said General Manager Hank Peters in a prepared statement.

With three front-line players—outfielder Reggie Jackson, second baseman Bobby Grich and 20-game winner Wayne Garland—gone in the free agent draft and rookies and young veterans at several key positions, Weaver faced a monumental rebuilding task this season.

Smith's homers guide Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reggie Smith slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of three Dodger pitchers Saturday as Los Angeles defeated the Houston Astros 4-3.

Smith hit a two-run homer in the third inning, his 31st, off loser Joaquin Andujar, 11-8. He hit his 32nd to lead off the fifth inning.

Houston retaliated when Dennis Walling singled home Julio Gonzalez and Jose Cruz later scored on a wild pitch in the sixth.

Burt Hooten, 12-7, hurled the first seven innings for the victory.

Afterward, Smith said he was going through a letdown since the time the Dodgers clinched the pennant a week and a half ago.

"I took some time off, but I lost a lot of my edge," replied the Los Angeles rightfielder. "You're keyed up all season, then win it, and still have all those games left to play. I kind of lost my drive, and it hurt."

Smith said he took extra hitting and now is looking forward to the National League playoff series.

"I wish it would hurry up and start," he said. "I'm sure everything will be different once we get to that workout on Monday."

Leftfielder Dusty Baker doubled in four at-bats and still needs one home run to make the Dodgers the first team in baseball history with four players at 30 or more homers.

"I thought I got it in the fourth inning," said Baker. "I got one more shot at it, against James Rodney Richard and he is hardly the easiest guy to hit home runs against."

Richard, 17-12, will start for Houston in the final game of the regular season today. Roberto Castillo, 1-0, will go for Los Angeles in his first major league start.

Barlow hurls Halo victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike Barlow and Dave LaRoche combined for a three-hitter as the California Angels stopped the American League West champion Kansas City Royals 4-1 Saturday night.

Barlow, 4-2, a right-hander making his first start for California since being acquired from Houston in June 1976, was touched only for singles by George Brett in the fourth and Clint Hurdle in the seventh. LaRoche came on to blank the Royals through the final two innings, allowing only a ninth-inning single to Joe Zdeb.

Kansas City starter Andy Hassler, 9-6, took the loss, giving up all four California runs before giving way to Jim Colborn in the sixth.

Either Hassler or Larry Gura, both left-handers, is expected to pitch against the New York Yankees in the second game of the American League playoffs, which start Wednesday.

Rusty Torres and Ike Hampton led the nine-hit Angel attack with solo home runs as California pecked away for single runs in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings.

Camera angles: teaching photography

Audio-visual 'technique' offers learning reward

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

In a previous column, I described an innovative new method to teach certain facets of photography using modern audio-visual techniques. Peter Nicastro, of Garfield, N.J., founded Photography Learning Systems and introduced a series of lessons which combine a tape-recorded cassette of instructions illustrated by a sequence of slides and a printed studybook for reference. The learning experience can take place anywhere you can set up a screen and slide projector and listen to a tape recorder.

With school sessions under way throughout the country, I found it much more convenient to have one of Nicastro's teaching modules at home. I listened and looked at an "Audio-Visual Portfolio" by Eva Rubenstein. It was a rewarding encounter with a noted photographer whose work is in the collections of major museums here and abroad. It was like having a personal chat with someone whose discerning appraisal of her work and emotions can illuminate your own ideas and motives in picture-taking.

Eva Rubinstein is known for the personal style in her photographic encounters with people and environments. She was the subject of a monograph, one of a series on important photographers, published by Morgan & Morgan. It is remarkable because photography came into her life late, after careers as a dancer and an actress. In 1967, while working in the Long Wharf Theatre in New Haven, Sean Kernan came to photograph the productions. Eva started to assist him ... and was hooked.

Photography became an obsession. She applied herself with passion, working out of a basement darkroom she had set up. Then Eva moved to New York and photography dominated all her activities. She took a course in photography, enrolled in a Lisette Model workshop, devoured photo books and felt the influence of masters like Irving Penn, August Sander, Paul Strand, Cartier-Bresson, Yousuf Karsh, Eugene Smith and Evelyn Hofer.

Among other facets of the craft, Kernan showed Eva what good print quality was like and she worked to perfect her technique in that area. She learned that a print has personality which can be changed through contrast.

"Taking a picture can be instinctive," Eva says, "while printing is a slow, introspective time which I enjoy. I can work for hours until the print says, 'This is the way I look best. This feels right.'"

The format of the lesson itself is an interview by Will Faller, editor of "Photograph" magazine, with Eva Rubinstein. The 34-minute discussion is illustrated with 44 slides, each one advanced by an audible signal on the tape. The photos shown were made in war-torn Ireland, Spain, Romania, Italy and the United States. Faller probes for reasons why she chose each scene and how the creative process produced the images.

"Is your seeing a deliberate act or intuitive?" Faller asks.

"When I see the possibility of a picture," Eva replies, "I put the camera to my eye and the scene in the viewfinder 'happens' or it doesn't. I may shift the camera a bit, eliminating or adding something until it feels 'right.'

"I never studied art or composition seriously so I don't have theories to go by. But when I was younger, I saw a lot of paintings and reacted to them. Maybe I got a sense of design or graphics by osmosis. Most of my later shooting is instinctive."

Eva uses public transportation and walks around a lot with a camera handy for unexpected, interesting vignettes. On a train in Ireland she focused on four schoolboys deeply engrossed in smoking a last cigarette before getting home. In embattled Londonderry, she photographed a battle scene with the feeling that she was safe behind her camera although there were daily casualties.

She found a street corner that "turned her on," a sharp ascending curve that had possibilities. She waited there for more than an hour but her patience paid off. A schoolboy came along going up the steep street just as two elderly men passed him. She clicked. It had symbolism: Youth ascending while old age is on the downward path.

"I shoot a lot of images of hallways, empty rooms, waiting rooms and stairways," Eva says. "Stairs have a sense of mystery — you don't know where they're leading but they invite you up. When I shoot such images, I may not be conscious of their meaning to me, that usually comes later and sometimes through other peoples' eyes and their reactions."

Her pictures of people were greatly influenced by August Sander, the great German photographer, and Irving Penn.

"In portraits, I'm basically doing what I see and feel for myself," Eva says, "but I hope the subject approves the results. We must both find it valid or I won't use it. I like to work by window light or outdoors. I hate using strobe flash for portraits but sometimes there is no other choice if daylight isn't available. It's almost impossible to maintain the right atmosphere in a portrait session with a blinding flash going off periodically."

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly football fans were treated to a display of fireworks when the Broncos scored Saturday night in their home opener.

The only trouble was the fireworks were shut off in the second half as Poly's offense couldn't do anything against a tough UC Davis defense as the visiting Aggies took a 27-14 decision at Kellogg Field.

Actually, the officials were the big yard gainers in this contest as the whistles blew all night to keep a large home opening night crowd looking for better things to do.

The refs called a 31 penalties in what turned into a sloppy contest with Davis being charged for 206 yards of infractions and Poly 154.

Poly accounted for a grand total of 89 offensive yards (33 on the ground in 43 plays and 56 through the air) while Davis managed 280 (55 on the ground and 225 passing) as it's obvious it's going to take some time to get any kind of consistency going.

The big reasons why Davis is 3-0 and Poly 0-3 after Saturday's performance can be attributed to Poly's problems on pass defense in the second quarter, the inability of Poly ever to get decent field position in the second half and an onsides kick gamble that backfired.

"I guess at this level of competition it's just going to take us longer to put it together than I ever thought," Poly coach Jim Jones said after the loss.

One of Jones' coaching decisions had to be questioned.

Poly had just tied the score at 14-14 with 57 seconds left in the first half when quarterback Sammy Ross ran for nine yards after sophomore Jim Middleton of Pomona returned an interception 66 yards.

UCD then cashed in on its golden opportunity with quarterback Mike Moroski completing his third touchdown pass of the quarter on an one-yard toss to Steve Griffin to give the Aggies a permanent lead (21-14) with 14 seconds left in the half.

Earlier in the quarter, Moroski completed TD tosses of 19 yards to Randy Wilson and 12 yards to Griffin. The scores came 1:07 of each other midway through the period with the second score coming after Mark Markei intercepted a Ross pass at the Bronco 13.

Davis wrapped up the victory with 10:37 left in the game on fullback Fred Wheeler's one-yard TD run to climax a 46-yard drive.

Poly got the home fans excited when the Broncs scored on its first offensive series of the night with Ross running 13 yards for a touchdown to finish a 46-yard march.

Turnover were also a big item in the game with Poly losing four fumbles and seeing three passes intercepted. But the Broncs also recovered four Aggie fumbles and stole four passes.

Owens paces Bruins, 34-16

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ready or not here we come," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue about the Pacific-8 Conference football race following the Bruins' 34-16 intersectional victory over Iowa Saturday night.

"We'll have to wait and see how we'll do," said Donahue, whose team begins Pac-8 play at Stanford next Saturday. "This evens us up on the nonconference season and was a very important win for us to gain our confidence."

Speedy James Ownes zipped 67 yards for a touchdown and Rick Bashore fired two scoring passes to help give the Bruins their second victory against two defeats.

"James' run gave us the momentum we needed," said Donahue. "It came on a trap play which is new in this offense this year. We were pleased to score that many points.

"I felt the defense did an outstanding job and it hasn't played poorly yet," added Donahue. "We needed points on the board to relieve the pressure on the defense and we got that in the first quarter."

"We lost the game in the first five minutes," said Iowa Noach Bob Commings. "UCLA's a heck of a team. Without a doubt, it is the best offensive team we've played."

Owens, who competed as a hurdler in the 1976 Olympics, blasted off right guard and raced to a touch down after just 2:10 of play and the Bruins led the rest of the way, although Iowa scored two fourth quarter touchdowns.

Bashore, the Bruins' sophomore quarterback, hit Glenn Cannon with a six-yard scoring pass in the first quarter, and Don Pederson with a 16-yard TD strike in the third period as UCLA evened its season record at 2-2.

The Bruins, who had been struggling offensively this fall, scored on their first three possessions. Peter Boermeester kicked a 28-yard field goal, the first of his two three-pointers, to give UCLA a 10-0 lead after 7:35 of play, and Bashore's scoring strike to Cannon with 2:56 left in the first quarter made it 17-0.

Iowa's only score until the fourth period was a 42-yard field goal by Dave Holsclaw on the final play of the opening half. That came after a personal foul against UCLA on the kickoff return following Boermeester's second field goal and a 27-yard pass from Bob Commings Jr. to Brad Reid.

Iowa, also 2-2, scored its touchdowns on a six-yard run by Rod Morton and a 26-yard pass from Tom McLaughlin to Mike Brady.

UCLĀ completed the scoring with 2:10 to play on a 13-yard run by backup quarterback Steve Bukich following a fake punt by Iowa which failed.

Owens became the first UCLA player to rush for more than 100 yards in a game this season.

Bashore, who gave way to Bukich in the third quarter, finished with 10 completions in 16 attempts for 97 yards. He rushed for 73 yards on 17 carries.

Morton led the Hawkeye ground game with 60 yards on 14 attempts. Commings completed just three of nine passes with one interception for 44 yards before being relieved by McLaughlin in the third quarter.

McLaughin connected on 7 of 11 passes for 123 yards in bringing the Iowa offense to life. The Hawkeyes gained only 67 yards in the first half, including the long pass to Reid in the closing seconds.

McLaughlin engineered scoring marches of 84 yards in 11 plays, climaxed by Morton's touchdown with 13:20 left, and 80 yards in four plays ending with his pass to Brady with 7:31 to go.

UCLA's third quarter touchdown was set up by the first freshman Kenny Easley's two interceptions.

The Bruins had only one turnover compared to 13 in their first three games this season. However, UCLA was penalized for more than 100 yards, which possibly kept them from scoring more than they did.

Texas kicker sets FG mark

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas kicker Russell Erxleben set a major college football record Saturday when he connected on a 67-yard field goal in a 72-15 rout of Rice.

The third quarter kick broke the record set last year when Texas A&M's Tony Franklin blasted a 65-yarder.

Erxleben's kick, however, was two yards short of the small college mark. Abilene Christian's Ove Johansson booted a 69-yard field goal last season against East Texas State.

The Longhorns were leading 54-7 when Erxleben set the record. The Horns' kicker was the nation's leading punter last season.

Don Lugo and Webb tie

Don Antonio Lugo High, in the first varsity home game in the school's history, earned a 20-20 tie with Webb School of Claremont Saturday night at Chino High.

The Conquistadores' performance is going to cost coach John Monger his hair.

"The kids played their hearts out tonight," Monger said after his squad, made up of only sophomores (except for freshman placekicker Luis Zendejas), preserved the tie when Willie Hadsock and Todd Meideros broke through to block Webb's extra point kick with 10 seconds left to play.

"I'm very pleased," Monger continued. "I told them if they won tonight I'd shave off my hair — they played so well I'm still going to do it."

The Conquistadores looked as though they might win the game when scatback Carlos Sanchez took a pitchout and sprinted 76 yards for a touchdown with 2:44 remaining in the game. That score gave the Chino school a 20-14 lead, but Zendejas missed the PAT kick for the first time in five tries this year.

But Webb quarterback Kerry Bensinger directed a nine-play, 69-yard scoring drive to tie the game with 10 seconds left. He completed four passes for 55 yards on that series and ran for the other 14 yards himself. The TD came on a nine-yard screen pass to Leon Harrison.

Bensinger finished the game with 131 yards passing and 50 yards rushing. He completed eight of 24 and was not intercepted.

Sanchez, by virtue of his 76-yard TD, rolled up 128 yards on 17 carries. Teammate Manuel Villalobos also carried 17 times, for a net of 72 yards.

Villalobos ran two yards for a touchdown in the the third quarter after Hadsock came up with his first big kick block of the night. Hadsock got in the way of a Webb punt and Don Lugo took over on the Gaul's nine-yard line.

The Conquistadores made a big goal-line stand midway through the fourth quarter. Webb had a first-and-goal on the DL six but three runs netted just two yards and Bensinger's fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Besides his offensive contributions, Bensinger intercepted a pass and returned it 72 yards for a TD just 10 seconds before the end of the first half. That score gave Webb a 14-7 halftime lead.

Webb totaled 277 yards and 13 first downs to Don Lugo's 226 yards and nine first downs.

Steve Moore, a Don Lugo linebacker who suffered a concussion last week, left the game on a stretcher after a head injury Saturday night.

Don Lugo (0-1-1) will host Lutheran La Verne at Chino High and Webb (0-1-1) will visit Brentwood Friday.

AUSTIN, Texas — The season grew a bit longer for Rice's beleaguered Owls Saturday, as the University of Texas downed the Houston school 72-15.

Rice is now 0-3 on the year, having been beaten 48-3, 77-0 and 72-15.

Lone bright spot for the Owls Saturday was freshman quarterback Randy Hertel, who passed for the two Rice touchdowns and collected over 200 yards via the airlanes.

Lakers win exhibition

RENO, Nev. (AP) —Kermit Washington converted two three-point plays in a 30-second span in the fourth quarter Saturday night to break a tie and lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 100-93 National Basketball Association exhibition victory over the Golden State Warriors.

The six-point spree vaulted the Lakers from a 79-79 tie to an 85-79 lead the Warriors were unable to overcome in the final six minutes and 30 seconds.

Jamal Wilkes, in his first appearance against his old teammates, scored 16 points to lead the Lakers.

Smith's homers guide Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reggie Smith slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of three Dodger pitchers Saturday as Los Angeles defeated the Houston Astros 4-3.

Smith hit a two-run homer in the third inning, his 31st, off loser Joaquin Andujar, 11-8. He hit his 32nd to lead off the fifth inning.

Houston retaliated when Dennis Walling singled home Julio Gonzalez and Jose Cruz later scored on a wild pitch in the sixth.

Burt Hooten, 12-7, hurled the first seven innings for the victory.

Afterward, Smith said he was going through a letdown since the time the Dodgers clinched the pennant a week and a half ago.

"I took some time off, but I lost a lot of my edge," replied the Los Angeles rightfielder. "You're keyed up all season, then win it, and still have all those games left to play. I kind of lost my drive, and it hurt."

Smith said he took extra hitting and now is looking forward to the National League playoff series.

"I wish it would hurry up and start," he said. "I'm sure everything will be different once we get to that workout on Monday."

Leftfielder Dusty Baker doubled in four at-bats and still needs one home run to make the Dodgers the first team in baseball history with four players at 30 or more homers.

"I thought I got it in the fourth inning," said Baker. "I got one more shot at it, against James Rodney Richard, and he is hardly the easiest guy to hit home runs against."

Richard, 17-12, will start for Houston in the final game of the regular season today. Roberto Castillo, 1-0, will go for Los Angeles in his first major league start.

Barlow hurls Halo victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike Barlow and Dave LaRoche combined for a three-hitter as the California Angels stopped the American League West champion Kansas City Royals 4-1 Saturday night.

Barlow, 4-2, a right-hander making his first start for California since being acquired from Houston in June 1976, was touched only for singles by George Brett in the fourth and Clint Hurdle in the seventh. LaRoche came on to blank the Royals through the final two innings, allowing only a ninth-inning single to Joe Zdeb.

Kansas City starter Andy Hassler, 9-6, took the loss, giving up all four California runs before giving way to Jim Colborn in the sixth.

Either Hassler or Larry Gura, both left-handers, is expected to pitch against the New York Yankees in the second game of the American League playoffs, which start Wednesday.

Rusty Torres and Ike Hampton led the nine-hit Angel attack with solo home runs as California pecked away for single runs in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings.

Baltimore helps Yanks clinch flag

The New York Yankees clinched the American League East pennant Saturday with help from the Baltimore Orioles.

While the Yankees' game in New York with the Detroit Tigers was being held up by rain, the Orioles defeated Boston 8-7, killing the Red Sox' last hope of catching the Yankees, the East leaders.

The Yankees had clinched a tie for the East title with a victory against Cleveland last Wednesday night, but had been unable to win a game since. Saturday, they eventually lost their third straight, 10-7 to the Tigers.

The Orioles outslugged the Red Sox with a barrage of six homers, including two by rookie Eddie Murray.

Dave Skaggs, Lee May, Rich Dauer and Doug DeCinces also homered for the Orioles, who were eliminated from the AL East race by the Red Sox Friday night.

Boston's Rick Wise, making his first start since Aug. 19, was bombed for four runs on three homers in three innings as the Orioles rallied from a 4-1 deficit. The victory went to Mike Flanagan, 15-10. Jim Willoughby, 6-2, took the loss.

Ben Oglivie drove in four runs and Jason Thompson had four hits, including a triple and a home run, pacing Detroit's victory. Aurelio Rodriguez added two clutch doubles for the Tigers.

Orioles extend Weaver's pact

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver, who led a young, untested Baltimore team to the verge of a division title, has signed a new contract to manage the Orioles through 1980, the American League club announced Saturday.

It was the first multi-year contract offered to an Oriole manager since Hank Bauer signed a two-year pact following the 1966 season, in which Baltimore won the World Series. Terms of Weaver's contract were not disclosed.

"We thought Earl should be justly rewarded for the outstanding season the Orioles have had," said General Manager Hank Peters in a prepared statement.

With three front-line players—outfielder Reggie Jackson, second baseman Bobby Grich and 20-game winner Wayne Garland—gone in the free agent draft and rookies and young veterans at several key positions, Weaver faced a monumental rebuilding task this season.

Mounties post win

Playing opportunistic football, Mt. San Antonio College evened its non-conference record Saturday night by drubbing L.A. Harbor 24-7.

The Mounties used three fumble recoveries by Gary Orantes and a 70-yard return by Bobby Epps with a blocked field goal attempt to fashion the victory in their last tune-up before next week's South Coast Conference opener against San Diego Mesa.

MSAC had difficulty getting started against Harbor as the Seahawks held the Mounties to only 74 yards in the first half.

Harbor led 7-0 at intermission on the strength of 67-yard drive midway through the second period. The key play in the drive was a 39-yard screen pass to Harry Bell, who was knocked out of bounds on the MSAC one. Bell carried it over on the next play.

Thoroughly stifled in the first half, MSAC could only manage field goal attempts from the 27 and 38, with both kicks failing.

In the second half the Mounties got on the board when John Cowper capped a 40-yard drive with a 22-yard field goal.

The drive began following a fumble recovery by Orantes.

MSAC went ahead to stay late in the third quarter when Orantes recovered another fumble, this time on the Harbor 20, and scored four plays later on Stan Webster's one-yard plunge. The big play was a pass interference call that gave MSAC the ball on the one.

Harbor tried to come back in the fourth quarter when they took over on the MSAC 45-yard line following a punt. The Seahawks drove inside the MSAC 20 before being stalled.

On fourth down Harbor lined up for what would have been a tying field goal, but MSAC's Epps stormed through the Seahawk's line, blocked the kick, fielded the ball cleanly on one bounce and raced 70 yards for a touchdown.

Citrus also posted a win Saturday night by holding off host Rio Hondo, 27-24.

Quarterback Brian Johnson, playing in place of Ken Eriksen, passed for one touchdown and ran for another while Owl placekicker Eddie Neil kicked two field goals and added a couple PATs.

Eriksen, the regular Owl QB, suffered a minor leg injury in the first period but is expected to play in the Owls' next outing.

The win was the first of the year for Citrus after two losses. Rio Hondo is now 0-2-1 on the season.

L.V. Lutheran loses, 27-0

An undermanned La Verne Lutheran High squad was just no match for visiting Irvine High Saturday night as the hosts were blanked 27-0 at Damien High.

Lutheran started the game without the services of five starters and lost two more during the course of the game. Two of the seven out were the starting backfield. The Trojans are now only 15 players strong.

Lutheran held Irvine to a scoreless tie after the first quarter and only trailed 7-0 at halftime. Irvine added 14 points in the third quarter to put the game out of reach.

The only bright spot for La Verne was Craig Downey who rushed for 81 yards on 14 carries. On defense Downey made 10 unassisted tackled and eight assisted.

La Verne will be on the road next Friday night when it plays Don Lugo at Chino High.

Leos romp to 42-20 win

La Verne piled up 438 yards total offense and built a 35-0 lead through the first half before P-P could score.

Frick put the Leopards in front early with touchdown runs of 43 and 11 yards. Frick also scored the last Leo TD of the night returning a kickoff 95 yards in the third quarter.

Sagehen quarterback Lyle Lansdell passed for 190 yards including scoring passes of six and 15 yards.

Leo placekicker Andy Ford was perfect on six extra point attempts.

The contest was called with 1:30 left to play when an altercation occured between the Sagehen sidelines and the officials.

Sports briefs

Vikings ink Manfred Moore

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League Saturday activated and signed Manfred Moore, 6-foot-2, 200pound running back who will be used chiefly for returning kickoffs and punts.

Moore, who played college football at Southern California, most recently was with the Oakland Raiders and played for the San Francisco 49ers.

In order to activate Moore, the Vikings placed Keith Hartwig on waivers. Hartwig is a wide receive who was an 11thround draft choice out of Arizona.

Rankin shares lead

DALLAS (AP) — Judy Rankin and Jan Stephenson fired two-under par 70s Saturday to share the lead with 143s in the $50,000 Dallas Civitan Open.

Proud Birdie scores upset

NEW YORK (AP) — Longshot Proud Birdie took the lead turning for home and outdueled Private Thoughts through the stretch Saturday to win the $279,600 Marlboro Cup at Belmont Park.

The victory was only the second in 13 starts this year for the 4-year-old colt owned by Marablue Farm and ridden by Jacinto Vasquez. Both wins have been in stakes.

Archer ties course record

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — George Archer, unrattled by a threeputt bogey on the first hole, came back with 10 birdies and tied the course record with a 63 Saturday which gave him a four-stroke lead after three rounds of Napa's $200,000 pro golf tournament.

James Hunt claims pole

Hunt, the 29-year-old world champion from Britain, posted a track record speed of 120.53 miles per hour Friday to gain the coveted inside front row starting position in the field of 26.

Yanks protest ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner and club prseident Gabe Paul on Saturday criticized American League President Lee MacPhail who denied the Yankees a 25th player for the league playoffs, should New York win the AL East Division championship.

The Yankees fell one man below the limit in mid-September when they sent outfielder Carlos May to the California Angels. Baseball rules state that post-season playing roster must be frozen on Aug. 31.

Former Huskie star dies

SEATTLE (AP) — William Jennings Coyle, one of the last members of the legendary Gil Dobie's unbeaten football teams at the University of Washington, died Saturday. He was 89.

"Wee" Coyle was the star quarterback during the golden age of Huskies football. He was a four-year letterman in football, baseball and track at Washington.

Hubert Green falters

WORKSOP, England (AP) — Guy Hunt of England claimed the first victory of his indifferent 14-year pro career when Brian Barnes three-putted the third playoff hole and let Hunt escape with the title in the mistake-filled $70,000 British Masters golf tournament.

American star Hubert Green was tied for the lead with only four holes to go but again fell victim to the putting miseries that have plagued him all week, three-putted for six on two consecutive holes, and drifted back to a tie for fifth after a wind-blown 75 and a 295 total.

Top-ranked Oklahoma opened Big Eight Conference play with a solid victory over Kansas, Michigan overwhelmed Texas A&M in an intersectional showdown and fourth-rated Penn State was knocked off by Kentucky in key college football games Saturday.

Oklahoma showed no signs of a letdown after last week's thrilling victory over Ohio State, dominating Kansas from the opening kickoff en route to a 24-9 triumph as quarterback Thomas Lott rushed for 102 yards and three touchdowns — frcm eight, nine and four yards out.

"It wasn't hard for us to get up today," said Lott, discounting talk of a letdown. "We play off our pride. We always want to look our best."

Coach Barry Switzer said it was indeed the best Oklahoma has looked this season.

"We controled the game and kept good field position until the game was won," he said. "I think we gained some confidence today, and that should help us when we cross the Red River next week."

Oklahoma meets No. 8 Texas in Dallas next Saturday.

Michigan, rated third after lackluster victories over Duke and Navy, came on strong and overpowered fifth-ranked Texas A&M 41-3 behind fullback Russell Davis, who rushed for 110 yards and scored twice.

Texas A&M's 270-pound fullback, George Woodard, lugged the ball 39 times for 153 yards, but for the most part was well contained by Michigan's defensive unit led by Ron Simpkins, who made 10 solo tackles and assisted on four more.

"They beat us in every area of football — offense, defense and kicking," said Texas A&M Coach Emory Bellard. "They did a toroughly complete job on us."

Kentucky held Penn State scoreless in the second half and beat the Nittany Lions as Joe Bryant kicked a 30-yard field goal and quarterback Derrick Ramsey scored on a 1-yard touchdown run, both in the third period.

In other afternoon games involving Top Ten teams, No. 7 Colorado coasted past Army 31 0, Texas clobbered Rice 72-15 and No. 10 Alabama defeated Georgia 18-10.

Among the Second Ten, No. 11 Nebraska beat Indiana 31-13, No. 13 Texas Tech got past North Carolina 10-7, No. 14 Notre Dame stopped Michigan State 16-6, No. 16 Pittsburgh whipped Boston College 45-7, No. 17 California crushed San Jose State 52-3 and No. 18 Mississippi State edged Kansas State 24-21.

Two other Top Twenty teams were big winners Friday night. No. 2 Southern Cal overwhelmed Washington State 41-7 and No. 15 Brigham Young outclassed New Mexico 54-19. Brigham Young quarterback Gifford Nielsen had another big game, completing 19 of 23 passes for 273 yards and five touchdowns.

Howard Ballage scored on runs of 10 and 59 yards and Mark Haynes returned an interception 97 yards for a touchdown as Colorado blanked Army. Ballage, making his first start of the season, carried 15 times for 128 yards and also caught two passes for 24 yards. The Buffs' defense limited Army's Leamon Hall to 160 yards passing.

Locals have big day at Yucaipa Invite

YUCAIPA — Local high schools entered in the Yucaipa Invitational Cross Country Meet Saturday turned in some impressive outings.

Team honors went to Walnut, Pomona and Garey, while individual honors were copped by Garey's Joe Ramirez.

Walnut surprised pre-tourney favorite Claremont to win the varsity and junior varsity races in the tournament's Division 3. Walnut beat out Norco 33-51 for the varsity first and won out over Central 37-45 for the top spot in the J.V. race.

Claremont was fourth in Division 3 varsity and fifth in the frosh-soph race, which was won by Colton with Walnut finishing second.

In the tourney's Division 2 bracket, Pomona won the frosh-soph title with 43 points, with Garey second with 60. Apple Valley won the J.V. and varsity races in Division 2, with Garey second on the varsity level.

The Vikings' second place finish was paced by Ramirez, who turned in the best time of the day in the tourney with a blistering 15:54 on the three-mile course. Ed Allen of Pomona was second in the same race with a 16:35 clocking.

Over 30 Southland high schools were competing in the tourney. Locals will be returning to league dual meet action this Thursday.

A 'wet' farewell for Pele

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Politicians, celebrities and — above all — the fans who love him so much came to bid farewell to a tearful Pele Saturday. The king of soccer ended his 22-year competitive career with an emotion-filled ceremony and one last exhibition match.

After being showered with plaques and medals and ovations from the capacity 76,891 crowd at Giants Stadium here, the "Black Pearl" stepped to the microphone at the center circle to address the throng and television audiences in 40 countries around the world.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I am very happy to be here with you in this moment of my life," the Brazilian star said in halting English. "I want to thank you all, and I want to take this opportunity to ask you in this moment — when the world looks to me — to take more attention to the young ones, to the kids all over the world.

"We need them too much. And I want to ask you, because I believe love is the most important thing in the world that we can take in life: people, say with me three times, love, love, love."

After each time he said "love", the mass repeated it — rising to a crescendo the final time. Pele said, "Thank you very much." Then in Portuguese, "Muito obrigado."

Then came the tears he had fought to hold back. He covered his face with his hands and faltered for a moment before being comforted by Carlos Alberto — his teammate on the Cosmos this North American Soccer League championship season and Pele's captain on the 1970 Brazilian National team that won the World Cup.

Quick to reach his side were Bobby Moore, captain of England's 1966 World Cup champions; Franz Beckenbauer, a Cosmo teammate and captain of West Germany's 1974 World Cup champions, and then Pele's family.

Then came the 1,356th game of his career in which the Cosmos played Santos of Brazil — for whom he scored 1,090 goals in 1,114 games before retiring in 1974 and joining the Cosmos in 1975.

Pele played the first half for the Cosmos, then changed uniforms at halftime and finished the contest in Santos colors.

CLC 'boots' Stags, 37-13

By BARRY ZEPEL
BP Correspondent

In beating Claremont-Mudd 37-13 on Saturday afternoon, a more experienced Cal Lutheran team put the "foot" back into football.

The victorious Kingsmen utilized five field goals by senior Brad Hoffman to easily control the host Stags through the first three periods. Hoffman had the range for distances of 37, 32, 12 and 25 yards and two others of yards each as Cal Lutheran was able to experiment with four quarterbacks.

Before starting signal-caller John Kindred took control of the offense, teammate Eric Murphy put six points on the board for the Kingsmen with a 95-yard kickoff return. That tied the score at 7-7, as C-M scored first on a five-yard run by junior tailback Steve Slattery.

The only other touchdown for the Kingsmen came on a 39-yard pass from second-string quarterback Casey McLaughlin to junior wide receiver Chris Hoff, with 7:34 remaining in the game.

The Stags didn't protect quarterback Don Chester very well, as he was sacked on three occasions. Under pressure most of the game from a strong Cal Lutheran defensive line, the sophomore completed five of nine pass attempts for 113 yards.

Going all the way, Chester scored C-M's final six points on a two-yard run as he attempted to rally his team back in the final period. That drive was ignited on a 30-yard pass to split end Doug Hathaway, putting the ball on the Cal Lutheran 21-yard line.

Stags' head coach John Zinda, admitting that Chester was under tremendous pressure, said, "Don hung tough and ran the team well. However he needs to work on his passing."

Zinda, with 25 new players on his roster this season, had planned to use the first three games, all non-conference, to allow his team to improve in time for the start of the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season.

"We're progressing at the pace I anticipated," Zinda noted. "Even though we lost by a big score, we were up against a powerful Cal Lutheran squad with great depth that is traditionally one of the powerhouses in the NAIA

In gathering 136 yards on the ground in 53 plays, the Stags were led by senior tailback Jimmy Reed, who ran for 96 yards in 20 carries. Slattery added 29 yards in eight attempts.

Hoping to improve his kicking game, Zinda added placekicker Dave Goldstein to the roster last week, and the former C-M soccer player nearly connected with a 45-yard field goal the ball falling just short.

Village tops Calvary, 14-8

SUN VALLEY — Host Village Christian recovered three of Calvary Baptist's eight fumbles Saturday afternoon on the way to a 14-8 triumph over the La Verne school.

Village, leading 6-0 in the third quarter, made it 14-0 when Steve Knudsen scooped up Calvary fullback Robert Turner's fumble at the Calvary two and ran it in for a TD.

Calvary scored later in the third period on a 49-yard pass from Steve Arrechea to Jeff Bryan, who caught three passes for 65 yards and intercepted two.

Mazmanian wins honor

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Art Mazmanian was named Manager of the Year this summer at the helm of Oneonta in the New York-Penn League.

"We won the pennant and playoffs, so it was a very rewarding season," Mazmanian said. "I was fortunate enough to be voted manager of the year. It was a nice honor to win it over nine other teams."

Mazmanian, head baseball coach at Mt. San Antonio College, directed the New York Yankees' class A farm club to a 47-23 record. Oneonta won the Eastern Division pennant by four-and-one-half games over Toronto's Utica team. Oneonta then defeated Cleveland's Batavia squad 4-3 and 5-3 for the league championship.

Mazmanian commented, "We played a 72-game schedule in a very good league without any of the Yankees' high draft choices."

It was the ninth managing assignment in organized ball for the Mountie mentor in 21 years. He began managing in the pros in 1956 in the now defunct Nebraska State League. It was the very first rookie league formed in baseball.

"The league is classified as class A ball but it's really a rookie league," Mazmanian said of the NYP loop. "For some of the clubs it is their A team but with the Yankees it was really their rookie club. Their A team is actually at Fort Lauderdale in the Florida State League."

The Yanks, Mets, Cleveland, Toronto, Montreal, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Milwaukee Boston and Chicago Cubs have clubs in the New York-Penn League.

Oneonta had a winning percentage of .671 under Mazmanian, and only Lodi (Dodgers) in the California League had a higher winning percentage in organized ball, .686.

"We actually had a higher percentage until the last eight or nine days. We clinched the pennant and we rested some guys to get ready for the playoffs."

Mazmanian's crew, made up mostly of college-age players, had three batters hit over .300.

"There were very few high school players in the league," said Maz. "We had a good bunch of kids who were mostly college kids. Today, in baseball 80 percent of your first-year players are coming out of college. It's very difficult for a high school player to make it these days."

ART MAZMANIAN . . .
. . . MSAC mentor

The Mounties' mentor is no stranger to professional ball. He began with the Kansas City Athletics' organization as he managed in the Nebraska State League for four years until that league folded. Mazmanian then scouted on a part-time basis during the summer months until 1971 when the Dodgers asked him to return to managing.

"The Dodgers call me and asked me to manage in the Pioneer League," Mazmanian remembers. "I managed for the Giants in the same league in 1973-74, and last year Baltimore called and asked me to manage a co-op team.

"That's a team where all the other teams in the league chip in and give you players. Usually you have the rejects who couldn't make their number-one team. The reason for a co-op is that a league may be short a team. This way, with the co-op you have an even number of clubs to play out the schedule."

Mazmanian's 1971 Twin Falls co-op team surprised the baseball world by finishing third. The Angels' Jerry Remy and the Cardinals' Butch Metzger (co-rookie of the year in the National League in 1976) were given to the Twin Falls outfit. Under Mazmanian's guidance, Remy hit .308 in 32 games, while Metzger was 6-5 with a 3.91 ERA and had 108 strikeouts in 106 innings.

Last season, Mazmanian managed Pulaski in the Appalachian League. It was a co-op for the Phillies and Orioles.

"There is no difference between junior college and A ball as far as I'm concerned," Mazmanian claims. "I treat them both the same. The difference is that you're playing a game every night in the pros.

"That's why I enjoy managing more than coaching. In coaching you practice three or four times a week and you're lucky if you play three games. I love managing with games every night."

Asked what he gets out of the game as a coach or manager, Maz replied: "Anytime you think you've done a good job it's satisfaction. When you see players improve there's a reward there for a coach. If the players don't improve and they're not playing up to their capabilities, then you feel badly because you feel you're not reaching them as a coach.

"Winning isn't the judge of good coaching; it's talent that wins. The good coach will be the same whether he had good or bad players.

"I try to be the same regardless and I try to get this across to my players, that if we win it will be because we have the talent. If we lose, it will happen because the talent is short. I'm going to do my job one way or the other."

OMS to host NHRA drags

Drag racing's 1977 Winston World Championship season concludes Oct. 7-9 at Ontario Motor Speedway with the 13th renewal of the National Hot Rod Association's Winston World Finals, last event in a 44-race, $4 million Canadian-American series.

The World Finals, boasting a cash and contingency awards purse of $249,000 and bonus awards amounting to another $100,000, is an event in which the race track has become as big a star as professional drivers like Shirley Muldowney, Don Garlits, Don Prudhomme and Don Nicholson.

OMS, which usually hosts the NASCAR late models, motorcycles and USAC champ cars, opens up to championship drag racing but once a year. Yet more records have been established at that one race — the World Finals — than at any other single event.

OMS was the stie of the first official five second elapsed time by a Top Fuel dragster (1972), the first 8.60 second time by a Pro Stock car (1973), the first five second time by a Funny Car (1975), the first 240 mile an hour speed by a Funny Car (1975), the first 250 mile an hour speed by a Top Fuel dragster (1975), the first and only 5.60 second elapsed times by a Top Fuel dragster (1975) and the first and only all-five second filed in drag racing history (1975).

Now it is bracing for another record assault as Prudhomme tries to become the first to push a Funny Car beyond the 250-mile-an-hour barrier.

Prudhomme ran 5.98 and 241.53 MPH in winning the World Finals back in 1975. This year, he ran 247.25 MPH in the first event of the season but hasn't come close since.

Meanwhile, four other drivers have beaten 240 — a speed previously thought unapproachable — and, one, Dale Pulde of Van Nuys, has gone even faster than Prudhomme — 247.93 MPH.

Pulde, now driving the "War Eagle" Pontiac for Mike Hamby, is no stranger to OMS himself. He established national records for Funny Cars of 6.16 seconds, 233.76 MPH before losing in the semifinals of the 1974 World Finals at Ontario.

Pulde is one of a half dozen drivers thought capable of dipping into the fives at this year's finals, joining an exclusive club which presently includes only Prudhomme (5.97 and 5.98) and Eddie Pauling of Phoenix, Ariz. (5.97).

Joe Taylor, Fudge win Kiwanis

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

More than 100 valley golfers and their guests showed up Wednesday at Western Hills C.C. for the 20th annual Kiwanis Club of Greater Pomona Tournament.

And when all the firing was over, Joe Taylor of the PB's advertising staff, and Royer Fudge of Claremont were the big winners for the day.

Taylor fashioned a superb 75 over the par 72, hilly layout to win low gross honors. Included in Joe's round were four birdies and a host of pars.

Dexter Jones won the pitching contest, an annual fixture for the event. Richard Smith hit the day's longest, straightest drive, and Bob Harbicht landed his ball closest to the pin on No. 6.

Gordon Taylor, tournament director, rated the event a "real success." The Greater Kiwanis Club of Pomona will donate a check for more than $300 to a scholarship fund established in the name of Robert Headland, a longtime Kiwanian and golfer who died last summer.

Garth Sangster of San Juan Hills shot a 77 to win low gross. Next event for the National Association is Thursday, at Sangster's home course, San Juan Hills.

The member-guest event is slated for Saturday and Sunday at San Clemente Municipal on Thursday, Oct. 20, beginning at 11 a.m.

For more information contact Jerry Sharman at 496-0065.

The Kathryn Crosby/Honda Civic Classic, which attracts the largest field for any tour event, will be played March 15-19 at Rancho Bernardo Golf Course.

The purse is $165,000, the second largest on the Ladies Professional Golf tour.

Harvey Korman, the comedian, will get into the tournament act with his celebrity invitational event scheduled for Rancho La Costa C.C. on Dec. 2, 3 and 4.

The tournament will benefit the Marianne Frostig Center of Educational Therapy. The two-day, 36-hole tourney will be played from a scramble format with five-man teams headed by celebrity friends of the television and movie comedian.

The $100,000 Sunstar Classic, the first major women's pro tournament ever to be held in Los Angeles, will be conducted at the Rancho Park Golf Course, it was recently announced by tournament chairman Yasuyoshi Kaneda and Mayor Tom Bradley.

The 72-hole event, featuring the greatest women golfers in the world, will be played March 9-12, 1978.

There have been other events called the Los Angeles LPGA Open, but none has been held in L.A. proper. Inglewood, Montebello, Buena Park, Pasadena, and Calabases Park have all been sites for the open.

Bill Hall, former tournament director of the Ladies PGA Tour, will direct all operations of the Sunstar Classic.

The San Dimas Canyon club championship 36-hole event is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15-16 . . . The Hot Rod Association holds its annual tournament Thursday at Red Hill C.C. . . . This weekend winds up the 72-hole club championship at Western Hills C.C.

Burt Wheeler, who really knows his golf, says the Cucamonga course these days is in excellent shape.

"I've been a member since 1947," says Wheeler, "and I've never seen the course in better condition. We put in our new fairway sprinkler system recently, and it has made a terrific difference."

The greens too, according to Wheeler, are in outstanding condition.

Wheeler, one of the foremost authorities on golf courses in the valley, is remembered for his efforts to save Mountain Meadows Golf Course from becoming a housing tract some years ago.

Today Mountain Meadows, lush, green, challenging, stands as a testimony to the foresight and hard work of Wheeler and the entire "save Mountain Meadows" group.

I for one am especially appreciative. It seems to me we have enough housing tracts and not enough parks and golf courses.

I'll have a chance to play Red Hill C.C. this week so I'll see a fine course.

Johnny Fought, the most prominent amateur golfer in the country, will make his debut in the $30,000 Long Beach Queen Mary Open Championship Thursday through Sunday at El Dorado Municipal in Long Beach.

Fought, 23, an accountant from Tualatin, Ore., compiled a record this past year that few other amateurs have ever chalked up. For example, he won the National Amateur, the TransMississippi Championship, the Broadmoor Invitational. He finished second among amateurs in the U.S. Open and second among amateurs in the Masters.

Fought also played on the U.S. Walker Cup team and was unbeaten.

Other top amateurs turning pro in the Queen Mary are NCAA champ Scott Simpson of USC, California amateur winner Lee Mikles of Arizona State, and Southwest Conference champion Ed Fiori of Downey and Houston U..

First prize is $6,000.

Winners in the La Mancha women's league recently were May Estale, Lucille Moore, Bonnie Woodrow, Lillian Smith, Laseeta Hief and Debbie Scott.

Fifty-five California golfers will try to qualify for PGA regionals Monday and Tuesday at Saticoy C.C. Across the country some 678 golfers will be aiming at places in the PGA Qualifying School at Pinehurst, N.C.

Hillbilly Hubert Green

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Hubert Green, the winner of the 1977 U.S. Open goes in for country talk and has a reputation as a hip hillbilly. But Green grew up in a sophisticated atmosphere. Born in Birmingham, Ala., his father was a successful doctor and young Hubie learned his golf at posh country clubs. In college he was a business marketing major.

"The hillbilly bit?" he said. "I guess it started because I'm from the South and I look like Huckleberry Finn with a golf club instead of a fishing pole. I get a kick out of putting on an act."

Bud Grant shoots for 100

By Associated Press

They say the first 100 victories are the toughest for a National Football League coach, and Minnesota's Bud Grant takes his first swing at that milestone today.

Grant takes a 99-39-4 regular-season record into the Vikings' game at Minnesota against the Green Bay Packers. Only 11 other coaches have reached the 100-victory milestone, and of that group, only Don Shula, Tom Landry, Hank Stram and George Allen are active.

This week's NFL schedule is split exactly along conference lines. Besides Minnesota and Green Bay, the National Conference games are New Orleans at Chicago, the New York Giants at Atlanta, Philadelphia at Detroit, St. Louis at Washington, San Francisco at Los Angeles, and Tampa Bay at Dallas.

In Monday night's game, Oakland plays at Kansas City.

Shula is the winningest active coach with 146 victories at Baltimore and Miami. Landry has 139, all at Dallas. Stram has 128 with the Dallas Texans, Kansas City and New Orleans, and Allen has 108 at Los Angeles and Washington.

Grant won No. 99 last weekend at Tampa Bay, but it was no laugher. The Vikings had to come from behind for a 9-3 victory over the expansion Bucanneers, with Fran Tarkenton throwing a 31-yard touchdown pass to Chuck Foreman for the victory.

The Packers, who have lost four straight and seven of the last eight meetings against Minnesota, lost to Houston last week when Willie Alexander raced 95 yards with an interception for the winning touchdown with less than five minutes to play.

That was the second straight victory for the Oilers and set up their game with Miami as the only contest this week between unbeaten teams.

The Dolphins edged San Francisco last Sunday with flanker Nat Moore scoring all three touchdowns, two on passes from Bob Griese.

Both clubs feature the popular 3-4 defenses and both have been solid in that department this season. No NFL defense, however, has been better than Denver's. The Broncos haven't allowed a single point defensively in two games with the only touchdown against them scored on a blocked punt.

Seattle will try and solve the Broncos' defense after throwing at least a momentary scare into Cincinnati last Sunday. The Bengals had rushed to a 28-0 lead before surrendering 20 quick points to the Seahawks. Then the Cincinnati offense added two wrapup touchdowns, clinching the victory.

That victory left the Bengals at 1-1 in the AFC Central and tied with Pittsburgh, which lost to Oakland last Sunday. Both clubs are one game back of unbeaten Cleveland, which scored a dramatic overtime victory against New England Monday night.

After two weeks, only seven of the 28 NFL clubs still are undefeated. Besides Miami, Houston, Cleveland and Denver, the perfect records belong to Baltimore, Dallas and defending Super Bowl champion Oakland.

Rizo honored

FORMER CHINO HIGH star Randy Rizo was recently honored as the University of Nevada Las Vegas player of the week for his role in a 35-28 win over Troy State.

Rizo, a junior defensive tackle, was credited with four tackles, four assists and one quarterback sack.

UNLV defensive line coach Doug Johnson commented, "Randy has done everything and more that we have asked of him. I'm very pleased that his weight is down and he's strong and quicker than he has ever been."

Sightless repairman does job on 'jets'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Ralph Gotcher, a longtime civilian employee of the Air Force at Tinker Air Foroe Base here, works daily with accurate measurements as he overhauls jet engine fuel pumps. And after work Gotcher relaxes by either going fishing, bowling or playing the piano or guitar.

While these activities could be those of almost any worker at the sprawling Air Force Logistics Command base, Gotcher is just a little different. He is blind.

Sightless all his adult life, Gotcher has worked at the Oklahoma base for the past 33 years. During World War II, when he applied for a defense job at Tinker he was first hired as a helper.

Receiving training on the job, Gotcher worked first in the electrical department, helping to overhaul generators and starters. Later, he transferred to hydraulics where he worked on electrically operated pumps and valves.

"I set the switches to work in the right sequence," he said, adding that he has worked on almost every kind of valve that goes on an airplane.

Currently Gotcher easily performs with the minute accuracy required for his exacting work. Housing clearances on fuel pumps, for example, must be accurate to within two-ten-thousandths of an inch.

He measures those tolerances with special micrometers and feeler gauges. But primarily it is Gotcher's incredible sense of touch that serves him best on the job.

"What you do is line up the parts so that they are working smoothly," he explains. "Any part that doesn't work properly is rejected and you get another one."

Gotcher received all his training on the job. Because of his handicap he didn't go to school as some of the others here did. He just started to work and picked up his skills from his sighted co-workers as he went.

His proficiency has earned him several awards that recognize his outstanding job performance.

"At 17 I had a brain tumor," he says. "As a result of the operation I began to lose my sight. The first few years after the operation I had some sight, but it gradually got worse."

Gotcher attended the Oklahoma School for the Blind at Muskogee.

"At that time," he recalls, "they taught woodworking, piano tuning and a few other trades, but they didn't teach anything like what I ended up doing."

Student 'inspires' play on coal town

CRESSON, Pa. (AP) — A theater group in western Pennsylvania's coal country, inspired by student writings, has produced a play about life in mining towns — a proud story of grim lives and hearty people.

An unemployed high school teacher wrote "Out of the Dark," and based its characters on the real people who toiled in deep, dark mines near here in their quest for a better life in a new land.

"The main town is simply called Coal Town," said playright Fred Vrabel. "And many of the people in the play could be found in any coal region in the world."

The story opens with a festive Polish wedding celebration, but the party is interrupted to take the audience back through the period of the couple's courtship.

Emily Jubisky, a storekeeper's daughter, is torn between a handsome college student who fled the mines in shame and a young miner whose work is dirty and dangerous.

"It's essentially a humorless play. I don't think there's one laugh in it," said Erma Konitsky, the English teacher whose students wrote the tales of everyday coal life sprinkled through the work.

"In spite of this, it has a kind of optimism about it that hardship builds character."

The same theme was evident in the two volumes produced by her students at Northern Cambria High School in nearby Spangler, but Vrabel admits giving the drama a sense of pride was his hardest task.

"When you think of coal mining, the first thing you think of is disaster and a grubby kind of life," he said. "It was a challenge to look into these people and find out what gives them their strength; what makes them go into the ground day after day and risk it all."

In the end, Emily marries Tony Santini, the college man who had listed his father as an engineer to hide his shame.

"By the end of the play, he's had a change of heart," Vrabel said. "He's learned about the people of Coal Town and is almost able to convince them that they have something to be proud of."

John Yost, the miner who courted Emily, is killed in a cave-in.

"There are a couple people who die in the play whom we get close to," said Vrabel. "But life is like that. It's a familiar cycle in mining towns."

Near-capacity audiences have responded to the story in very personal ways. An older man cried out in anguish during a cave-in scene.

"He was overcome by what he saw," said Mrs. Konitsky, whose only part in the play was as a spectator. "The play is very moving, very dramatic. Anybody who lives in this kind of area could certainly recognize the mine life in it."

Foreign films are assailed

A few snags remain to be ironed out before Jakarta can become Hollywood-on-the-Java-Sea, however.

It's government policy to replace imported goods with those that can be made at home. Applied to the more than 900 theaters, this means they must increasingly screen movies made in Indonesia instead of the often more popular imported variety.

Quotas announced four years ago were designed to phase out almost all imported offerings over a five-year period while, it was officially hoped, local moviemakers developed talent and expanded production.

More than 700 films were imported in 1973, the year before quotas were imposed. Imports were limited to 500 in 1974, 400 in 1975 and 300 last year. Only 200 movies are to be allowed into the country this year and 100 next year.

Starting in 1979, no foreign films except specially selected ones will be authorized.

The 900-plus cinemas need about 350 movies each year, according to unofficial estimates. Where are they going to get them?

Peak output of the domestic industry was 77 feature-length films in 1974. Production slipped to 41 in 1975 and rebounded to 60 last year. No precise forecast was available, but several moviemen said there would be about 100 releases this year.

In addition to quotas, 71 separate importers were consolidated last year into four groups to handle American, European, Mandarin and non-Mandarin Asian films.

One importer, who declined to be identified, said he expected the quotas to be relaxed.

"They could encourage domestic production by giving importers the right to bring in six or eight foreign films for every one they produced or financed in Indonesia," he said.

Local productions rarely meet with critical acclaim.

Nine judges at the annual film festival in March reviewed 27 of the movies made here last year. They decided none was worthy of the title, "Best Film of the Year" for 1976

Who will be on next bus to the moon? Scientists see a probability--

they are unlikely to happen until the 21st Century.

One common belief among scientists, however, is that a new space age has begun. The time has come for a scientific conquest of the heavens.

In March 1979, the U.S. will launch the first of many manned orbital space flights to usher in the new age.

The Space Shuttle Transportation System being developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and Rockwell International Corp., will for the first time give man the ability — on a large scale — to live and work in space.

Within 20 years, experts believe, space industrialization will become a reality.

By the year 2000, many people will be working on scientific research, electronics mmanufacturing and medical breakthrough 500 miles above the earth.

Space industrialization will take place, the experts believe, because it is economical, practical and possible.

"Our studies indicate that space industrialization offers an overreaching concept potential. It can produce mind-expanding endeavors, challenge our imagination and capability and provide a substantial return on the U.S. space investment," a Rockwell corporate executive told Congress this week.

George W. Jeffs, president of Rockwell's space division, informed the Subcommittee on Space Science and Applications the world is about to experience a new industrial revolution because of space.

"I'm convinced the last two decades of this century will be notable for space activities and accomplishments, involving both the United States and a growing international space community," said Jeffs.

Scientists predict large space industries to begin manufacturing processes by the mid-1980s.

Manned and unmanned space stations will be used for agricultural forecasting, energy study, wildlife management, astronomy, communications and bio-medical processing by the mid-1980s.

Shortly thereafter, processing of metals, minerals and fluids, electronics production, solar energy collection and space mining of the moon and asteroids can be expected.

"We're only 10 years away from the beginnings of serious space industrialization," said Dick Barton, Rockwell's director of public relations for the space division.

"Congress and the government should be taking a bolder and more imaginative look at the space program. It offers a multitude of possibilities for the future. The benefits are numerous."

Rockwell and other space companies are involved in research projects for solar and nuclear propulsion systems.

Such systems would provide future space travellers with virtually unlimited supplies of autonomous power. In conjunction with large space stations, such systems might someday allow unlimited travel through the universe.

Plans to capture much purer forms of solar energy in space and transmit them to earth are being considered by the research community. Many believe space offers a forum for the solving of many of the earth's problems; the energy crisis, pollution, overpopulation and war.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has cited space exploration as a hope for the future. "As long as there is a safety valve of unexplored frontiers, the creative, the aggressive, the exploitive urges of human beings can be channeled into long-term possibilities and benefits; but as those frontiers close down and people begin to turn upon themselves, that jeopardizes the human fabric," he said.

Glenn Briggs, public information specialist at the Dryden Space Center at Edwards Air Force Base, believes an expansion of the present space age is imminent. "The space shuttle program and other future programs will allow us to do much in space," he said.

"It's a decision that is going to be up to the American people," he said. "We pretty much have the technology. It's where do we go from here?"

Most experts are hesitant to predict when the full impact of space exploration and industrialization will hit earthlings, but the consensus of opinion is that many of the fantastic proposals will become reality within 40 years.

Dr. Samuel Gilkins, a radio astronomer and space expert at Jet Propulsion Laboratories in Pasadena, said, "I believe technologically we are able to go into space now.

"In the future, we will be even more able to go. I think we are on the verge of an exciting expansion in the space age."

Gulkis believes large space stations by the year 2000 are a "reasonable possibility." "Within the 1980 decade, there will be people in space in a shirtsleeve environment.

"It's very speculative, but I believe we will see scientists, workmen and researchers living in space communities during our lifetime."

About $60 billion has been spent on space travel and research since the Russians first launched a tiny metal ball, the Sputnik, into earth orbit in 1957, heralding in the space age.

But for the first 20 years of space experimentation, there has been little in the way of monetary and economic return. For that reason, many in the late 1960s and early 1970s questioned the point of space exploration. Other more severe problems on earth; hunger, overpopulation, crime, pollution and other problems were more pressing, they claimed.

In his book, "Dynamics of Change," Don Fabun prophecied: Here we are, standing on this neonlit, garbage filled corner of the earth waiting for the next bus to the moon. And that sound in the background is not Muzak. It is the rising angry clangor of empty rice bowls.

Throughout its early days, the space age was not generally viewed as a method of dealing with the earth's problems.

Indications today, however, suggest such a view is rapidly changing. Many believe space exploration offers imaginative solutions to world crises.

Anyone out there?

five years looking for evidence of life.

"We are going to try and put the whole question to an observable basis," Gulkis said. "We're not looking to communicate with anyone, just to determine if higher life forms in space are there."

The JPL scientist said he and his colleagues are cautiously optimistic the experiment will prove a success. "We're not doing any speculating," he said. "We're just searching."

Stressing improvements in human rights policies

Todman trying 'speak softly' approach for South America

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The United States appeared to be trying a "speak softly" approach to bringing about an improvement in human rights policies during Asst. Secretary of State Terence Todman's tour of four military-ruled South American countries.

Whether the stick was wielded behind the scenes with enough force to ensure results may not be known for some months.

The only obvious outcome of the 10-day mission, which ended Saturday in Uruguay and was to be followed by a two-day rest in Brazil, was the Chilean government's announcement a week ago that it was dissolving the DINA, the security police implicated in the arrest, disappearance or torture of thousands of people.

Although the government newspaper said the change had nothing to do with pressure from Washington, it was widely believed among Chileans that President Augusto Pinochet moved up the planned announcement to coincide with Todman's presence in the country.

At the same time, Pinochet created a new agency that will inherit the DINA's staff and properties but is supposed to devote itself only to gathering security information without the right to detain people.

Todman said he was "very pleased" with Pinochet's action, and it is beginning to appear that Washington is ready to welcome even small steps toward eliminating human rights abuses, rather than demanding major steps at once.

This view reportedly was argued by the former U.S. ambassadors in two of the countries visited by Todman, Robert Hill in Argentina and David Popper in Chile.

The Carter administration clearly was trying to use the Todman tour, which also included Paraguay, to find ways to warm up relations with the four nations, traditional friends of the United States.

The ties were strained by a combination of related factors, including Congress' cutoff of military assistance and sales to Chile and Uruguay for human rights reasons, Argentina's rejection of such aid because it was conditioned on human rights improvements, and President Carter's constant talk about human rights.

Todman, a 51-year-old career diplomat in charge of interAmerican affairs in the State Department, said only good things publicly about the countries he visited, accusing reporters in Argentina and Chile of not presenting an accurate picture of the two countries to the outside world.

Todman met with a wide range of people in all four countries, not only presidents and cabinet ministers, but also former elected officials, labor leaders, heads of once-active political parties, chrchmen and others concerned with human rights violations.

But he refused to talk to about 100 mothers of missing Argentines outside President Jorge Videla's office in Buenos Aires and barely paused before about 30 Chileans demanding word on missing relatives outside the Supreme Court in Santiago.

The unofficial Argentine Assembly of Human Rights says at least 700 persons have been kidnaped this year for political reasons, and possibly as many as 2,000. In Chile, families have reported to courts the disappearance of 501 persons since the military overthrew the late President Salvador Allende, a Socialist, nearly four years ago.

The Argentine government blames right-wing terrorists for the kidnaping of political liberals and moderates, and human rights leaders blame security forces. The now-dissolved DINA is blamed by relatives for the disappearances in Chile.

Chile also jailed many thousands of leftists after the coup, but the majority have now been freed. Argentine human rights workers say there are 5,000 political prisoners there.

In Paraguay, a human rights group estimates there are 200 to 300 political prisoners. A top Uruguayan military official has acknowledged that his government has about 1,800 political prisoners, although a U.N. Human Rights Commission official has put it higher.

Todman was not the only American official in South America last week to assess the human rights situation.

A subcommittee of the House International Relations Committee followed the State Department official into Santiago and on to Buenos Aires, and Todman's tour coincided with visits to Latin America by U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, alternate U.N. Ambassador Allard K. Lowenstein and Patricia Derian, the State Department's human rights coordinator.

Cranberry preserved in museum

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A new museum, located less than a quarter of a mile from Plymouth Rock in this historic town, is devoted to the cranberry, which grew wild in the area long before the Pilgrims arrived.

"Cranberry World," in telling visitors the story of the cranberry from precultivation days to modern times, offers a unique perspective on the nation's history from the colonial era to the present, according to Anita Franks, curator-administrator.

In addition to a series of portraits of men and women who contributed to the growth of the cranberry industry, the museum displays an enlargement of the well-known painting of the 1880s, "Cranberry Harvest in Nantucket," by Eastman Johnson.

The museum contains a diorama depicting the topographic features of a 20th-century cranberry "plantation," a grower's house and a representation of a bog and harvesting implements.

Various scoops and related tools used in harvesting over the years are on display and a slide show on contemporary methods of cultivation, harvesting and processing is shown.

Other exhibits spotlight the immigrants who contributed to cranberry history and the many Indian tribes who played key roles in the cranberry saga by introducing the first settlers to the berries' use as a food, dye and medicinal poultice.

The museum, which sits on a picturesque site overlooking Plymouth Harbor, is expected to play host to approximately half a million tourists a year who visit Plymouth.

But it's in danger of being loved to death

Great California desert offers 'wonderland' of dramatic terrain

EDITOR'S NOTE: In other parts of the world, people worry about the spread of deserts. In California, people are worrying about preserving theirs. So many citizens love the desert that it's in danger of being loved to death.

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

DESERT CENTER, Calif. (AP) — The great California desert, an arid region the size of Ohio, is a wonderland of dramatic terrain and hardy, increasingly scarce forms of life.

It's also a wilderness museum of human habitation, from the dwellings of prehistoric tribes to the trails of mule skinners and Gold Rush miners.

Naturalists, scientists and seekers of solitude love the desert.

But they bring new questions with them. Will the easily marred sands be mined and motorcycled into a wasteland? Will the hordes of weekend visitors doom the animal species already rare and endangered? Will scenic places be spoiled by power plants, pipelines, electric cables?

After years of near-anarchy, the federal government has ordered that these and several other questions be settled and a master plan for managing the desert be created.

Under a 1976 federal law, specialists are combing the 12.5 million acres of public land in the California desert, walking, driving, flying over it and using satellite photos in the first step of the $40 million planning effort.

"There are more creatures and plants out there than anyone ever thought," says Neil Pfulb, head of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's desert planning staff based in Riverside. By 1980, the staff must complete the master plan.

The lands lie scattered over 20,000 square miles that make up one-fourth of California's area. Occupying the southeast corner of the state, these lands are intermingled with state, private, Indian, municipal and military lands.

"Competition for lands and resources is keen here in the desert, with a growing demand for outdoor recreation, power sites, wildlife, energy transmission corridors, grazing, mineral development, agriculture and other uses," says BLM Associate Director George L. Turcott.

Until recently, most people thought of the desert as a barren, hot waste, left over in the westward march to the California Dream on the state's lush coast.

"The California desert is one of the last great reservoirs of open space," says state BLM Director Ed Hastey. It has become a playland for many of the 12 million people who live jammed into cities and suburbs along the Southern California coast.

"The desert gives us the feeling of an area that hasn't been carved up," says Ike Eastvold of the Sierra Club.

But the desert may be getting carved up in subtle ways.

"The California desert environment is a total ecosystem that is extremely fragile, easily scarred and slowly healed," noted the law creating the California Desert Conservation Area.

Not only do the dirt-scattering tires rip the soil and trigger erosion, they also send dirt particles into the air, contributing to air pollution.

Archeological sites and habitats of desert animals have been destroyed by the buggies and bikes. Some dug ruts across the huge figures known as intaglios that were carved by ancient Indian tribes into the desert surface along the Colorado River.

Desert tortoises are vanishing from prime habitats in the northwest Mojave because of land development, overgrazing and off-road vehicles, says Kristin Berry, wildlife specialist on the Bureau of Land Management's planning staff.

Off-road vehicle drivers have formed clubs and organizations that protest that they're being unfairly condemned. They contend that the desert is tough enough to withstand hard recreational use. Conservationists counter that damage to the soil itself has been scientifically proven.

Dr. Howard Wilshire of the U.S. Geological Survey studied nine sites used by

Scouting gala slated Oct. 16

The fifth annual Evening for Scouting sponsored by the Women's Service Board of Old Baldy Council, Boys Scouts of America, will continue to raise funds for special programs for the council.

The annual party is scheduled Oct. 16 at 5:30 p.m. in the Founders Room of McConnell Center on the Pitzer College campus in Claremont.

Reservations are due by Oct. 7 and are available at the council office, 626-3551, or from board members.

Antipasto and wine will be served prior to an elaborate Italian dinner. A Chinese auction will follow the dinner.

Proceeds from activities of the Women's Service Board over the years have been directed toward remodeling and equipping the kitchen for central feeding at Holcomb Valley Boy Scout Camp near Big Bear.

The board maintains a uniform bank at the council office, 120 W. San Jose Ave., Claremont, where over 1,000 uniforms have been recycled. Funds from this project have provided $900 in scholarships for underprivileged children.

Mrs. James Edwards and Mrs. James T. Johnson are chairmen for the dinner.

Other chairmen are Mrs. Robert Burwell and Mrs. Ronald Brundage, auction; Mrs. Wayne Sheffield and Mrs. Donald DesCombes, decorations; and Mrs. Theo T. Nowak, publicity.

Greeting guests will be Mrs. Richard Kirkendall, president; Mrs. Charles Martz, vice president; Mrs. Craig McManigal, treasurer; and Mrs. David Ormiston, secretary.

Travel Film premiere set

DOUG JONES

The Claremont Travel Film Series will open its 24th season on Friday with a premiere performance of "Egypt," narrated by Doug Jones.

Mr. Jones is one of the youngest and most interesting personalities in the film lecturing business. He graduated from the University of Missouri with a degree in radio and television broadcasting and now lives in Indianapolis, Ind.

In addition to working as a radio announcer and European tour guide while in college, Mr. Jones has visited 29 nations of Europe, Asia and Africa.

He has appeared on virtually every important auditorium series in the United States and Canada and, in 1972, was named "Film Lecturer of the Year."

The film will be presented at 2 and 8 p.m. in Garrison Theater, Claremont.

The Claremont Travel Film Series is a benefit project for the Development Fund of Pomona College.

Mrs. Milo Tigner, chairman of the film series, will be assisted by Mrs. Wesley Leighton, ticket sales; Mrs. Roy Miller, treasurer, and Miss Esther Ballew, Mrs. Charles Gill, Mrs. Earle Jones, Mrs. Jackson Niebrugge and Mrs. Stuart Wheeler.

Single tickets for "Egypt," which covers the grandeur of the pyramids to the present in this timeless nation, may be purchased at the box office for each performance. Season tickets are available for the afternoon series only.

Courtesy coffee will be served in the foyer during the evening performance by members of the committee.

Tension doesn't discriminate

First in a series
By HARRIET P. DUSTAN, M.D.

CLEVELAND (NEA) — Until recently high blood pressure — hypertension — was popularly thought to be a serious problem primarily for men. In the past few years it has become more widely understood that this disease does not discriminate according to sex.

Untreated, it can kill or disable both men and women. Of the 23 million Americans suffering from high blood pressure, nearly half are women.

There has been speculation that women are now suffering from hypertension in greater numbers because of a new, more stressful, "liberated" lifestyle: more women in the work force, in managerial positions, smoking, having cocktail lunches. Do these factors account for hypertension in women?

Actually, in only a few cases do we know what causes high blood pressure, and there is no evidence to indicate an upsurge in the rate of hypertension in women. The change is that women have become more aware of the problem, and more of them are finding that they suffer from hypertension.

The effects of abnormally high blood pressure may be devastating. Untreated, it can lead to heart failure, stroke, kidney damage and more. Yet only a small fraction — about one-fifth — of all Americans with the disease are being adequately treated. Only about 70 percent are even aware they have it!

What is blood pressure? It is the force within the arteries as the blood flows. There are two figures to remember. Systole is the pressure inside the arteries when the heart pumps blood. Diastole is the pressure when the heart relaxes. These measurements are indicated by the familiar two-number notation, with systole first or on top. A reading of around 120 over 80 is normal for most people.

Blood pressure rises at certain times — when you are excited or during strenuous physical activity — and this, of course, is normal. But it is not normal for blood pressure to remain at elevated levels. This is why a physician often takes several readings before making a judgment about high blood pressure.

The problem is further complicated by the fact that hypertension often has no symptoms in the early stages. For this reason women should pay special attention to the following situations which may be related to the occurence of high blood pressure.

—The Pill. The rate of high blood pressure is two and one-half times greater in women taking oral contraceptives. The risk is even greater in women who are, in addition, overweight, have a family history of high blood pressure, have mild kidney disease or have been hypertensive during pregnancy. Women should have a blood pressure check before having contraceptives prescribed, and every six months thereafter.

—Being black. No one knows why, but black women, even very young black women, have a higher rate of high blood pressure than white women. In fact, one in every four black persons older than 18 is estimated to have high blood pressure. Half are women. It is the single biggest killer among blacks in the United States.

—Family History. High blood pressure tends to run in families. Chances are greater that an individual will have it if parents or other relatives do. Regular blood pressure checks are appropriate for all members of hypertensive families.

—Pregnancy. If a woman is already hypertensive, she may become more so during pregnancy. Other women who have never had high blood pressure before may develop it when pregnant. In some cases it disappears after pregnancy; sometimes it does not. Under any circumstances, a pregnant woman should have her blood pressure checked frequently.

—Menopause. In industrial nations, like ours, blood pressure seems to rise with age. Thus, as women grow older, they become more susceptible to high blood pressure, and may become even more susceptible than men. The chances of developing it are particularly great after menopause, although this does not mean that menopause itself causes hypertension.

—Overweight. Many other factors may contribute to high blood pressure in certain individuals. Chief among these is obesity, which puts an added strain on the entire circulatory system.

Although there is no cure for high blood pressure, it can be successfully treated. The first step is discovering it. Then it may require medication over a lifetime, or perhaps modification in dietary or exercise patterns. But proper treatment is well worth the effort, to insure a longer, healthier life.

In addition to stripping small plant cover, says Wilshire, running 3,000 bikes at a time over the course wiped out 90 percent of small mammals that lived there.

When the State of California proposed two off-road vehicle recreation areas of 19,000 and 14,000 acres, the publisher of Cycle News said, "If they think they're going to put us on a reservation like the Indians, they're going to have to think again!"

The Bureau of Land Management in 1973 drew up an interim plan to control vehicle use, closing about 6 percent of the desert, leaving another 6 percent for unrestricted vehicle use and imposing varying restrictions elsewhere.

The motorsports fans feel the plan inhibits their activities; the conservationists say it is poorly enforced.

Increasing the fears of vehicle enthusiasts is a recent executive order from President Jimmy Carter, giving the bureau added authority to seal off areas of the desert when it feels vehicles are harming it.

The bureau's planning experts still are in the first phase of their work, an inventory of the huge arid region to pin down what is there to be managed.

The survey aims to determine the varieties and numbers of animals, plants and flowers in the desert; where mineral deposits are likely to be found; potential sources of geothermal energy; still-undiscovered archeological and historical sites like old stagecoach stations, burial grounds, gold mines, Indian dwellings; the quality and extent of grazing land, and other things.

Then, the Bureau will decide what uses will be allowed in what areas. Conflicts will be tough to reconcile, says planning staff chief Pfulb: "The areas of highest probable mineral value will probably be in the areas that also have the highest cultural and recreational value."

Results of these decisions will be pulled together in the plan due in September 1980 for congressional approval. Some of the $40 million authorized for planning will be used to manage the desert while planning is going on.

Funds will permit increasing the Desert Ranger force, from 27 to 72 rangers, and giving them law enforcement powers to combat vandalism which has become a big problem. For example, ancient rock art — pictographs and petroglyphs — has been spoiled or stolen; cactus plants have been carted away by landscapers; archeological sites have been looted by pothunters; the country's only desert tortoise natural preserve near California City has been vandalized numerous times.

The bureau also plans to build several "way stations" — one has been completed in Barstow — with displays and exhibits to inform visitors about the desert.

"We have taken the position that the desert is a national resource, and the guy in New Jersey who loves the desert has a rightful concern about it," says Bob Badaracco, outdoor recreation specialist on the desert planning staff.

THE HUNTER — U.S. Attorney Gerald Gallinghouse, at work in his New Orleans office, seems to enjoy a diet of roasted politician basted with publicity. "Too many scoundrels and rascals get into public life," he says. "We're after the people who defraud the public of millions of dollars, skinning the taxpayer from the neck down and the ankles up."

Hunter enjoys diet of roasted politician

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "Too many scoundrels and rascals get into public life," says Gerald Gallinghouse in a southern drawl thicker than taffy.

As U.S. attorney in New Orleans, Gallinghouse is a hunter and the game he stalks runs from international grain firms to congressmen, from the governor to the state's attorney general.

A Republican, serving under a Democratic president, Galinghouse has won the praise of Democratic senators Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Dick Clark of Iowa.

A bald, heavily-built six-footer of 57 years, Gallinghouse has become known in cynical courthouse circles as "Sir Galahad."

His willingness to prosecute state public officials accused of running afoul of federal law has made him the feared and often detested huntsman of Louisiana politics.

"A U.S. attorney can't sit back and wait for somebody to bring in a ready-made case," he says.

With that philosophy, Gallinghouse has sent the state's previous attorney general to prison on a conviction of lying to a grand jury during an investigation of a loan company. He filed bribery charges against New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison, who was acquitted at the trial but lost his place in public life.

Gov. Edwin Edwards says that he's being stalked but hasn't been caught because he's done nothing illegal.

But a major contributor to Edwards' 1971 race for governor, Lewis Johnson, was nabbed. The wealthy New Orleans builder and former chairman of the state highway commission, was convicted of tax evasion, accused of claiming some campaign contributions as corporate tax deductions.

Johnson faces a year in prison. His case is still on appeal.

A lot of Gallinghouse's staff, believing his job would fall to a Democrat when President Carter went to the White House quit for other jobs. Gallinghouse gave no thought to quitting. He continued hunting.

He bagged a congressman, Democrat Richard A. Tonry, forced to resign during a federal investigation of election fraud. Twenty-one polling commissioners pleaded guilty to casting fake votes for Tonry.

Though Tonry was not implicated in vote fraud, he was imprisoned in August for a year under a law forbidding a candidate to accept individual contributions in excess of $1,000.

In the midst of that, Gallinghouse reported that he had come upon more rascals skinning taxpayers, neck to ankles, in suburban Jefferson Parish.

He predicts it could blow up into something worse than the Louisiana Hayride, a fabled scandal of the late 1930s. The Hayride involved some 250 indictments and an estimated $50 million in alleged graft and brought down the political machine which had survived the assassination of the Kingfish, Sen. Huey Long.

Senators Humphrey and Clark wrote Carter shortly before he took office last January asking that Gallinghouse be retained as U.S. attorney at New Orleans or moved to the Department of Justice.

Their admiration stems from his investigation of the Great Grain Scandal, where Gallinghouse estimates the crooked take, mainly by big grain companies, topped $1 billion over a span of years. There were 71 convictions on fraud charges and four of the world's biggest grain export companies pleaded no contest and paid fines of $10,000, the maximum under the law. Congress imposed a new federal system of grain inspection.

Although Gallinghouse's hardnose style has piled up political points, he's suffered his share of penalties.

When President Ford was still in office, Gallinghouse was stymied in a bid to become a federal judge. The American Bar Association, which passes on nominations, said Gallinghouse was unsuitable. The ABA has no authority but is influential and Gallinghouse withdrew his name.

Ben Toledano, a New Orleans lawyer who backs the legal establishment but speaks his mind, was furious.

He said the big law firms used their influence to block Gallinghouse, and the ABA investigation committee "provided the perfect forum for the anonymous vilification of a decent, honorable man."

It could mean survival . . . or death

Security, Exchange Commission issue looming

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Within the next three months a decision is due that will have manifold consequences for investors, publicly owned companies, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the nation's stock exchanges.

The decision, to be made by the SEC, will involve the largest substantive issue that agency ever faced, according to William Batten, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange.

It might even be bigger for the exchange; it could mean its survival or death.

The exchange, however, is relatively helpless. It must sit and listen to the tick of the clock. Accused of crying wolf too often, its credibility on the issue involved has been diminished. It must rely on friends for help.

Those friends — corporations and investors especially — have sometimes failed to realize, said Batten in an interview, that their interests are entwined with the fate of NYSE Rule 390, which the SEC has proposed repealing by Jan. 1.

Rule 390 requires exchange brokers to bring their buy and sell orders to the exchange floor. That is, it prevents them from setting their own private price deals; it compels them to expose their orders to the full flow of bids and offers on its auction market.

Rule 390 is the linchpin of the auction market. Pull it, and the machinery could disassemble like the one-horse shay.

The SEC has already indicated the rule might be anticompetitive. Mandated by Congress to develop a competitive national securities market, the SEC and others tend to view Rule 390 as self-serving.

Batten said he concedes the anticompetitive feature of the rule but he points out, without contradiction, that it can also be defended as being competitive in that each order is exposed to every order, resulting in pricing efficiency.

"The most important competition is the competition among orders," he observed, adding that no market now offers more pricing interaction from more varied sources than does the exchange.

Should the rule be repealed before the national market system, a linkage of the existing exchanges and dealers, is in place — a system, more than incidentally, that the exchange has been accused of delaying — the securities industry might be fragmented.

Orders would be "taken upstairs" to brokers' offices, said Batten. That is, brokers would become dealers for their own accounts, buying blocks of stocks and selling them in their own minimarkets at their own prices.

As Batten sees it, transactions might become more costly because these dealers, selling from their own inventories, must be paid for their added risks. Surveillance and liquidity would be impaired. Small dealers would be squeezed out. Relatively inactive stocks would have even less of a market. And public confidence, and therefore the ability of corporations to raise funds, would be damaged.

"It doesn't make much sense if you wish to unify the system," he said. Whereas the SEC is mandated to create a national market, he said, removal of the rule at this time would have the opposite impact.

Still, there is some feeling in the industry that the SEC will back down on its proposal to eliminate Rule 390 and its equivalent on other exchanges, at least until the national system is developed.

Exchange officials aren't counting on that, especially with time shrinking. They are worried. They have had no firm indication of the SEC's thinking.

"We don't have any evidence the SEC has changed its basic position," said Batten. "Neither do we have any indication they are thinking of a delay; rumors and comments once in a while, but nothing official."

And so Batten and others at the exchange are soliciting help from their listed companies and from the public in general, which they maintain will be hurt even more than the exchange.

That is the reason for mailing of a long document to the chief executives of the exchange's more than 1,500 listed companies.

L.A. mart planning set

Fashions actions downtown

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you want a preview peek at next summer's fashions, don't look in Beverly Hills — the real action is in downtown Los Angeles, home of the world's largest wholesale clothing complex.

The California Mart, where more than 8,000 clothing lines are displayed, is the brainchild of Harvey Morse, who began acquiring downtown real estate 25 years ago and opened the 2-million-square-foot complex in 1963. Today, the mart has 1,700 showrooms where manufacturer "reps" display the wares of every major American wholesaleer as well as French, English, Spanish and Mexican goods.

"In the old days, because wholesalers were geographically scattered throughout Los Angeles, it took out-of-town buyers nearly a week to complete their business. My idea was to centralize everything so they could do it all here."

The idea paid off. More than 10,000 buyers will visit the mart during its Oct. 10-16 "Fashion Week." The clothes selected during their mass buying spree will appear next spring and summer on the shelves of major department stores and fashionable boutiques throughout the United States.

Morse, who started in the ladies panties business, now leases showrooms to such names as Pierre Cardin, Yves St. Laurent, Countess Mara and London Fog. Also represented are clothing giants like Levi Strauss and J.C. Penney, as well as what Morse calls "fiber people" (Celanese, Monsanto, DuPont and Trevira.)

Manufacturers pay a flat rate for space and untold sums on decorating. The St. Laurent showroom is pure silver — rugs, sofas, walls and ceiling. Others have gold foil wallpaper or elaborate storefront facades that look like London's Carnaby Street transplanted. It's so difficult to get a showroom that tenants frequently get premiums of $10,000 or more for subletting their space and Morse recently announced a 650,000-square-foot addition to the mart.

Although his enterprise clearly has made the big leagues, Morse retains a paternal concern for the hundreds of small operators who lease his showrooms. A walking tour of the 13-story mart (each floor is devoted to a specific product line) is punctuated with comments on each showroom and a short history of its operations.

"Some of these places are like my grandchildren," says Morse, who says he isn't sure how many of his relatives work for him.

Although the mart attracts buyers from all over the world, a goodly portion of its business is with the California apparel industry, which United California Bank says will post a 12 per cent sales gain in 1977. The mart is a major part of that industry, whose sales have risen 98 per cent in the last six years, compared to a 32 per cent growth for the industry nationwide, according to UCB.

'Star Wars' rentals set

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (BW) — Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. has achieved $100 million in film rentals from the release of its feature film, "Star Wars," it was announced jointly by Dennis C. Stanfill, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, and Alan Ladd Jr., president, Twentieth Century-Fox Pictures.

The film will be released in most overseas markets in 1978.

Townhome clusters

Hacienda Creek is opening today

Hacienda Creek, a limited edition of well-priced adult and family townhomes opening today in the established community of Hacienda Heights, takes its name seriously.

Clusters of tan townhomes with red tiel roofs and a definite Spanish accent will immersed in rich landscaping highlighted by a namesake creek, a natural-looking lagoon and a quiet pond. Flowering shrubs will add splashes of color to the greenery of stately trees and thick lawns which hug the shorelines and the meandering walkways.

Known for exciting landscape concepts, Mayer Construction Corp., builder of Hacienda Creek, also includes a private recreation area complete with swimming pool, jacuzzi and tennis courts for the exclusive enjoyment of Hacienda Creek residents and their guests.

Priced from $63,500 to $76,500, Hacienda Creek offers three one-story and one two-story floor plans. The townhomes range in size from two to three bedrooms and 1,099 to 1,638 square feet of living space. All plans include two baths and attached two-car garages.

The interiors feature such attractions as solid core, raised panel front doors with security, deadbolt locks; entry foyers; casual kitchen nooks in addition to dining rooms; vaulted ceilings and gas fireplaces. All models offer attached, double car garages.

Modern kitchens include a full array of built-in appliances including a continuous-cleaning oven and a microwave oven. Luminous ceilings provide attractive, energy-saving lighting.

Other energy-saving features at Hacienda Creek are central gas heating and fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings.

Designed with outdoor living in mind, one plan features both an atrium and a generous patio, large enough for outdoor dining or a private spa. The two-story model includes both a patio and an upstairs balcony off the master suite as well as a distinctive skylit kitchen.

Hacienda Creek will be maintained by a professionally - managed homeowners association, insuring immaculate grounds and well groomed exteriors for enhanced resident satisfaction and long range value.

Hacienda Heights is located only 30 minutes from downtown Los Angeles and Orange County. A full service neighborhood shopping center is located one block from Hacienda Creek. Golf, tennis and horseback riding facilities are also nearby along with a mature school system and the Puente Hills Mall with its [illegible] shops, restaurants and major department stores.

To find Hacienda Creek, take the Pomona Freeway to Hacienda Boulevard. Turn south on Hacienda Boulevard to La Subida Drive. Turn right on La Subida to the models.

Record firm has record sales-profits

GARDENA (BW) — Integrity Entertainment Corp. announced that profits for the company's fiscal year ended June 30 nearly doubled on an 18 percent increase in sales.

Net income for 1977 was $844,514 as compared to $442,315 for 1976, an increase of 91 percent. On a per share basis, earnings were 29 cents primary and 27 cents on a fully diluted basis, compared to the prior year with earnings per share of 15 cents primary and 14 cents fully diluted.

Both years were based on approximately 2.9 million shares outstanding. Sales for the year were $46,069,661, up 18 percent from sales reported for 1976 of $39,146,486.

Fourth quarter earnings were $228,694, or 8 cents per common share on a primary basis and 7 cents fully diluted. This compares to the fourth quarter of 1976 with reported earnings of $375, or no cents a share. Sales for the fourth quarter were $12,107,606 as against $8,852,647 in the prior year.

1977 earnings of $844,514 represent a 25 per cent return on equity.

Leon C. Hartstone, president and chief executive officer, stated that in addition to the impressive increase in profits, the balance sheet has been strengthened measurably with stockholders equity as of June 30 amounting to $3,799,119, an increase of 29 percent compared with $2,949,355 in the previous year.

Integrity Entertainment Corp., from a standing start seven years ago, has expanded to a point where it is currently the largest record retailer in California.

Building permits slacken after surge

Building permits in the 200 largest cities eased 8.8 percent to $1,670,684,353 in April after surging to a record $1,831,077,441 in the previous month, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Nevertheless permit volume maintained a solid lead over 1976 activity as it topped by 17.8 percent the year-ago valuations of $1,418,036,240 in the similar month.

A 28.8 percent drop occurred in the building plans filed in New York. Plummeting to $14,827,964 from $20,838,429 a month earlier, New York's total shrank to less than one-half the $33,988,525 registered last year.

In the 199 cities outside New York, permit issuances eased moderately, 7.3 percent, to $1,655,856,389 but still represented the second highest volume on record, exceeded only by the previous month's unprecedented $1.8 billion. Gains between March and April were relatively rare but noteworthy jumps took place in Honolulu and Columbus, Ohio.

For the first four months of '77 building permits issued in the 200 largest cities soared to $6,003,585,428 a hefty 24.3 percent more than the first four months of the '76 period. Los Angeles and Houston continued to head the list in aggregate valuations of permits.

However, the sharpest increases from the comparable four months a year ago took place in Baltimore, Las Vegas, Memphis, Atlanta and Phoenix.

Klick earns sales award

Bob Klick, associated with Glee Realty, Upland and Claremont, has been awarded the sales award by the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors for having the largest single listing sold and the largest single sale for the month of August.

Klick, a former Merchandise Manager with the worlds largest retail chain is now in his third year of real estate and is active in residential resales, apartment sales and other commercial investments.

Klick and his wife Skippy, who is also in the real estate profession, are the parents of seven children. They reside in Claremont.

Apartment seminar planned

Realtors, attorneys and a former Real Estate Commissioner will be among the featured speakers at a seminar entitled, "A Case Study: Apartment Syndication," to be held at the Hotel del Coronado.

The two-day seminar will examine the legal, financial and management aspects of apartment syndication. It is being sponsored by the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, and will be held Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. The hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the registration fee of $75 for non-members, and $65 for members covers the seminar, one lunch and coffee.

Speakers and topics will include Ron Fenolio, San Francisco attorney, speaking on "Legal Implications;" Gary Aminoff, Certified Public Accountant and Realtor, on "Acquisition;" Edward F. Paul, C.A.R. Real Estate Syndication Chairman, on "Compensation;" William Schoeffler, Certified Property Manager and Realtor, on "Property and Partnership Management;" Burton Smith, past C.A.R. president and former California State Real Estate Commissioner, on "The Commissioner's Role;" and again, Gary Aminoff, who will close the seminar with "Winding Up The Partnership."

Applications for hotel reservations must be submitted by Oct. 15. Interested persons should send checks to Syndication Division, California Association of Realtors, 505 Shatto Place, Los Angeles, California 90020.

Top producer earns plaudits

James F. Carland, a former top producer in new home sales at Walker and Lee, has become the first Salesperson of the Month award winner at the new Montclair office.

"It's Jim's first month in our Resale Division, and he is already doing the fine job he did for our firm in new home sales," said Clark Cornman, Southern California vice president for the Resale Division.

Carland, who has been in real estate since 1973, joined Walker and Lee in 1976 and was the top producer in new homes sales five months in a row during his first year with the company.

Originally trained as an electrical engineer, Carland attended Iowa State University, Southern Methodist University, University of the Pacific and Claremont College. He holds a B.S. degree in electrical engineering and a Masters in Business Administration.

The Montclair office of Walker and Lee is at 9537 Central Ave., in the new Stater Brothers shopping center. The office was opened to expand service to Walker and Lee customers that originally purchased their homes through Walker and Lee from thirty of the new home developments in the Pomona Valley. Manager of the new office is Dave Darnell.

Realtor-associate clears hurdle

Virginia Bailey, Realtor-Associate of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors, has completed Course I on her way to the nationally recognized designation "Graduate, Realtors Institute" awarded by the Realtors Institute Division of the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, it was announced today by Dean Murphy, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

Earning this certificate requires completion of 30 hours of specialized real estate educational courses offered by CAR on subjects including: Introduction and organized structure of real estate, urban growth, legal and ethical environment, listing, selling, and personal and career management.

Hawkins sales holds pace

While most real estate firms have reported a slow-down in sales in recent weeks, buying activity appears to be holding a steady pace at 100 Herbert Hawkins Realtors offices in Southern California.

Sales volume for August totaled $57½ million, including cooperative sales. Total sales for the year reached half a billion dollars by Sept. 1, still maintaining a 50 percent growth rate over 1976.

$2.25 billion

Summer sets film record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that the nation's students are back in school the film companies are counting the summer theater receipts and smiling — mostly.

More money poured through the country's box offices than in any summer of movie history, according to the trade publicaton, Variety.

The paper's computer predicted the 1977 gross will reach $2.25 billion, which would be eight per cent above the previous record in 1975.

"Star Wars," of course, is the moneymaker of 1977, each week bringing new records and fresh grins to the 20th Century-Fox sales force. The latest box office gross compiled Wednesday: $154,819,488 of which the company received $104 million.

Fox's summer also was brightened by the slow but steady income from "The Other Side of Midnight." The latest box office gross: $33 million. A surprise bonanza has been a re-release of "Young Frankenstein," which collected a cool $17 million this summer.

"It looks as if we'll have one of the two top pictures of the summer in 'The Spy Who Loved Me,'" comments Mike Medavoy, production chief for United Artists. "It is shaping up as the biggest Bond picture ever, with a world-wide distributor's gross of between $65 and $75 million — $25 million domestic.

"'A Bridge Too Far' so far has a domestic gross of $20 million, below our expectations," continued Medavoy. "It's too early to teli about 'New York, New York,' but the box office gross has been $15 million domestic. When all the chips are down, including the television sale, the total rental should be $18 to $20 million, which should be the break-even point."

A happier film for United Artists is "Annie Hall," by far the biggest Woody Allen movie. It has grossed $15 million domestic and is doing surprisingly well in Europe.

Columbia could dispute United Artists' claim for the No. 2 movie of the summer. "The Deep" has reported a theater gross of $50 million domestic, with big sales abroad.

The summer brought good news to Walt Disney Productions. "The Rescuers" proved to be the studio's biggest moneymaker of cartoon features in their first release, amassing $16 million at the box office. "Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo" also performed well — $14 million.

Universal had a happy surprise in "Smokey and the Bandit," which was expected to be just another Burt Reynolds chase. Instead, it has chased up $30 million in domestic rentals, making it the studio's best performer since "Jaws."

"Smokey" helped ease the disappointments of Universal's other summer products. "MacArthur" did not return to the hearts of movie goers; "Rollercoaster" was a disappointment and the $21-million "The Sorceror" proved a disaster.

Another notable bomb: Warners' $11-million "Exorcist II: The Heretic." Columbia's $8 million "March or Die" decided on the latter.

Beside's being a summer of higher quality product, many observers credit more precise studio targeting of public tastes for the summer's record-breaking receipts.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST — Paul the Gorilla (Jim Boyd) and Jennifer of the Jungle (Judy Graubart) are stars of the popular children's television series, The Electric Company, opening its new season Oct. 17 on 272 member stations of Public Broadcasting Service.

Artist to lead classes

Ryo Terasaki will conduct workshops from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday and Oct. 22 at the Rowland Adult School art class at the Walnut Center, 476 Lemon Road, Walnut.

Miss Terasaki, a native of Southern California, specializes in florals, landscapes and seascapes.

Park building new coaster

Colossus, billed as "the longest, highest and fastest roller coaster ever built," will open next spring at Magic Mountain, Valencia amusement park.

The wooded "racing" coaster has two parallel tracks, transporting passengers on a side-by-side race to the finish line.

Colossus' double tracks, a total of 9,203 feet in length, will propel guests at speeds of more than 60 miles per hour, offering two "drops" in excess of 100 feet from top to bottom, surpassing those of any other roller coaster in the world.

The first wooden roller coaster built in Southern California in 30 years, Colossus in now under constrution.

The ride, covering some 10 acres, joins The Revolution, the Earth's biggest steel coaster, and 75 additional rides and attractions at the Valencia park. Magic Mountain had more than 3 million guests last year, placing it as one of America's top five amusement parks in annual attendance.

Chorus seeks singers

The Claremont Community Chorale, conducted by Susan Winckler, is seeking new singers for the forthcoming season. It is open to all residents of the valley.

The chorale meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays in Room 101 at the Claremont High School. It is sponsored by the Claremont Adult School. The repertoire includes music by Vivaldi, Handel, Mendelssohn and Brahms.

First decoys

A thousand years ago. Indians made the first decoys in order to attract birds to move within an arrow's range. They were made of bulrushes, woven and twisted into duck shapes.

MOVIE GUIDE FOR FAMILIES

G: "General Audiences." Film contains no materials most parents are likely to consider objectionable even for younger children.

PG: "Parental Guidance Suggested." Rating cautions parents they might consider some material unsuitable for children. It urges parents to inquire about the film before deciding on attendance.

R: "Restricted." Film contains adult-type material and those under 17 years of age are not admitted except in the company of a parent or adult guardian.

X: This is patently an adult-type film and no one under 17 is admitted. The age limit may be higher in some places.

"CHOPIN LIVES"
Garrison Theater Oct 8 Sat, 8:01 pm
Robert Guralnik, accomplished American pianist and actor, presents a highly polished drama-music portrayal of the character and music world of the composer-pianist. In elegant 19th Century attire, and using subtle stage effects, Guralnik "reincarnates" Chopin. A unique blend of great music and theatrics. "If technique to burn would set a theatre afire, Guralnik would be an arsonist of dangerous proportions." — N.Y. Times

ANNA RUSSELL
Garrison Theater Oct 15 Sat, 8:01 pm
International darling, with the style of a Duchess and the brashness of a Cockney waif. Singing, playing the piano, indulging in zany irreverences, she serves a feast of non-stop comedy. Time Magazine termed her ". . . the crown princess of musical parody." "She spoofs the music world with calumny and outrageous slap-stick," said the Philadelphia Inquirer.

TUT GUARDIAN — This porcelain reproduction of the Egyptian goddess Hathor, who guarded the tomb of King Tutankhamen, will be on exhibit Friday through Oct. 14 at the San Marino branch of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of South Pasadena, 2355 Huntington Drive.

Painter to do pastel portrait

Laguna Beach artist Diana Neville will demonstrate portraits in pastels at a meeting of the Pomona Valley Art Association at the Claremont Library at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Miss Neville began studying art at age nine and began her professional portrait career at 14. She received scholarships to the Art Students League in New York and to the Chicago Art Institute and completed her studies at the Colorado Institute of Art in Denver.

Miss Neville's works are in many private and public collections throughout the nation. In her career she has sold more than 12,000 paintings, including portraits of such celebrities as Jimmy Durante, Sergio Franchi, Robert Goulet, Phil Harris, Wayne Newton, Lee Trevino, Frank Robinson, Wes Parker, Joe Louis, and numerous prominent politicians and statesmen.

Chaffey slates energy exhibit

The Wignall Museum-Gallery at Chaffey College will present "California, a Place in the Sun," an educational program on energy, starting Saturday.

The exhibit features nine modular display panels which illustrate solar energy conversion technologies. Various types of solar collection devices will be demonstrated outdoors. There will be an information center housing solar experts who will provide additional information.

This traveling exhibit is sponsored by the University of Colorado at Denver and was assembled by the staff of the Solar Energy Exhibition Program. This was originally founded by the National Science Foundation. Many other contributors have joined the NSF in making the program available to the public.

The exhibit is geared for people of all ages and was seen by over 46,000 during the first four months tour in Colorado. Director Elizabeth Kingman originated the project and carried out the research and planning.

Along with the opening of the Museum-Gallery an Energy Affair is being held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. throughout the campus. The exploration of "Black Hole Energies and Their Potential" will be presented several times in the Planetarium. In the Forum Building there will be a continuous showing of films about various energy forms and uses. In the theater, Congressman Jim Lloyd, member of the Sub-Committee on Science and Technology, and other energy experts will be speaking throughout the day.

Exhibits will be shown on how to heat your pool; generate your own electricity; heat and cool your house; pump water; run your car; cook, dry, and preserve food; generate oxygen and new air for your home; cook without fuel and distill water.

This show will be at the gallery through November 10. Docent tours will be available by reservation. Hours at the gallery are Monday through Thursday, noon to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Friday's hours are noon to 3 p.m. and Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m. There is no charge for admission.

CCAA plans shows

The Chaffey Community Art Association will present a series of shows in the Ontario Public Library starting this month with an exhibit of weaving and stitchery by Gretchen Gilbert.

The fabric and fiber show may be viewed in the library's Garden Room through the month. The public is invited to a reception to meet the artist and hear her discuss her work next Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Gilbert's show will be followed by an exhibit of the works of Stan Book, local printmaker and painter, opening on Nov. 6, with a reception for artist on Nov. 13.

Highlighting December will be an exhibit of watercolors by CCAA president Robert George, well known Claremont artist. His paintings have been exhibited widely in California and have been shown elsewhere in the United States and Italy.

The December calendar will also feature a Christmas gala for members and guests with dinner and program.

Membership in CCAA is open to artists and all others interested in the arts.

COUNTRYSIDE—A LEWIS HOMES DEVELOPMENT

Sales now starting in Chino

'Countryside' in framing stage

The Countryside, a community of single-family homes in the southwest Chino area, is now in the framing stage of construction, with sales now starting, it was reported by Lewis Homes.

"We are making purchase available at this stage of construction in order to give buyers a sufficient period of time to sell the homes they're currently living in," said Lewis Homes president Richard A. Lewis.

The Countryside centers at Pipe Line Avenue, one block south of Carbon Canyon Road, alongside the colorful Chino Hills.

Its nearness in commuting time from cities in both Los Angeles and Orange County makes it a popular residential haven for families seeking rural-like environment, Lewis said.

The homes taking form will feature refrigerated air-conditioning, with Lewis noting that they will also be equipped with such built-in conveniences as microwave ovens and instant hot water dispensers.

Ranging in actual interior floor space from 1,416 to 2,223 square feet, they are being constructed in one and two-story and split-level elevations. Cedar shake roofs and a variety of architectural motifs will characterize the exterior styling.

Ceramic tile entries, wood-burning fireplaces, double front doors and master bedroom mirrored wardrobe doors or walk-in clothes closets are style appointments noted. Family rooms and breakfast nooks or eating counters are floor plan features.

Various models will also display guest powder rooms, formal dining rooms, wet bars and inside laundry rooms.

The Countryside's price range is from $64,000 to $85,000.

The development is reached from the Pomona Freeway by turning south on the Corona Expressway (71) to Pipe Line Avenue in Chino. The route continues south on Pipe Line to Carbon Canyon Road and right one block to the Lewis Homes sales center.

Information and floor plan drawings are obtainable at the site from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Century 21 opens new region offices

The rapid growth of Century 21 activities in the local area has necessitated the moving of Century 21 Region V's general offices to new and larger facilities.

Scheduled for Oct. 15, Region V will occupy the entire penthouse floor of the new Coast Federal Savings Building at 100 N. Citrus St. in West Covina.

The new facilities will utilize most of the 14,000 square feet of space on the sixth floor, centrally located in West Covina at Citrus Street and San Bernardino Freeway. Century 21 Region V supervises 160 brokers from the western part of the San Gabriel Valley to the Arizona border.

The educational and training facilities are more than doubled in size. The new facilities will enable the region to accommodate 250 people for pre-license and after license training, lectures, broker council activities and advertising meetings. Part of the expanded square footage includes workshop space for creation of more sophisticated pre-license training courses as well as implementation of the "2&1" after license training program. The development of future advanced sales management, and more sophisticated broker training. Broker services, accounting, administration and executive offices are doubled in size as well.

The new office structure will include a 2,000-square-foot executive suite, the administrative head office of Century 21 region V. Philip J. Yeager, regional director, and William P. Yeager, administrative director — will have space in the new complex. In addition to Region V, Phil and Bill Yeager also own and supervise regional operations in the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, where they have separate regional facilities.

Since its founding in 1972, Century 21 has become the largest real estate franchise operation in Southern California as well as in most major markets in the United States and Canada. Since 1972, it has grown to over 4,500 offices, with over 45,000 associates to serve the real estate needs of North America.

Special action urged by builders

California tax relief periled

California homeowners and renters will be deprived of 700-to-800 million dollars of property tax relief during the current tax year unless the Legislature is called into special session promptly, according to Jerome Blank, president of the California Association of Realtors.

Bland indicated that he had wired Governor Brown, Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy and Senate President Pro-Tem James R. Mills urging action to call a special session so that work can be completed on a tax bill by November 1.

"Unless legislation is adopted by the November 1 date," Blank said, "the administrative machinery necessary to deliver property tax relief to homeowners and renters during the present fiscal year cannot be accomplished." He indicated that the state surplus would permit such relief without any new taxes and that deferral of its use for this purpose would lead to pressures for possible diversion of these surplus funds to government spending programs.

The Realtor president pledged the continuing participation of his 100,000-member Associaton with the Legislature and the Governor's office in the evolution of a tax package, but stressed his organization's preference for a "simplified measure" that would include basically only four principles:

1. No new taxes or new tax authorizations — utilization only of the existing and continuing state budget surplus.

2. A limitation on property tax revenues which may be raised by governmental entities to insure long term continuance of relief.

3. Direct reduction of homeowners taxes through state rebates, credits or subventions to local governments.

4. Comparable renter relief.

Blank indicated that tax relief and property tax limitations continue as the "most pressing issue" confronting California.

"As Realtors who are in daily contact with homeowners, homebuyers and renters, we are accutely conscious of the public demand for tax relief and the need for it," Bland concluded.

CARET meeting planned

The California Association of Real Estate Teachers (CARET) will present a special conference at the 73rd annual Realtors convention in San Diego on Oct. 6 featuring Irv Johnson, well-known author and lecturer.

Johnson, a Ventura-based consultant, will present an innovative approach to selling real estate by mortgage-equity anlaysis based upon his recently published book of a similar title.

The session, scheduled for 2:15 p.m. at the Town and Country Hotel, is open to all.

The first of its kind, Johnson's book and presentation focuses on the analysis, valuation and sale of investment properties offering a simplified mortgage-equity technique which bypasses the complicated traditional methods with easy to follow procedures.

Johnson, with more than 30 years experience in the field, is a nationally recognized authority on real estate appraisal and investment analysis.

In his presentation, he will deal with two basic types of real estate investment: income producing properties such as apartment houses, shopping centers and office buildings; and non-producing properties purchased for appreciation, particularly land and older improved properties in transitional areas.

In each of these areas, he provides specialized assistance in every phase of the transaction from initiation to closing; analyzing and listing the property at a realistic and justifiable price, making a clear presentation to the client, building a knowledgeable basis for investment decision-making and financing the sale.

Numerous case histories are used to further explain the mortgage-equity technique, as are more than 70 patterned arithmetic procedures.

The California Association of Real Estate Teachers, a division of the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, is an organization whose members have a prime interest in the improvement of instruction in continuing real estate education. CARET stresses those activities involved with teaching, particularly courses leading to the California Real Estate Certificate, the five basic courses necessary to meet requirements for the Brokers License Examination and other elective real estate courses.

Just a few of the quality homes at C/L Inc.'s Northview single-family home development in Alta Loma are still available, according to Gene Comer, sales manager for the exclusive sales agents, Walker & Lee.

"Buyers are quick to pick up on the value at Northview because they realize that C/L Inc.'s built-in promise to use the best materials and craftsmen for the money is a fact not a slogan," Comer says in explaining the success of the project.

High quality features found in the community include barbecue gas stubs, pass-through windows, wet bars, step-down living rooms, sloped cathedral ceilings, eye-catching cantilever hearth in master suite and separate master bedroom suite dressing area.

Each of the homes, priced from $72,950, has wall-to-wall carpeting, tempered sliding glass door to rear yard.

For safety and convenience, each home is also equipped with floor safes, smoke detectors and burglar alarms, laundry service areas and additional wall and ceiling insulation.

Exterior styling includes brick and stone vaneers, medium shake or tile roofing, all set on an extra spacious lot.

Pigeons win battle of nerves

Officials are trying to evict the pigeons, whose droppings are threatening the airplane's skin with corrosion.

"That many pigeons can leave quite a deposit," said Lt. Cmdr. Mike Schuster, a safety officer at Oceana.

Schuster said rotating beacons were installed in the hangar to generate a pattern of shifting shadows to scare the birds.

Several other devices were considered and rejected, including rubber snakes and effigies of owls and hawks.

Schuster says he has some other ideas: a barrier of plastic strips along the top of the hangar doors to keep pigeons out or stringing mesh netting throughout the hangar's roof area to keep the them from flying around or roosting.

"If they had no place to land, I think it would be a short time till they sought a more hospitable residence," he reasoned.

Meanwhile, the Oceana pigeon flock is "alive and healthy," he said.

Employees in decline

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An endangered species they're not — but Los Angeles County employees certainly are not as numerous as they were last year.

The record showed Monday that there were 76,425 employees on the roster at the end of the fiscal 1976-77 year. That is 4,776 fewer county workers than at the beginning of the fiscal year.

The figures show a significant decrease from the 86,000-employee high in the summer of 1975, and reflect the hiring freeze imposed by the County Board of Supervisors, officials said.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO SELL REAL PROPERTY AT PRIVATE SALE
No EAP-12957

Superior Court of the State of California for the County of Los Angeles

Estate of ROBERT EMMETT HAINES, Deceased.

Notice is hereby given that, subject to confirmation by the above-entitled Superior Court, on October 7, 1977, at 1:00 P.M., or thereafter within the time allowed by law, the undersigned, as Administrator of the estate of ROBERT EMMETT HAINES, deceased, will sell at private sale to the highest and best net bidder on the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned all right, title and interest of ROBERT EMMETT HAINES, deceased, at the time of his death, and all right, title, and interest that the estate has acquired in addition to that of decedent at the time of his death, in the real property located in the County of Los Angeles, State of California, described as follows:

Improved real property in City of Pomona, County of Los Angeles, State of California, described as follows:

Lot 3 of Tract No. 9338 as per map recorded in Book 111, pages 85 and 86 of Maps, in the offices of the County Recorder of said County.

The property is commonly referred to as 548 Illinois Street, Pomona, California.

The sale is subject to current taxes, covenants, conditions, restrictions, reservations, rights, rights of way, and easements of record; any encumbrances of record to be satisfied out of the purcahse price.

The property is to be sold on an "as is" basis, except as to title.

Bids or offers are invited for this property and must be in writing and will be received at the office of LAW OFFICES OF JOHN MORAN, attorney for said administrator, at 1192 North White Avenue, Pomona, California 91766, or may be filed with the clerk of said Superior Court or delivered to JOHN MORAN, of LAW OFFICES OF JOHN MORAN, personally, at any time after first publication of this notice and before making said sale.

The property will be sold on the following terms: cash, or part cash and part credit, the terms of such credit to be acceptable to the undersigned and to the Superior Court, ten percent (10%) of the amount bid to accompany the offer by certified check, and the balance to be paid on confirmation of sale by the Superior Court. Taxes, rents, operating and maint maintenance expenses and premiums on insurance acceptable to the purchaser shall be prorated as of the date of confirmation of sale. Examination of title, recording of conveyance, transfer taxes, and any title insurance policy shall be at the expense of the purchaser of purchasers.

The undersigned reserves the right to reject any and all bids prior to entry of an order confirming the sale.

SALE OF SCRAP METAL

CALIFORNIA STATE POLYTECHNIC UNIVERSITY, POMONA
3801 West Temple Avenue
Pomona, California 91768

Sealed bids for the purchase of scrap metal will be received by the Procurement and Support Services Department, Building 75, until 10a.m., October 11, 1977, at which time they will be publicly opened and read. Award will be to the highest bidder meeting the University's requirements as set forth herein.

Prospective bidders may arrange to inspect the scrap metal located in the Corporation Yard of the Physical Plant Department by contacting Mrs. Elizabeth Crowell, Warehouse Manager (714) 598-4071.

Bids will be accepted only on the bid form which will be presented to each potential bidder at the time they inspect the scrap metal. No bids will be accepted which do not include a firm dollar bid for the entire lot of scrap metal. The bidder to whom the bid is awarded will be responsible for cleaning up the scrap metal storage area to the entire satisfaction of Mrs. Crowell.

The successful bidder will remove all scrap metal from the aforementioned site within two (2) consecutive working days commencing the day after the bid has been awarded to the highest bidder. Payment in full to the University will be made to the Property Clerk, Building 75, before the scrap metal is picked up. Payment must be made by certified check payable to "California State Polytechnic University, Pomona" in the full amount of the bid.

The University reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

The successful bidder agrees to indemnify and save harmless the University, its officers, agents, and employees, from any and all loss, damage, or liability that may be suffered or incurred by the University, its officers, agents, and employees, caused by, arising out of or in any way connected with the removal of the said property.

ATTENTION!

ALL FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME STATEMENTS FILED IN 1972 MUST BE REFILED IN 1977

(if the business is still operating)

AND ALSO

those with changes must be republished at the time of refiling

HERE IS THE LAW —

(Business and Professions Code)

Sec. 17917
(c) Where a new statement is required because the prior statement has expired under subdivision (a) of Section 17920, the new statement need not be published unless there has been a change in the information required in the expired statement.

Sec. 17920
(a) Unless the statement expires earlier under subdivision (b) or (c), a fictitious business name statement expires at the end of five years from December 31 of the year in which it was filed in the office of the county clerk.

Sec. 17917
(b) Subject to the requirements of subdivision (a), the newspaper selected for the publication of the statement should be one that circulates in the area where the business is to be conducted.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON THE FIVE-YEAR FICTITIOUS NAME LAW

1. QUESTION: When do new requirements in the Fictitious Name Law go into effect?
ANSWER: Beginning January 1, 1977, all statements filed during 1972 must be refilled with the County Clerk.

2. QUESTION: Who must file the required new statement of doing business under a fictitious name?
ANSWER: All individuals, partnerships, trusts, corporations and associations which operate under names not their own must refile.

3. QUESTION: Is there a statutory fee for refiling?
ANSWER: Yes, by law the County Clerk must charge $10.00.

4. QUESTION: Will 1972 registrants receive notification that they must refile in 1977?

ANSWER: Yes, the law requires the County Clerk to give such notice at least two months before the end of the year 1977. In Los Angeles County, where some 35,000 statements were filed and published in 1972, notification will begin to go to registrants in January, 1977, when all those who registered in January, February or March, 1972, will receive notice with the offer of forms for refiling. In April, similarily, those who filed in April, May or June, 1972, will be notified and in July those who filed in July, August or September, 1972; and in December those who filed in October, November and December, 1972.

5. QUESTION: Must statements when refiled be republished?
ANSWER: Yes, if there has been any change in the statement as originally filed in 1972.

6. QUESTION: What is a Fictitious Firm Name?
ANSWER: One that does not include the surname of the operator, or one that implies the ownership participation of others such as "Brothers", "Sons", "Associates", "Company"; or if a corporation owner, a name different from that registered in the Articles of Incorporation.

7. QUESTION: What is the purpose of the fictitious name procedure?
ANSWER: The requirements have been in effect in California since 1872 and are designed to protect the consumer by enabling him to identify the person or persons with whom he is really dealing.

8. QUESTION: Must all firms presently doing business under fictitious names file new statements?
ANSWER: Yes, all must refile under new code sections of the Business and Professions Code, 17900-17930 and also Sections 7540 and 101595 and Section 10522.5 of the Business and Professions Code.

9. QUESTION: Is it true that a mere change in the residence address of an individual or general partner doing business under a registered fictitious name excuses the party at the five year refiling interval from meeting the publication provision which requires a new publication "if there has been a change of information in the expired statement"?
ANSWER: The wording, "change in the residence address" in Section 17920 of Business and Professions Code is confusing: It has reference only to the statutory expiration of any Fictitious Business Name Statement "40 days after any change in the facts." Changes in residence address are specifically exempted from the changes which invalidate a fictitious name filing. The requirements for publication with "any change in the information" is in Section 17917 of the Business and Professions Code. It is not related to the exemption in Section 17920. It has been held that change in any residential address, as well as business address, is a "change in information" and will therefore require republication upon renewal at the end of any five year renewal period.

10. QUESTION: Must statements filed in 1973 be refiled in 1978, those filed in 1974 in 1979, and so on?
ANSWER: Yes, statements must be refiled every five years.

11. QUESTION: What is the penalty for failure to file and publish?
ANSWER: One penalty will be inability to entertain a court action until the law has been complied with. In addition, most banks demand evidence of filing and publication prior to opening an account under a fictitious name.

12. QUESTION: On a first filing must there be a newspaper publication?
ANSWER: Yes, the refiling law does not excuse first filers from meeting the statutory publishing requirements.

13. QUESTION: Where are the printed forms to be obtained for this filing and publication procedure?
ANSWER: Free forms and service are available at this newspaper office or at any office of the County Clerk.

14. QUESTION: What is the cost of filing and publication?
ANSWER: Statutory filing fee for the Fictitious Name Statement, either new or refiled, inclusive of mandatory certification of a copy by the County Clerk, is $10.00. Publication charge for the four insertions of the notice is determined by the newspaper.

15. QUESTION: Can two fictitious name businesses operating under different names of the same address and owned by the same person or persons be filed and published under a single statement?
ANSWER: Yes, more than one business name can be listed on the single statement provided all have the same address of business. Each separate business is to be indicated.

16. QUESTION: After January 1, 1977, will all new filings require publication?
ANSWER: All new filings will require publication.

17. QUESTION: Precisely what is the process for publishing?
ANSWER: Publication must be made once a week for four weeks in a qualified newspaper circulating in the area of the affected business. Publication must be commenced within 30 days after filing. A proof of publication must be filed with the County Clerk within 30 days after completion of publication.

18. QUESTION: What other values do registrants gain through publication of Fictitious Firm Name?
ANSWER: Evidential proof of priority is established in the event competitors later use or file under the same name. Also, there is direct advertising value for the firm through multiple insertions of name and address of the business, it being noted that newspaper frequently print such names in black face type in capital letters, separately spaced.

DO YOU NEED A SALESMAN—OR A FULL TIME PROFESSIONAL? We can study your financial goals, use our knowledge of the tax structure, the market, and all the options available—and then offer you an honest opinion of the best way to profit from your investment. And, if we don't think selling your home at this time is the best answer, we'll tell you so, even if it means passing up a nice commission. We'll take our chances on your future business.

YES, HE TOOK HIS CIGAR LIGHTER AND SET FIRE TO THE POLYGRAM AND LET IT BURN OUT IN THE CUSPIDOR.
AND YOU CAN'T ARREST THE GOVERNOR FOR THAT?
OF COURSE NOT! THE LIE BOX IS UNACCEPTABLE EVIDENCE IN COURT.
HE'S PROTECTING THE MAID. I SMELL A TRIANGLE.
Meanwhile: MARIE, THE MAID, TALKS WITH THE GOVERNOR-
YOU WERE REELECTED! YOUR "REHABILITATION" ISSUE WON WITH THE VOTERS.
AND THE BOY DRESS DESIGNER YOU TRIED TO "REHABILITATE" STILL NEEDS YOUR HELP, GOVERNOR.
THAT PURSE-SNATCHER! WHY HE MAY BE THE ONE WHO POISONED MY WIFE.
YOU OWE IT TO THE MEMORY OF YOUR POOR DEPARTED WIFE TO DO SOMETHING FOR THAT BOY. SHE LOVED THE DRESS.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

JENNIFER MAGLEY OF MASSILLON, OH, ASKS:

"WHERE DOES CHOCOLATE COME FROM?"

CHOCOLATE IS MADE FROM THE SEEDS, OR BEANS, OF THE TROPICAL CACAO TREE. THE BEANS GROW IN PODS THAT LOOK LIKE LONG CANTALOUPES. AT THE CHOCOLATE FACTORY, THE BEANS ARE ROASTED AND GROUND. THE GRINDING ACTION MELTS THE FATTY "COCOA BUTTER" INSIDE THE BEANS, AND TURNS IT INTO A THICK CHOCOLATE LIQUID. WHEN POURED INTO MOLDS, THE LIQUID HARDENS INTO CAKES OF UNSWEETENED CHOCOLATE.

How to use Liquid Protein to lose 8-80* lbs. fast while naturally commanding your Hypothalamus Gland to stop sending hunger signals

*8—80 lbs. is the weight loss range of Dr. Litten's patients.

"New Jersey Doctor uses Liquid Protein to help patients change their body chemistry to achieve quick and lasting weight loss"

©1977

By Richard Swan

It's all in your head! When you're hungry, this old saying is certainly true. Most people think hunger is controlled by their stomachs. It isn't. Your 'Hunger Control Center' is located in your head. It's called your Hypothalamus Gland.

By using Liquid Protein on Dr. Litten's "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control," you can naturally command your Hypothalamus Gland to stop sending hunger signals. You can then lose all the weight you want, faster than you ever have before, without hunger. Since all of us have a Hypothalamus Gland – everyone, whether 8 lbs. or 80 lbs. overweight, can succeed with Dr. Litten's system.

How much can you lose? Some people lost 13–15 lbs. the first week. Others lost 20–24 lbs. in just 14 days. Total weight losses of 20, 30, 50 and even 80 lbs. were recorded. The number of lbs. you can quickly shed and keep off will depend on how much you're over your ideal weight.

How is it possible to safely lose weight that fast without hunger? As a copywriter, that's what I wanted to know. So I flew to Cherry Hill, New Jersey and set up an interview with Dr. Litten. Here's what I found out.

Swan: How does your system work?

Dr. Litten: My system works in two steps. First, you temporarily change your body chemistry to stop hunger signals. This allows you to lose weight very quickly without the usual torturous hunger pangs. In step two, you permanently change your 'heavy body chemistry' to a 'slim body chemistry.' Like a slim person, you'll crave food less, so you'll keep the weight off.

Swan: Why do you call your method the "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control?"

Dr. Litten: Because medical research has finally revealed what overweight people have known all along – they have a different body chemistry than slim people. The key to losing weight and keeping it off is to attack the 'heavy body chemistry' problem.

Swan: What is a 'heavy body chemistry?'

Dr. Litten: Heavy people have more fat cells and larger fat cells than slim people. This gives them a 'heavy body chemistry.' A 'heavy body chemistry' has three drawbacks. First, it causes heavy people to crave food more than slim people. Second, it speeds up the conversion of food into new fat cells. And finally, it prevents fat cells, which are already there, from being burned up.

Swan: It sounds like a stacked deck. But can't a heavy person still lose weight and keep it off if they have will power?

Dr. Litten: Not really. And again the problem is body chemistry. When you starve yourself, your body begins to burn up fat for its energy. It also burns muscles and vital organs. You literally become a cannibal. Since some of the weight you lose is muscle and vital organs, you still have too many fat cells. Which means that you still have a 'heavy body chemistry.' As soon as you quit your starvation diet, your mind gives eat, eat, eat signals to repair and replace your burned up muscles and vital organs, you then gain all your weight back and sometimes more.

Swan: Can this vicious circle ever be broken?

Dr. Litten: Yes. But, you'll never break it with pills, fad diets, or by using will power to starve yourself; because none of these methods attack the real problem – a 'heavy body chemistry.' But my "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control" does.

Swan: How can you change your body chemistry?

Dr. Litten: The key to my system is a special liquid protein. You drink it 5 times a day. Approximately 24-48 hours after you begin my system, your body chemistry will change. Your body starts to generate natural appetite suppressors. These suppressors travel to your Hypothalamus Gland and quiet your 'Hunger Control Center.' Because of this, 97% of the people who have followed my system experienced no hunger when they skipped eating.

Swan: What about step two of your system?

Dr. Litten: Again, the key to step two is liquid protein. As you quickly lose weight, your protein requirements are taken care of by the liquid protein – not by burning muscles and vital organs. You lose what you want to lose, namely fat cells and excess water. As your fat cells quickly melt away, so does your 'heavy body chemistry.' And since you haven't burned up muscles and vital organs, there are no eat, eat, eat signals to replace these tissues.

Swan: What happens when you reach your ideal weight?

Dr. Litten: The obvious benefit is that you'll have a slimmer, sexier figure. But there's an extra bonus. Along with your attractive outside appearance, you'll now have a 'slim body chemistry.'

Swan: Exactly what do you mean by a 'slim body chemistry?'

Dr. Litten: We all know the slim person who eats what he wants. He enjoys food more than you because he is not guilty about eating. But he never puts on any weight. You'll have his or her body chemistry. You'll naturally crave food less. You'll be able to eat delicious well-balanced meals and totally satisfy your hunger. But since you'll be eating less, you won't gain your weight back.

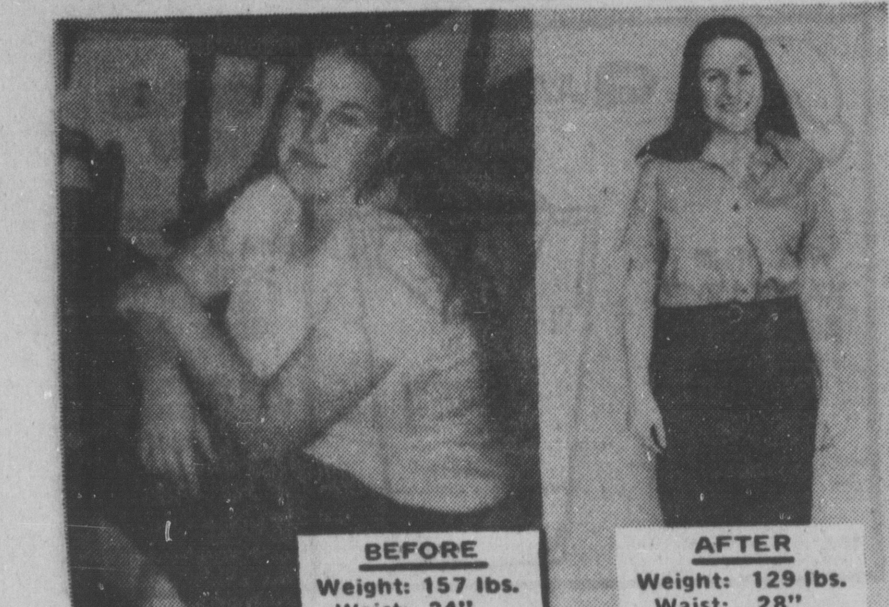
Swan: Is your system safe?

Dr. Litten: It's completely safe for anyone in normal health. In fact, I'm so proud of my system I invite you to show it to your family doctor.

Swan: It sounds great. But I'm from Missouri. Do you have case histories of successful users?

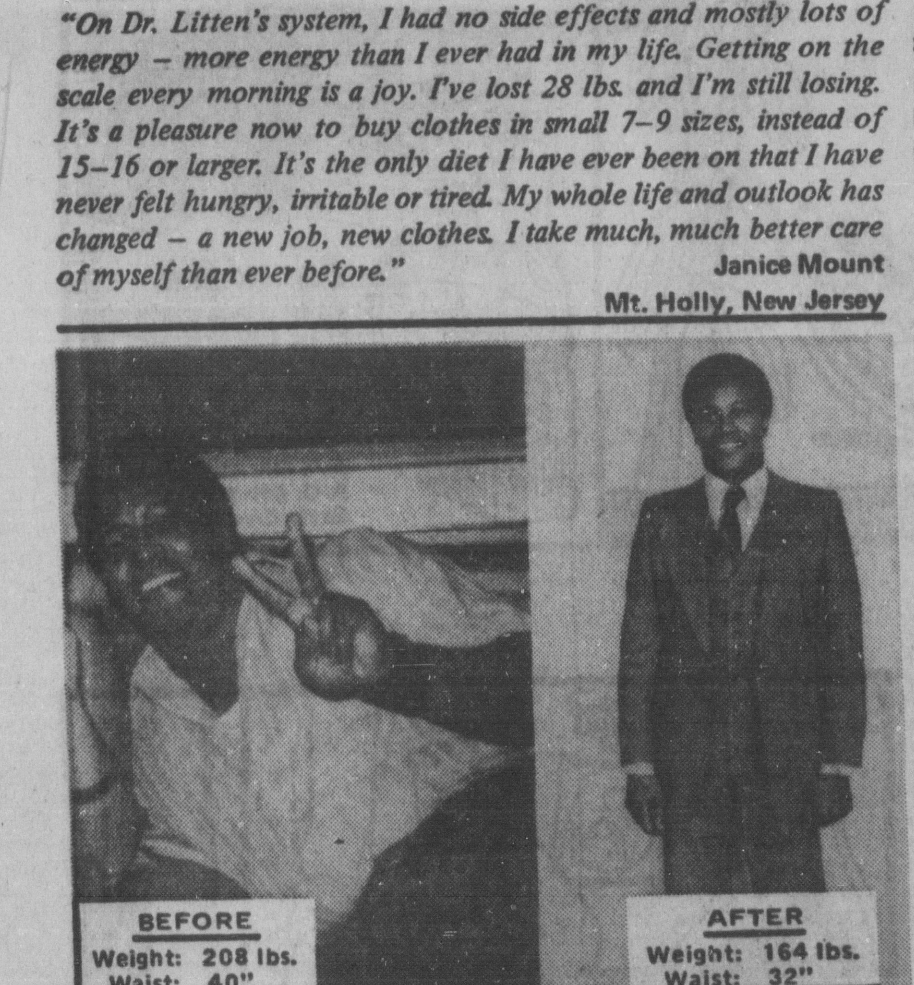
Dr. Litten: Yes. I can give you their stories and even supply before and after photos.

Dr. Litten supplied hundreds of case histories and before and after photos. Since space is limited, I've just shown two before and after photos, along with three stories. But before you read them, let me mention this. I did my own research and found that leading universities have conducted studies which verify the effectiveness of Liquid Protein for achieving rapid weight loss.



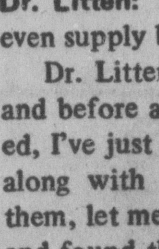
"On Dr. Litten's system, I had no side effects and mostly lots of energy – more energy than I ever had in my life. Getting on the scale every morning is a joy. I've lost 28 lbs. and I'm still losing. It's a pleasure now to buy clothes in small 7–9 sizes, instead of 15–16 or larger. It's the only diet I have ever been on that I have never felt hungry, irritable or tired. My whole life and outlook has changed – a new job, new clothes. I take much, much better care of myself than ever before."

Janice Mount
Mt. Holly, New Jersey



"Dr. Litten's system has given me the best results I have ever had out of all the diets; grapefruit, diet pills and Stillmen diets. On Dr. Litten's system, I lost 8 lbs. the first week and then went on to lose 44 lbs. As a fireman, I was concerned about the loss of strength, which I had experienced on other diets. But I was able to work without any loss of strength. Since going off the system, I haven't gained one pound back."

Parris Branch
Cherry Hill, New Jersey



BEFORE: 163 lbs. 34" waist
AFTER: 120 lbs. 28" waist

"I was going into a size 18 dress when I started Dr. Litten's system. I lost enough weight, 43 lbs., to fit into my 23 year old daughter's size 5 dungarees. It is an easy and fast way to lose weight. It's not boring. I lost 10 lbs. the first week and I didn't feel the usual hunger pangs."

Betty Mahoney
Cherry Hill, New Jersey

AFTER: 178 lbs. 37" waist

"When I started Dr. Litten's system, I was a diabetic and had hypertension. I lost 13 lbs. in seven days. While taking the protein, I was never hungry and I worked in a restaurant, where I would pick constantly before. I was weighed every 3 days and every time I was weighed, I constantly lost 1 to 3 lbs. Now that I'm off the program – and 82 lbs. lighter – I'm just not as interested in food as I was."

John Valentino

HYPOTHALAMUS GLAND
Natural Appetite
Suppressors

Dr. Neil Litten explains how his "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control" stops hunger. Contrary to popular belief, your hunger is not controlled by your stomach. It's controlled by your Hypothalamus Gland. Approximately 24 — 48 hours after you begin taking Liquid Protein on Dr. Litten's system, your body chemistry will change. Your body will begin to generate Natural Appetite Suppressors. These suppressors will travel to your Hypothalamus Gland and quiet your 'Hunger Control Center.' The article below will explain how you can safely lose all the weight you want — faster than you ever have before — without hunger.

AFTER: 114 lbs. 26" waist

"I experienced no hunger from the beginning. I lost 53 lbs.–8 lbs. in the first week. During my 'fat days' I slept more than 12 hrs. a day. Soon after I began the system I became an early morning riser– my energy was abundant."

Shirley Watson
Delran, New Jersey

Dr. Litten's system worked for Betty, John and Shirley and can work for you too.

WHAT CAN THE SYSTEM DO FOR YOU?

After you follow his system, the following benefits can be yours:

- You can 'safely' lose weight faster than you ever have before.
- Lose inches off your waist, hips, thighs and banish ugly cellulite bumps.
- You won't be hungry, so little will power is needed.
- Once you start, you must lose weight. If you follow his system properly, it is impossible to fail.
- You can lose as much as you want. Just stick to the system to reach your ideal weight.
- After you lose your weight, you can keep it off with your new 'slim body chemistry.' You'll actually crave food less.

Dr. Litten's system is not available anywhere, except in the New Jersey area. But you can order his system right now, direct by mail.

HOW CAN YOU ORDER THE SYSTEM?

If you wish to order Dr. Litten's "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control," which includes a supply of special liquid protein and an easy-to-understand instruction booklet, simply do this: Write "Weight Loss System" and your name and address on a piece of paper and send it along with $9.95 plus $1 postage & handling in cash, check or money order. (Make checks payable to Weight Loss Research Group.) If you have Master Charge or VISA, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. name of card B. card number C. card exp. date.

Mail your orders to WEIGHT LOSS RESEARCH GROUP, 536 Cleveland Ave. N.W., Dept. G–72, Canton, Ohio 44702.

Dr. Litten's system is backed with a 100% money back guarantee. After following his system, you must safely lose weight faster than you ever have before and keep it off. If this does not happen, or if you're dissatisfied in any way, just send it back. You'll receive every penny of your money back – no questions asked.

Supplies of liquid protein are becoming limited. To make sure you get Dr. Litten's system, why not order right now, while you're thinking about it. If you have any questions, feel free to call me, Richard Swan. at (216) 455–1474.

Sunday

Lee Majors stars as a Vietnam veteran trying to rehabilitate his best friend, who has become bitter and withdrawn after being maimed in war action he feels Majors could have prevented in "Just a Little Inconvenience," an NBC World Premiere Movie, Sunday at 9PM. Frank Logan (Majors) undertakes to teach the embittered Kenny Briggs (James Stacy) to ski again despite the loss of an arm and a leg. Logan hopes this will snap Briggs out of his depression and return him to a useful and happy life. At the ski lodge, Briggs falls in love with Nikki Klausing (Barbara Hershey), a young school teacher on vacation but the romance is complicated by his lack of self-esteem.

A young college girl with old-fashioned virtues has a Cinderella love affair and finds herself and her unborn child entangled in an adoption racket in "Black Market Baby," the ABC Friday Night Movie (9PM), starring Linda Purl and Desi Arnaz Jr. When Anne Marcarino (Purl) meets pre-med student Steve Aletti (Arnaz) during her first year at college, she tries at first to avoid his attention, but soon finds herself deeply in love. When she tells him that she is pregnant, Aletti suggests that they see a certain lawyer, Mr. Freemont, who will place the baby in a home without going through the red tape of an adoption agency. Anne has to make the crucial decision of keeping the child or giving it up to a childless couple.

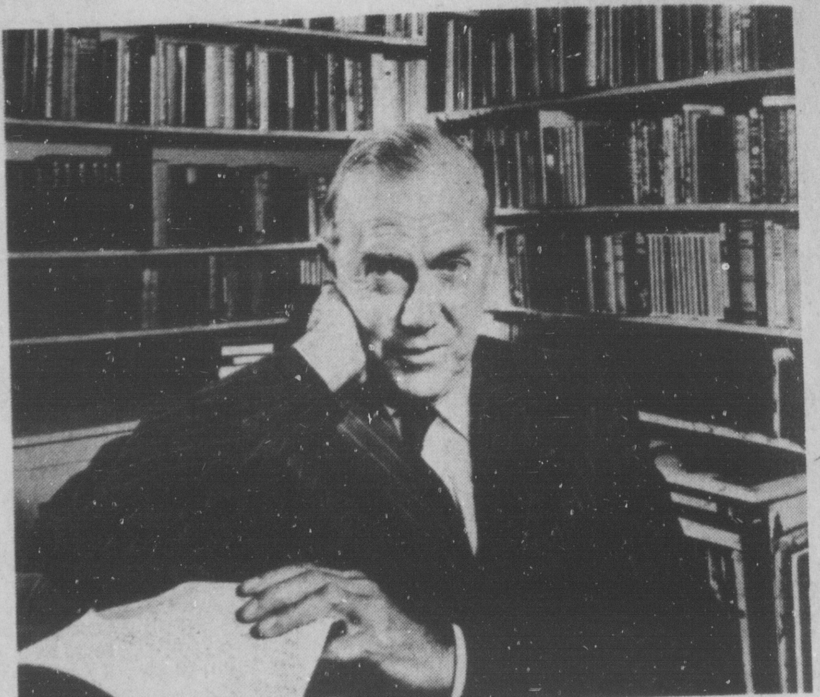
SHADES OF GREENE



Graham Greene, the eminent English author, will have sixteen of his short stories represented on television in Shades of Greene, a weekly series of twelve hour-long broadcasts, on Channel 28 at 8PM, on Sundays.

Whether color or black and white, local television screens will be displaying 16 variegated new "Shades of Greene," beginning Sunday at 8PM on KCET, Channel 28.

The popular British series, produced by Thames Television, is adapted from 16 short stories by eminent English author Graham Greene. Set to air in 12 weekly hour-long programs, "Shades of Green" marks the first time the author's short stories have been adapted to another medium. Featured performers are such international stars as Paul Scofield, Donald Pleasence, Genevieve Page, Denholm Elliott, Elaine Stritch and John Gielgud.

Greene's fine sense of story, his quiet humor, his clear and deep compassion for the downtrodden and betrayed, and above all his non-judgmental understanding of the human condition, have made him immensely well-read by people all over the world. During the last 40 years, films have been made from such global bestsellers as "Brighton Rock," "The Third Man," "Our Man in Havana," "The Quiet American" and "Orient Express."

Each of the stories brought to life in "Shades of Greene" displays Greene's gift for drama and surprise, as well as his unique insight into human relationships and ambitions, passions and weaknesses. Greene himself adapted one short story, "Alas, Poor Maling," for the series. Other stories include "Special Duties," a story about a wealthy old reprobate who tries to buy his way into Heaven; "When Greek Meets Greek," in which a pair of aging con artists are bested by the younger generation; and "Cheap in August" wherein a reserved Englishwoman ventures outside of her tight little world during a Jamaican vacation. Their television adaptations bring to a still wider audience the works of a man, considered by many to be England's greatest living writer.

VISIONS RETURNS

If a network executive were to suggest that a series of dramas—sometimes controversial. written by largely unknown writers and acted by less than well-known actors—be put on American television. that executive might might just be told to pack his briefcase and change channels.

Such a series. however. not only made it on the air last year. through the energy and talent of Barbara Schultz. artistic director of the series. but is returning for a second season this year. "Visions" the highly-acclaimed. Peabody Award-winning drama anthology. returns on Sunday at 10PM on KCET. Channel 28.

The teleplays and films of "Visions" second season are again wide-ranging. controversial and provocative. and most of the playwrights and many of the actors are not exactly household words. The opening night presentation is Murray Mednick's "Iowa." starring Bethel Leslie. Warren Stevens. Carol Fox and Peggy Feury. The play concerns a midwestern family's reunion in California. a gathering of three generations in which painful and loving memories are shared and the participants learn something about themselves. Other contemporary themes will be interpreted in succeeding weeks: "Freeman." starring Dick Anthony Williams. Lou Gossett and Paulene Myers. is about a young black man unable to find his place in society: "Alambrista" follows a youthful Mexican illegal alien on his odyssey through Tijuana to the California agricultural fields: and "The Dancing Bear." starring Charles Durning and Tyne Daly is a tragicomedy about an unemployed character actor in Hollywood—a man who refuses to give up hope.

These and other new plays. as well as repeat performances of seven of the finest from the first "Visions" season. will provoke conversation. thought. tears. and laughter. says Barbara Schultz. She should know. "Visions" has been her vision from the beginning.

FOREVER FERNWOOD

Like its sensational predecessor. Forever Fernwood is a soap opera that lathers the funnybone and bubbles with wild abandon.

Forever Fernwood picks up where MH2 left off...well sort of. Tom Hartman (Greg Mullavey) unable to cope with life now that Mary is gone. has set up housekeeping in his car. Heather (Claudie Lamb) Hartman's life is changed by a religious experience in the park gazebo. George Shumway falls into a vat of rustoleum at the plant and is given a complete lift by the doctors at the Fernwood Receiving Hospital. and comes out looking just like Tab Hunter. Martha Shumway (Dody Goodman) is afraid to go to bed with the "new" George (Tab Hunter). And Cathy (Debralee Scott). the Shumway's amorous daughter is seeing her father in a new light.

The Haggers (Mary Kay Place and Graham Jarvis) are learning about the high price of success by the new lows it's bringing to their love life. Loretta's on the road and Charlie isn't. Absence may make the heart grow fonder. but Charlie is not the only one in love with Loretta and Loretta is not the only one in love with Charlie. Complicating things are Loretta's new manager Jerry Hubbard (Fred Willard) and Harmon Farinella (Richard Hatch) her ardent admirer.

The Jeeters (Dabney Coleman and Marian Mercer) are flat broke and living out of garbage cans...but he is still Mayor. make no mistake about that!

Then there's the Major sisters. accident-prone Penny (Judy Kahan) who has a crush on Tom Hartman....and her beautiful but mean sister Eleanor (Shelly Fabares) who is confined to a wheelchair. and determined to win Tom's love...no matter what!

CLOSE-UP

WHAT'S NEW!

So what's new with Betty White? Well, quite a lot—and maybe not so much—depending on how long it's been since your television set went on the blink and whether or not you ever bothered to have it repaired!

Betty White is the star of her own television series this season, The Betty White Show (Mondays at 9PM on CBS). But what's new about that? She was the star of her own Los Angeles "talk" show in the early 1950s, and she did it "live" thirty hours each week!

Okay, how about the fact she won two Emmy Awards in consecutive years for her performance as Sue Ann Nivens, the "happy homemaker" on The Mary Tyler Moore Show. What's new about that? She received her first Emmy nearly a quarter of a century ago.

And if you noticed she was missing from the New Year's Day Rose Parade festivities on television, you were right. But only after doing it for twenty years, and it was one of her all-time favorite projects. Strangely enough, her Rose Parade "image" may have been one of the factors involved when critics and viewers alike expressed great astonishment over Betty White as Sue Ann Nivens, a character light years away from the neat, wholesome, squeaky-clean lady usually seen on television.

"I don't know how I ever got that 'goody-two-shoes' image in the first place," Miss White protests. "I guess it was the housewife role in that other series of mine, Life With Elizabeth, or maybe some of my TV commercials, but Sue Ann saved my life. I felt as if I were born again. I'd waited all my life for that kind of role."

"I think when we first started talking about a series for me," Miss White explains, "it was after Mary had decided to hang up her Mary Richards character and go on to other things. We all felt it would be a mistake to attempt to make Sue Ann Nivens the lead in a series. She was not only just plain evil (and I loved her for it) but she was pretty much one-dimensional, too. So we compromised. Joyce Whitman is slightly softer and more vulnerable which makes her a lot easier to live with week after week, but she also inherited a lot of Sue Ann's skill with a 'bitchy' line so, hopfully, we'll not lose Sue Ann completely but Joyce will have a little more depth and range."

In this corner, weighing 110 pounds...

Wife Beating. Some call it America's second most popular indoor sport.

Tragically, it most often goes unreported and the husbands go unpunished. And even if the wife decides to leave... where will she go? What will she do?

This week, Christine Lund provides the answers in a 4-part Eyewitness News Closeup.

You'll learn the eight danger signs of the potential wife-beater.

And you'll find out how you can fight back in your own way.

Victoria Principal, Rosanne Katon, Karen Lamm, Suzette Carroll and Lillian Muller have been added to the cast of "The Night They Took Miss Beautiful," dramatic two-hour NBC World Premiere movie. They will portray beauty pageant finalists representing the United States, Germany, Israel, England and the West Indies.

The suspense drama focuses on the abduction of the five finalists in an international ransom.

Marc Singer will play major roles in two NBC-TV projects this season. Singer plays Ross Savitch, the childhood friend and later problem husband to the lead character, Marja Fludjicki (played by Lesley Ann Warren) in "70 Park Avenue," the NBC Novel fo Television based on the Harold Robbins bestseller which will air October 16, 17 and 18 (9-11PM each night).

Singer will also play in "Lanny Walker: Close, But No Cigar," an episode of Class of '65. In the 60-minute drama, Singer plays Lanny Walker, a boy who joins the armed forces shortly after his high school graduation and returns home, but to his deceased buddy's father instead of his own family.

Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., established as one of television's top drawing stars, has been signed to co-star with Fred Astaire and Helen Hayes in the Ross Hunter production, "A Family Upside Down." In the sympathetic role of Astaire and Miss Hayes' son, a man who has all the willingness to help his parents, but is frustrated by a set of circumstances he is unable to control. It is a characterization in dramatic contrast to that of the popular FBI agent which made Zimbalist a perennial television favorite.

* * *

Della Reese has been set to star in a half-hour comedy pilot to be produced by the Komack Company for NBC with James Komack as executive producer. Pilot episode will be titled "Della and Son: and will co-star Franklyn Ajaye in the role of Della's son, a rolling stone who tries to con his mother into crazy business deals. Jack Donohue will direct from a script by Jerry Ross and Gary Belkin.

Dean Jones and Paul Sand have been signed to star in the Rothman/Wohl Production, "Once Upon A Brothers Grimm," a two-hour original musical adventure airing Thanksgiving Eve on CBS. The stars will be seen as Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm who collected the legends and lore that became the world-famous fairy tales.

The script by Jean Holloway will be directed by Norman Campbell. Academy Award-winning lyricist Sammy Cahn and Tony Award-winning composer Mitch Leigh are writing the score.

It will be like old Hollywood days when Donny and Marie Osmond move their show to new studios in Utah. Outside the soundstage, the co-stars of ABC's Donny & Marie will display plaster footprints and handprints of various guests who have appeared on the show. Currently they are gathering the mementoes in Hollywood during the tapings of the show.

* * *

Lawrence-Hilton Jacobs, Freddie Washington on ABC's Welcome Back Kotter, is getting ready to cut his first album for ABC Records. In order to keep in tune, Jacobs has been practicing both his singing and piano during breaks in production of the popular comedy series.

* * *

Klatu, a domestic robot, has been signed by executive producers Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts to guest-star in "The Innocent" episode of Logan's Run, MGM-TV's science fiction adventure series for CBS, starring Gregory Harrison, Heather Menzies, Donald Moffat and Randy Powell. A product of Quasar Industries, Inc. of Rutherford, New Jersey, Klatu will play the role of "Nanny," a robot housekeeper assigned to care for a young woman who is the only human being in an energy-field-protected complex discovered by Logan, Jessica and Rem as they try to escape a band of pursuing Sandmen.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR MARIE OSMOND, star of Donny and Marie

As the only girl in a family of eight brothers, have you ever wanted a sister? —C.R., Galveston, Texas

● Sure. I wanted someone to play dolls with me. My brothers never would. Good thing about being the only girl was that I didn't have to share a room. They all doubled up. If I felt really left out, Mom would pretend to be my big sister. Now I'm almost grown up, and I still think of her as my pal and big sister.

FOR BOB BARKER, daytime host of The Price Is Right

How do you remember all those jokes and funny lines you spout so easily? —P.D., Boca Raton, Fla.

● It's all spontaneous. I don't keep a joke file or use cue cards. I use them only if I have to give the name of a foundation or fund and to keep track of which act comes next. I can study acts two weeks in advance, put them away and not refer to them until time to use them — and it all comes back to me.

FOR EDITH HEAD, designer

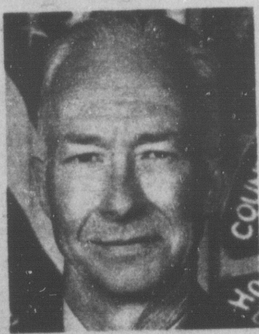
Will dresses go out of style in the next decade? —Gladys Kent, Lansing, Mich.

● No. I think dresses will be with us for quite some time. So will pants. I think this coexistence will continue for the next decade, and after that, your guess is as good as mine.

FOR LT. GEN. A.J. GOODPASTOR, Superintendent, U.S. Military Academy, West Point

Do you consider your job as challenging as your duties when you were Supreme Allied Commander and staff secretary to Eisenhower? —I.E.G., Forest Hills, N.Y.

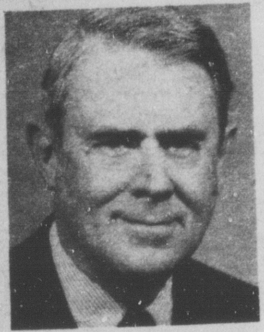
● I see my tasks less as a challenge than as an opportunity to contribute to the self-development of present and future members of the "Long Gray Line" of West Pointers. Whether as Supreme Allied Commander, Presidential staff secretary or Superintendent at West Point, the most rewarding thing is the opportunity to be of service to our country and people.



FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

There's an actress on Operation Petticoat [Jamie Lee Curtis, right] who looks like a star whose name I can't remember. Is she the daughter of a performer? —G.V., Zanesville, Ohio

● You must be thinking of Janet Leigh, who was married to actor Tony Curtis. In addition to Operation Petticoat, their daughter, Jamie, has been in Quincy and Columbo. She lives with Janet and her stepfather (stockbroker Robert Brandt) in Beverly Hills. She's an all-round athlete, plays the guitar, paints in oils, is a voracious reader and an enthusiastic photographer.



FOR CYRUS VANCE, Secretary of State

Where are you getting the money for the expensive antiques you're using to redecorate the Diplomatic Reception Rooms? —Mrs. L. Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● The antiques in the Diplomatic Reception Rooms at the State Department are gifts from individual Americans to their fellow citizens. In some cases, the antiques are lent or donated to the nation by private citizens; in others, they are purchased with funds contributed by individuals or corporations. No Government funds are spent to furnish these rooms.

FOR LORETTA LYNN, country singer

Do you ever wear flashy clothes the way Dolly Parton does? —F. Thomas, Brewer, Maine

● I would never dress in a flashy style. I wear long dresses because I want to dress in a ladylike fashion. I feel comfortable in them, and, most important, my audiences like them.

FOR BEN CRENSHAW, pro golfer

Is golf played the same way all over the world? Which country has the best golfers? —E.A.L., Oceanside, Calif.

● Because of TV, the game is being played more and more worldwide, and similar teaching facilities are also making golf more into a single, universal sport. The U.S. still has the best golfers because the sport has grown more quickly here, and the prize money is more appealing. But in many other places — Japan and Australia, for example — golfers are coming into the American tour in growing numbers.

FOR JUDY BLUME, author of children's books

Will you ever write books for older teenagers involving love and sex? —A.K., Asbury, N.J.

● I already have. My novel, Forever, is an explicit love story about two high-school seniors. My daughter, Randy, and her friends wanted to read a love story in which, for a change, nobody dies. I agreed. I also thought it was important to present sex within a loving relationship. Katherine, the protagonist, has an affair with Michael, and at the end both experience pain. In this case, Michael is hurt most by the relationship. Whoever said boys aren't equally vulnerable?

FOR JAMES BEARD, gourmet and author

If you had to live on one meal a day for the rest of your life, what would you choose? —N.R., Eau Claire, Wis.

● Heaven only knows. I've never been a person for favorites, but I know there are certain things I would hate to go without the rest of my life: fresh oysters, chicken, squab, asparagus and all the fruits — papaya, fresh litchi, ripe peaches and crisp tart apples. I've almost made a menu, haven't I? But then I left out a million other things that I like — caviar, foie gras, hamburgers, frankfurters. . . .

PRO & CON

Should More Money Be Mandated For Solar Energy Research?

PRO Prof. Erich A. Farber, Director of the Solar Energy and Energy Conversion Lab, University of Florida

Through research we have to find better methods of converting solar energy, our largest and most permanent energy income, into the forms of energy that we use in our daily lives. This will free our fossil fuels (oil, coal, gas) for medicines, preservatives, pesticides, fertilizers and plastics, which are just as vital to our survival. We should, however, not wait for the perfect answer, but put to work the knowledge which we have now for the conversions which make economic sense — such as solar energy used for water-heating and cooling. We should utilize this nonpollutant source that belongs to all of us.

CON Hans. A. Bethe, Professor of Physics, Emeritus, Cornell U.

I do not believe the promise of solar energy is very great. Solar-energy utilization is not around the corner. To harness it for truly major energy production is exorbitantly expensive by any method now in sight — and will not become practical in this century, no matter how much we spend on research. However, solar-heating of water seems reasonable. For large-scale solar-energy power, it seems most promising to direct our efforts towards using the waste from farms, forests and cities. As one example, instead of discarding the stalks from wheat or corn, they could be fermented into substitutes for natural gas.

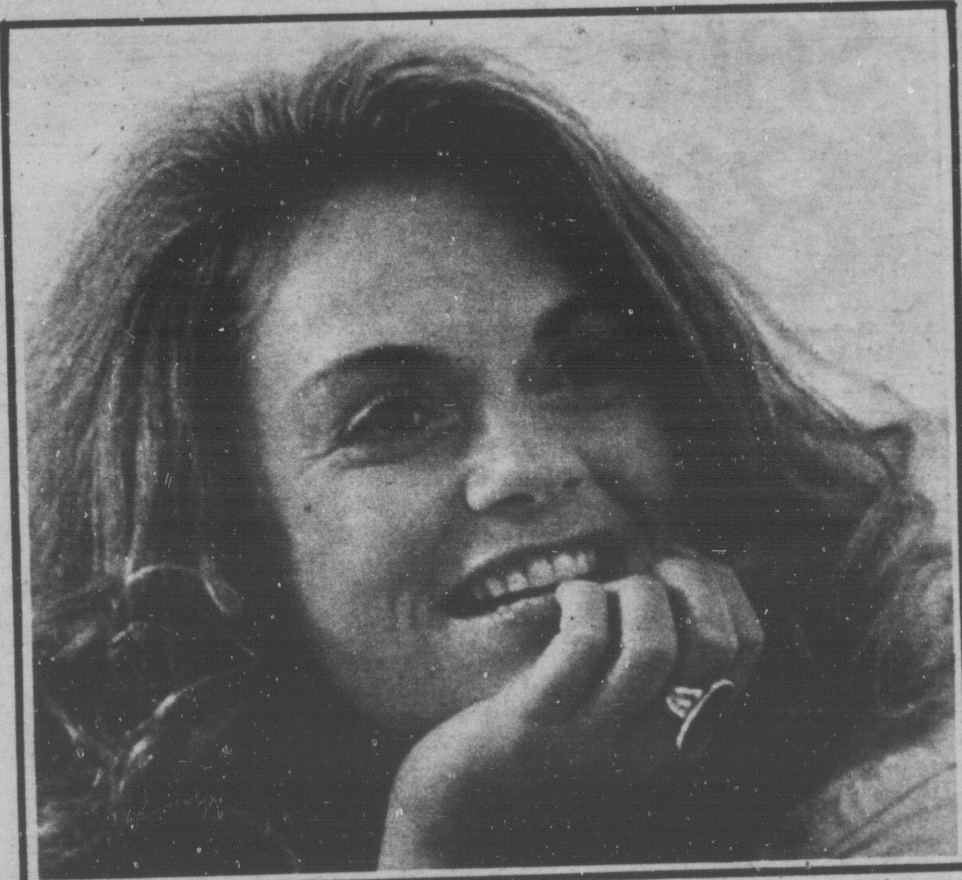
DYAN CANNON'S FIGHT FOR HAPPINESS

First there was the joy of marriage, then its loss and a plunge into anguish. Now she has discovered inner peace and new self-esteem.



Ken Regan / Camera 5

A relaxed Dyan Cannon today: she vows never to lose touch with herself again.

Pictorial Parade

Dyan with daughter Jennifer, who combines the best of Cary Grant and her mother.

By Alan Ebert

Dyan Cannon is a better actress than most know. For years, the public and press thought her to be as tough-and-together as her screen image. Only now does Dyan admit she was always "terrified, a little girl pretending to be all grown up. I was without any sense of security, any inner peace. There were days, weeks, when I had to fight to stay alive."

Yet, she seemed like the girl who had everything — Cinderella at the ball, meeting-and-marrying the prince. She came from Tacoma, Wash., to Hollywood to become a star. Her first 200 appearances in bits in teleplays did nothing but attract screen idol Cary Grant, who married her in 1965. A year later, their daughter, Jennifer, was born, and two years after that, the storybook marriage ended in bitterness and divorce.

In those days, because she seemed "tough," Dyan shrugged off disappointment. She did not allow herself to feel wretched or depressed because her marriage had failed. Instead, she fled into activity, appearing first in the road company of How To Succeed In Business and then, briefly, in a Broadway bomb, The 90 Day Mistress. When the show collapsed, Dyan didn't. She gambled on a peanuts-for-pay-or-no-play-at-all appearance in Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice. Her performance won the New York Film Critics Award for Best Supporting Actress, an Oscar nomination and stardom. Without pause to reflect, Dyan plunged into a series of sex-laden films ranging from Love Machine and Doctors' Wives to The Anderson Tapes and Such Good Friends. Only a few knew, that as her star was on the ascendant, Dyan was in a decline, sliding into a depression that found her trying experimental therapies and drugs.

"Then, I would have tried anything to ease the pain," she says. "Yes, I knew drugs were bad, but I was so desperate and self-destructive that I would listen to no one. My problem, in a nutshell, was not knowing and, therefore, not liking me. I had never learned who and what I was but had always been whatever was wanted of me. I accepted others' definitions of who Dyan Cannon was because I had never defined her for myself. I didn't think I was pretty. Worse, I didn't know if I was nice. So I ran to a lot of bad places and a lot of bad things."

That was then. Now, four years after she left therapy and a film career that brought her as much discomfort as it did fame, she says, "I couldn't play one more sex-obsessed woman without screaming." Now Dyan is in great shape. No longer does she look or act tough. There is a new softness. She is far prettier at 39 than she was at 29. Also, she is "higher" than ever, but not from either smokes or drinks. She has become a vegetarian who needs "no additives" because "for the first time, I've got a piece of the rock. I've got me."

Hers are not just words. Even her self-imposed exile from the screen four years ago at the height of her success took a rocklike courage. "I had to do it," she explains. "It was hurting me not to. I guess as my concept of me changed, I could no longer portray women I did not respect."

Dyan's life turned around on a morning she clearly remembers. "I awoke, began to once again feel that awful inner emptiness and heard myself yelling, 'Enough! Enough pain.' I forced myself to look in the mirror — something I had always avoided — to studiously study me. And suddenly, I was smiling, laughing, not at but with me. So I wasn't a perfect beauty. Big deal. But I saw something better. I saw the inner me. For the first time I recognized I am basically a good and kind person — nice. It made me cry."

It makes her cry even today. "Do you know how wonderful it is to feel comfortable within when you never have before?" she continues. "It is then you can begin to live your life. When I found me, I had to find another side of my work. I had to make another kind of statement, one that was positive."

When Hollywood didn't offer her that opportunity, Dyan made her own. Two years ago she enrolled in the American Film Institute and this year, her first product, Number One, a 47-minute short that she wrote, produced and directed, not only was nominated for an Academy Award but also was a winner at the San Francisco, Paris and Teheran film festivals.

Dyan is a bona fide success story. Even today, as she produces, writes and directs another 47 minutes of film to add to Number One so that it may be presented as a feature rather than as a short, she remembers all too well, but without sadness, the recent years of deprivation. It may surprise many to learn there were times when her local Malibu grocery would extend no further credit until past bills were paid. To get where she is today, Dyan went beyond broke and all the way to debt. But, she promises, "I'll pay every cent back." Now that she has been signed to a multipicture deal by Twentieth Century-Fox to direct, she undoubtedly will. In addition, she has been offered two Broadway musicals and, if time permits, she will kick up her heels in a musical version of Born Yesterday.

But no matter how frantic the professional activity becomes, Dyan vows never to lose touch with herself again. Each morning, as the sun rises, so does she. Donning a sweatsuit, she runs along the Malibu coastline for nearly an hour. That is followed by 90 minutes of meditation. In her bedroom and study, she writes poetry. Her time to herself is inviolable. The only person who might interrupt is daughter Jennifer. A beautiful child who combines the best of Grant and Cannon, she is Dyan's "best friend" as well as daughter. She is an amazing little person. Bright and witty, she will never have to fight, as her mama did, for self-respect. She already has that and is sure of who she is. But Jennifer has always known both her parents love her. Cary has been a wonderful father.

While Dyan once maintained she would never marry again, today she says, "Although I am not running toward a relationship, I'm not running from one. Actually, I think marriage is the ultimate experience. What is more beautiful than two people who have discovered their own uniqueness, and choosing to share it with another? I believe in marriage today because I think one's life can be that much richer when experienced with another.

"But I would not marry for security. I have that now. I have grown strong. In the discovery of self, in reaching into me and finding someone worthy of love, I found another kind of love, and peace. I found God who lives within us all."

Smiling — beaming actually, she adds: "He was there all the time, just waiting. Isn't it ironic that I found Him in the very last place I looked."

COOKING WITH APPLES

October is officially designated National Apple Month. Here are some delightful new ways to use them in your kitchen.

Tender slices of apples in a golden citrus syrup spooned over ice cream make a sweet ending to an autumn dinner.

By Marilyn Hansen

An Apple A Day

One medium apple contains about 70 to 80 calories, 18 grams carbohydrate, pectin and Vitamin C. Apples provide bulk in the diet for the proper functioning of the body's digestive and regulatory systems.

HOT APPLE SUNDAE

½ cup sugar
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 pt. vanilla ice cream
3 tart apples

1. In skillet, mix together sugar, orange juice, lemon juice and cinnamon. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves.
2. Bring to a boil; simmer 5 minutes. Add apples, peeled and sliced, and simmer, covered, 15 minutes longer. Serve over ice cream. Makes 4 servings

GERMAN APPLE PANCAKE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup milk
1 large apple, cored and sliced
½ cup butter, melted
¾ cup confectioners' sugar
1 lemon, cut into wedges

1. Preheat oven to 450°F. Place butter in 10-inch ovenproof skillet, quiche pan or pie pan; put in oven and melt.
2. Beat eggs well. Add salt, flour and milk; beat until smooth.
3. Place apple slices into melted butter in pan. Pour batter over all. Reduce heat to 350°F. and bake until crisp and brown.
4. Serve in wedges with butter, confectioners' sugar and lemon juice. Makes 4 servings

Editor's note: Grilled link sausage goes well with the dish.

APPLE 'N' CHEESE BREAD

1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1¼ cups whole wheat flour
¼ cup wheat germ
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ cups milk
1 egg
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup finely chopped apple

1. Grease and flour a 9- x 5- x 3-inch loaf pan. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. In bowl, mix flours, wheat germ, baking powder, sugar and salt.
3. Beat together milk and egg; add to dry ingredients, blending well.
4. Stir in cheese, walnuts and apple. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake for about 1 hour and 15 minutes or until a cake tester poked in center comes out clean. Remove from pan and cool on rack. Makes 1 loaf

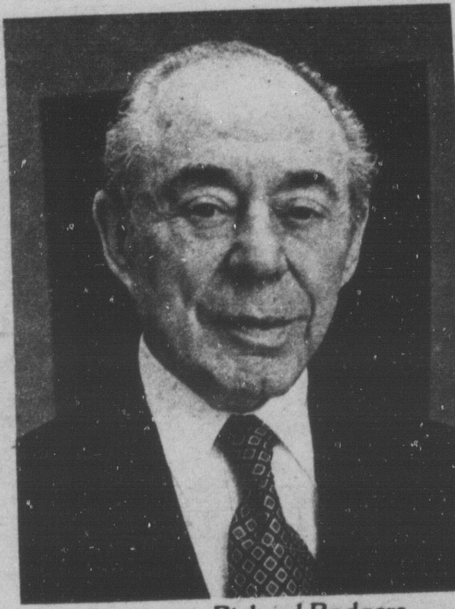
HOW TO TALK WITH YOUR PARENTS ABOUT RETIREMENT

The spectacular achievements of many who are past retirement age can serve as an inspiration to us all.



Composer Richard Rodgers.

Anthropologist Margaret Mead..

Architect Buckminster Fuller.

Adm. H. G. Rickover, USN.

Actress Lillian Gish.

By Ernest V. Heyn

If your parents or parents-in-law condescend to discuss things with you like, say, retirement, you might make a suggestion. It's based on an old Italian saying, "Dolce far niente," which means "It is pleasant to do nothing" — but you add to it. What you'd like to tell them about retirement is: It is pleasant to do nothing, as long as you have something to do.

There's much discussion these days about the wisdom of setting an arbitrary age for compulsory retirement. On the one hand, employers say that younger employees are discouraged if those reaching, say, 65, won't step down. On the other hand, there are countless examples of men and women over retirement age who have satisfactory or even spectacular records of achievement. A recent article in The New York Times cited 25 men and women, among them Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, 77, actress Lillian Gish, "over 65," composer Richard Rodgers, 75, anthropologist Margaret Mead, 76, jazz musician Count Basie, 73, choreographer Martha Graham, 83, singer Mabel Mercer, 77, architect Buckminster Fuller, 82, and countless others still active.

But our premise is that mandatory retirement is a fact of life, and you'd like to tell your parents your ideas about that "something to do." Which brings you to hobbies. A life-long hobby comes in mighty handy after retirement. People with green thumbs are the luckiest ones. If they've been tending a garden through the years, now there's more time to branch out from the regular maintenance chores and plan an improved landscape, replacing old worn-out plants, mapping out and planting new flower beds.

The man (or woman) with a workshop where wonderful things can be built for indoors and out is to be envied. Your retirees can get books and magazines with exciting plans — and perhaps invest in some new, long-desired tools; working people rarely have time to build all the useful and beautiful improvements they dream or read about. The time is ripe for a full program for the do-it-yourselfer.

I met a man recently who had taught school all his life, until that mandatory age limit caught up with him. His hobby had always been repairing and improving old furniture. Now it was paying off. He showed me what had been a dilapidated old wooden table he had rescued from a neighbor's attic and which he had rebuilt and refinished into a beautiful, shining work of art. He's done dozens like it — chairs and chests of drawers as well. He charges reasonable sums, keeping in mind that he can't earn more than $3,000 a year and still collect all of that tax-free social security. And he's really a busy man.

A friend of mine had a hobby of collecting old clocks. When he retired he opened a shop in his house and made a business of his skill and knowledge. And he's much happier than he was as an advertising salesman. Of course, there are those talented people who can paint or sculpt or play musical instruments but do not necessarily make a business of their talents. Their "something to do" is taken care of.

If your parents tend to be too sedentary, you could tell them: get out of the house and not be hypnotized by the "boob tube." (I like watching television but only as a diversion — not an occupation.) If it's just a long walk or a visit to the library (they've always wanted time to read) or paying a call on an old friend, anything is better than just sitting there. Betty Ford wasn't kidding when she told ex-President Jerry not to come home for lunch.

Speaking of walks, you might suggest they step up their exercise program. Unless there's a physical problem, calisthenics, walking or easy jogging is a great up-lifter. And the latest wrinkle is — skipping rope. Health expert Curtis Mitchell took it up in his seventies and has written a book about it, The Perfect Exercise (Simon and Schuster). The cardiovascular system (heart and lungs) cries for activity, and that isn't accomplished by just sitting around.

You might convince your parents that the years after retirement could be the very best ever. One of my good friends discovered, in retirement, the joys of an annual trip on a freighter. It's not as expensive as you might think to take a cruise on one. They'll meet others, and there are some colorful and stimulating ports of call. And if they're "into" camping, now's the time for that kind of travel without the nagging thoughts about what's happening back at the office or factory. Yes, suggest the joys of travel. They've earned them.

Tell them not to sacrifice their own opportunities because they're saving the money for you to inherit. I can't believe that any reader of this magazine would approve of that type of self-sacrifice. If you are able to support yourself and your family, tell your parents that retirement is their reward for all the help they've tried to give you thus far; not necessarily financial help, but their moral support and encouragement.

Above all, you might like to tell them this is their chance to make new friends, and to spend more time with old ones. Point out that the courage to try new things (a correspondence course, a charity that needs help, a community project?) isn't limited to the young. They could make your parents' lives more fulfilling.

Now we come to that forbidden subject (or is it?) — sex. Young people can't imagine those old fogies still enjoying the warmth and excitement of physical love. But many do — and you'd be surprised at what age.

The father of a friend of mine recently married his late wife's good friend — he's over 80, and they enjoy every minute of their busy life — in every way.

And there's that marvelous skier, horseback rider and adventurer — who's still young at 85 — who, earlier this year, spent his honeymoon touring the world. His name is Lowell Thomas.

Tell your parents their life can be great after retirement, if they truly have "something to do." Unless they are ill or financially pressed, they have years of relaxed and constructive living ahead of them. Now your parents have more time for their friends — and I might add — for you.

But they must realize that you, too, have a life to lead and that routine meetings on specific days of the week are frustrating and counterproductive. Your relationship with your parent or parents, after retirement, should be based on a real desire to be together, perhaps often, perhaps just occasionally. But that relationship should never be a burden or a bore, either for you — or for them.

Talk these things over with them. I think they'll understand and be grateful for your loving interest in their future.

The author is a former editor-in-chief of Family Weekly and later of Popular Science, where he reached the age of mandatory retirement. Now he writes books, two of which have been published by Doubleday: A Century of Wonders and Fire of Genius.

Real discovers the way to keep natural taste in. Artificial out.

All other major brands enhance their flavor artificially. Real does not. It doesn't need to. All that great taste and flavor in Real is natural.

That includes the menthol in Real Menthol, of course. It is fresh, natural. Not synthetic.

You get a rich, satisfying smoke. Taste you can feel. Full, natural taste. Discover the difference yourself.

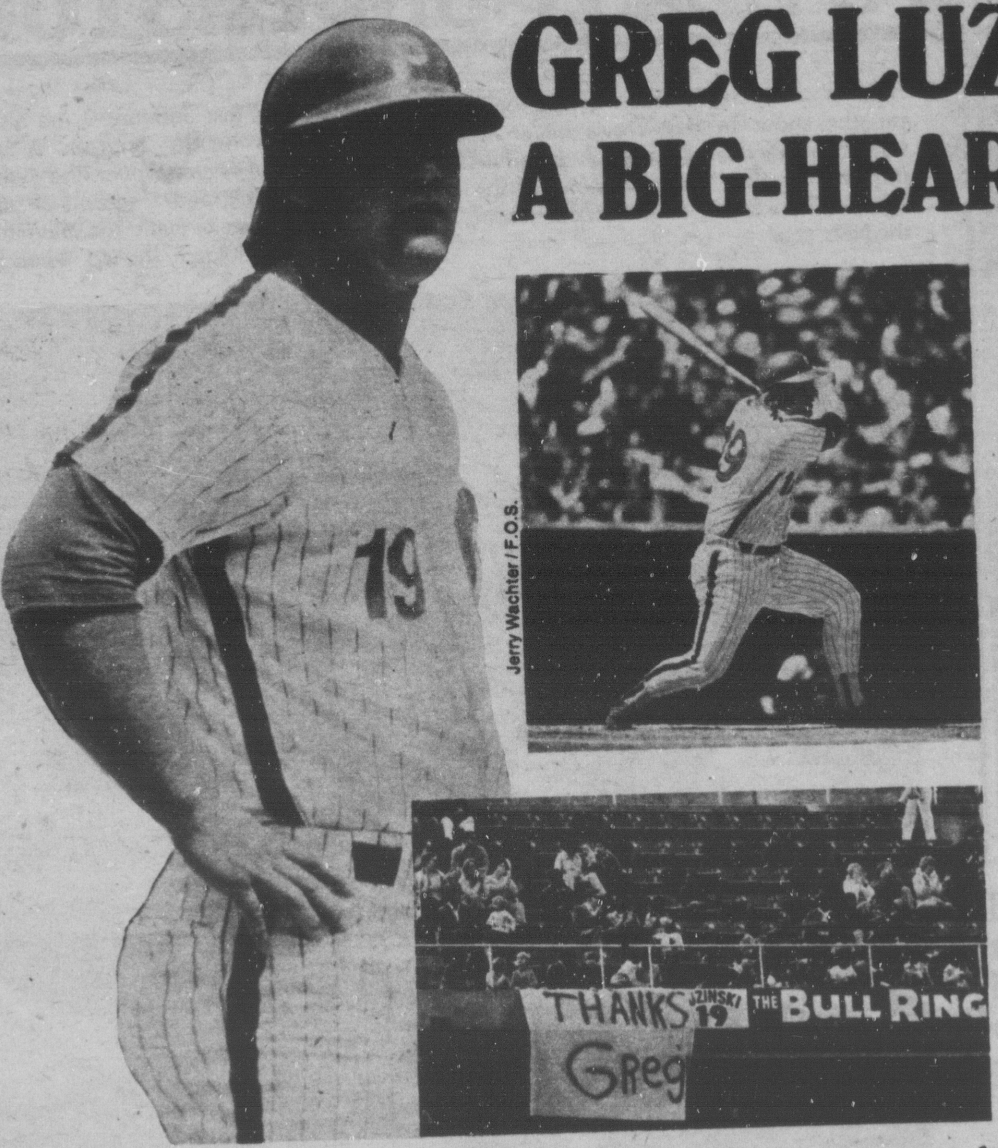
GREG LUZINSKI: A BIG-HEARTED HERO



Jerry Wachter / F.O.S.

This phenomenal slugger stands out: He's a special kind of superstar kids can look up to with their parents approval...he's loyal, modest, hard-working, family oriented...he's generous to the tune of $20,000 a year.

By Richard Berman

For instance, this year Luzinski quietly spent more than $20,000 of his own money to buy box seats to the Phillies games for underprivileged kids and has pledged to do the same for the next three years. "The fans have been super to me," he says, "and I want to do something for them. Many children have never had box seats, and I want to give some of them a chance to see how much fun it is to go to a ball game."

The kids had 126 seats on each of 36 home dates. The section is known as "The Bull Ring" (Luzinski is called "The Bull" because of his hulking 6′1″, 275-pound frame and tremendous strength) and is located in the left-field stands directly above Luzinski's outfield position. The Bull also gives each youngster an autographed picture and donates $100 to the favorite charity of any Phillies player hitting a homerun into the section.

Generosity is only the beginning of a list of qualities that make him a special superstar. He is one of baseball's gentlest and most tranquil men, and he is congenial toward everyone, even umpires ("If I respect them, they'll respect me.") and nagging sportswriters. Fellow Philadelphia slugger Mike Schmidt has said that Luzinski's temperament may be his greatest strength: "He'll never be a basket case about his hitting. He doesn't let himself get hyper, and he doesn't go into deep depression."

Phillies manager Danny Ozark also thinks his star left fielder's even temper is a valuable asset, particularly over a long and arduous season involving a tight pennant race: "In a crucial situation you never see perspiration flowing down his face. Nor do you see him relax. We can be five runs ahead, he's still the same. And he's the same in the clubhouse after a game, whether he has gone 0-for-4 or 4-for-4. He's very unemotional and determined, and that's a tough combination to beat."

Luzinski is also loyal to his team. When he recently signed a handsome contract with the Phillies (approximately $1.5 million over five years), Luzinski knew he could command much more as a free agent. But he says the Phillies have been a positive force in his life. "They've been friends, and that should count for something."

If "The Bull" sounds like a pussycat off the field, he is a veritable volcano in the batter's box. Luzinski is indeed a rare commodity — a consistent .300 hitter who also hits for power. (He has been averaging about 30 homeruns a year over the last three seasons.)

He hits to all fields, and his swing is quicker and more compact than that of most homerun hitters, who frequently swing for the fences and thus don't make contact as often. Luzinski is also exceptionally knowledgeable and disciplined when it comes to hitting. "If I made up my mind to go for long balls all the time, I'd wind up leaving too many men on base. Maybe if I played somewhere else with different kinds of guys in the supporting cast it'd be different, but here I'm better off as a spray hitter."

Teammate Schmidt is especially conscious of Luzinski's value to the Phillies -- and to his own career: "I wouldn't be where I am today, statistically, if I didn't have Greg hitting behind me. Let's face it, most pitchers would rather pitch to me than Greg. So I see a lot more fastballs when they get behind in the count."

Luzinski, 26, has already appeared in three consecutive All-Star games (for the last two he received more votes than any other National League outfielder), and his potential is staggering. In 1975 he was runner-up to Joe Morgan for the National League's Most Valuable Player, and he is given an excellent chance of winning it this season. His recent contract has made him even more determined to succeed. "I have something to prove," he was quoted as saying. "I have the feeling, because of all the money being thrown around, a lot of people are saying guys won't go out and play. When I signed my contract, that was number one in my mind — to prove to the people I'm worth every penny."

Luzinski has certainly captured the hearts of Philadelphians. The fans obviously appreciate his talent, generosity and loyalty, but other factors also have contributed to making him the town's most popular baseball player. With his flowing blond hair and smooth, fair skin, he perfectly fits our image of the clean-cut all-American sports hero. (His only blemish is a small divot over one of his blond eyebrows, which he got during the only childhood fight he recalls having.) He goes about his work without complaining or bragging. He's a favorite with his teammates. "Everybody likes Greg," says Schmidt, "because he's Polish, because he keeps things simple, because he's a family man who's made good."

Maturity also has a good deal to do with the respect Luzinski has gained from the fans and his peers. "He's always been mature," says Phillies shortstop Larry Bowa. "He got married real young. He had a family real young. He knew his responsibilities and met them."

In the clubhouse, "The Bull" is a leader without, as he says, "the rah-rah stuff." And, finally, perhaps the fans identify with a man who, like many of us, is not a great all-round athlete. In his early major-league days, Luzinski's bulky frame and awkward strides created a comedic effect in left field. But he worked tirelessly to overcome weaknesses in the field, as well as a serious knee injury, and now is at least an adequate fielder.

His lack of speed and agility in the field is the source of Luzinski's one sore spot with the Phillies. Sometimes in the late innings of a game Ozark removes him for defensive purposes. Luzinski hates to leave a game, and once, upon entering the dugout, his competitiveness got the better part of his reticence, causing him to hurl a batting helmet and some sharp words in Ozark's direction.

What accounts for his quiet determination and even temper? "It's just the way I was brought up," Luzinski says. His wife, Jean, whom he met at a high-school baseball game in his home town of Chicago, says her husband still can't believe he's a star. "He still cares about the $4 the fan paid to get into the game," she says. Referring to Greg's disposition, Jean confides that her husband would prefer to stay at home and play with their daughter, Kimberly, and son, Ryan, than face the throngs of admirers who seem to appear every time Jean and Greg go out in public.

Unlike some players, Luzinski's towering presence makes him instantly recognizable to Phillies fans. The Luzinski family lives in Medford, N.J., a Philadelphia suburb, and Jean says parents have even driven their kids up to the lawn to gape at the house. Luzinski reacts to all the fame with the same modesty and equilibrium that he reacts to everything else. He doesn't blow his top. He doesn't engage in public feuds with other players. And he doesn't attempt to make his salary a national concern. He is content doing what he seemingly always wanted to do — playing baseball.

In high school he began to play baseball as a freshman and never batted under .500 for four years. He also was a top football prospect in Illinois before being drafted by the Phillies in the first round of the 1968 draft. Since coming up from the minors in 1972, his batting average has climbed steadily, with this season being his best ever at the plate.

Although Luzinski seems to be an uncomplicated man, his actions could have deep meaning for professional sports. If teams, other than the very rich, are to survive, there must be players like Luzinski who are not ashamed to consider team loyalty along with salary. But, more important, we aging fans know baseball is really a kids' game. We remember how we idolized players like Joe DiMaggio, Stan Musial and Jackie Robinson. They set an example for us, and it was a good one. Are there enough players of such stature today? All sports need more people like The Bull from Philadelphia who combine talent and integrity. ■

THE NFL'S LEAST-UNDERSTOOD COACH

Mickey Palmer / F.O.S.

John Madden is brilliant and lives and sleeps football. Yet why, even after a Super Bowl Championship, do fans see him as only a puppet on a string for the Raiders' owner?

By Frank Cooney

It seems odd that an event as gaudy as a Super Bowl could bring anything into proper perspective. Although billed as a championship game, it has become the National Football League's annual Mardi Gras, a superfluous spectacle featuring not mere men, but stars, superstars and folk heroes.

Yet, last January in Pasadena, amidst the ballyhoo and buildup for Super Bowl XI, one of the most misunderstood men in American sport somehow managed to reveal his true personality. After toiling eight years in a shadow land of misconceptions, Oakland Raiders coach John Madden emerged in that bright limelight as, well, a real human being.

Not a humorless prison warden or a paranoid puppet or a bumbling truck driver. For years, these were typical lame attempts at quickie caricatures of the big, red-headed coach. Like much of the folklore surrounding the Oakland Raiders, it was fiction repeated until it was accepted as fact.

In those hectic days before Super Bowl XI, a dubious public realized otherwise. Garish and grueling press conferences became a daily entertainment hour as Madden melted even hard-core pessimists with his homespun yarns and easy, but poignant, jokes. Humorless? This man was a closet comedian, complete with exaggerated facial expressions and hand gestures.

And on the practice field he was obviously the architect and general contractor for impressively organized workouts. This surprised those who thought managing general partner Al Davis, the Raiders' resident genius-owner, really ran the show. In fact, Davis never attended a practice all week. A paranoid puppet? No way. Here was one of the most self-confident football coaches in the NFL.

Then, finally, last January 9, he also proved he was the No. 1 coach. A resounding 32-14 victory over the Minnesota Vikings capped a season of unbelieveable adversity with the ultimate prize. He was absolutely the No. 1 coach of the No. 1 team.

To those who know him well, winning a Super Bowl was no surprise. It was inevitable. Ever since he was a hyperactive school kid in Daly City, a San Francisco suburb, all he ever wanted to be was a coach.

---

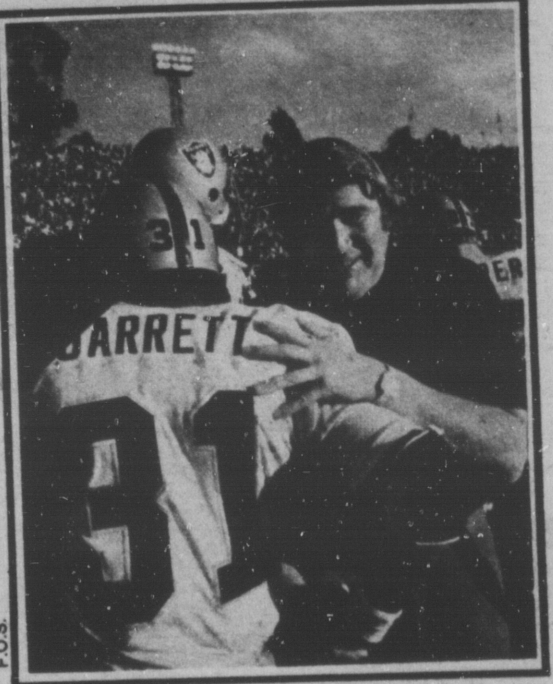
"Coaching isn't work; it's more than a job," says Madden. "Football is what I am. I didn't go into it to make a living or because I enjoy it. I am totally consumed by football, totally involved. I'm not into gardening, for instance, or any of the usual hobbies. I don't hunt, I don't fish, I don't camp. I'm into football, period."

His lone diversion is his family, and even that has been organized to fit in with his devotion to duty. During the season, he usually spends seven days and six nights a week on football.

"I have Friday nights at home," he says. "I'm usually so tired that I take a nap, then get up and go to bed early. My family knows and understands what this is all about. My wife, Virginia, is a very independent person. She teaches fifth grade, and she doesn't depend on me. During the off-season Virginia and I and our boys, Mike and Joey, do things together. But starting in July, my life is the Raiders."

And that brings up his more publicized relationship, his business marriage to Davis. Together they form the entire executive board that makes all important decisions about the Oakland Raiders. It is more of a friendly relationship than a business arrangement.



F.O.S.

A Raiders' victory: team and coach are one.

Strong mutual respect, as well as their considerable knowledge, make it the most efficient executive board in pro sports.

"What I think about John as a person and as a coach," says Davis, "is that he is a very close friend and a freaking genius of a coach. He has been somewhat overlooked because of the type of organization we have, but it's just a matter of time before he is recognized as the greatest coach."

There are those who wonder why Madden does not aspire to loftier goals. Why doesn't he follow the current trend toward the head coach-general manager combination? He has been offered such a position by other teams but realizes they are not real promotions.

"The true measure of a man's position isn't his title, but how many people he must answer to," says Madden. "In my case there is only one, and he knows what this business is all about from all angles.

"Anyway, I am exactly what I always wanted to be — a coach. I don't think it is a good arrangement to be coach and general manager. First you sit down at a desk and hassle over a contract with a player and maybe don't come to an agreement. Then you are supposed to go out on the field and coach him. That's not for me."

Madden measures every move he makes, especially when it involves his players. Last year, when the Raiders lost several starters to injuries yet kept building toward the Super Bowl, the players heaped endless praise on him for holding everything together.

"He went through hell and made it seem like heaven," says defensive lineman Dave Rowe. "Most coaches would have been tight-jawed. They would have done a lot of screaming, especially during those tight games. People talk about how Vince Lombardi made winners by treating his players like dogs. John knows that won't work with today's more sophisticated, more affluent athletes.

"This team is well known for having a variety of unusual people. We have players here other teams rejected as being uncoachable. Yet John took the most diversified personalities in the league and made them work together.

"I know coaches who couldn't have handled this team for a week," continues Rowe, "yet he made it look easy. The problems we had would have sent most clubs to the outhouse, but we wound up in the penthouse. John Madden was obviously born as a coach and has improved his abilities every day of his life."

Why a State Farm agent may be your best life and health agent, too.

The first time Ron and Helen Steinmetz of Sikeston, Missouri, called on Cliff Morris, it was about life insurance.

They'd talked to some other agents and wanted to see what State Farm had to offer.

"We discussed our financial situation and our future plans with him," recalls Ron, "and Cliff came back with the program we felt would do the most for us."

"It was comfortable talking to him," says Helen. "I liked the way he explained things so clearly, and suggested we take all the time we needed to make our decision."

It was a sound decision.

As a State Farm agent, Cliff Morris has undergone extensive training in all phases of family insurance. He's backed not only by America's largest insurer of cars and homes, but one of the country's largest life companies, too.

Later Ron and Helen bought State Farm policies for their home and car. So now, if they have a question about any of their family insurance, or a claim, they just call Cliff.

If you want someone who offers the outstanding protection and personal service the Steinmetzes enjoy, just check the Yellow Pages and call the State Farm agent in your neighborhood.

MOVE OVER, DOROTHY HAMILL

By Haru Roberts

When 21-year-old Lex Kane finishes his eight-hour shift at a motor company plant in Sterling Heights, Mich., his real working day is just beginning. Lex gets into his car for the 100-mile drive to the rink in Toledo, Ohio, where he will practice his skating for 4 to 6 hours before returning home. "So what?" ask those familiar with the rigors of a figure-skater's life from watching the Olympics on television. Well, there is a difference — Lex is a roller skater.

The dedication it took to make Lex this year's national senior men's champion will come as no surprise to the country's 25,000 competitive roller skaters, but to most Americans roller-skating conjures up visions of roller derby Amazons rather than first cousins to Peggy Fleming.

Roller skaters will be getting long- awaited recognition of their sport when it is included for the first time in the 1979 Pan-American games. And with that recognition, they ask, can Olympic status be far behind?

Competitive roller-skating falls into three categories: hockey, speed and artistic. Within the artistic category, which is the most popular, is a variety of events. There's dance-skating, in which couples skate dances specially created for roller-skating, and pairs-skating, where couples do complementary freestyle skating. Individuals can compete in figure-skating and freestyle skating, in which the skater performs a routine that includes often breathtaking jumps and spins to music.

Currently, there is not the monetary incentive to become a champion roller skater there is in ice-skating, says senior international dance champion Fleurette Arseneault. "Dorothy Hamill wins the Olympics and she's doing all kinds of commercials. A roller skater wins the world title and there's nothing."

Dynamic duo Dan & Fleurette

But the lack of any gold other than a World Medal at the end of the rainbow hasn't discouraged Fleurette and her partner, Dan Littel, who placed second in last year's World Championships and are favored to win this year. Each weekend 19-year-old Fleurette flys from Boston to New York to practice. Twenty-five-year-old Dan has only a short drive to the rink in Levittown, N.Y., but he has already moved cross country to train.

Most competitive skaters are introduced to the sport early — it seems to run in families. Lex Kane was taken to a rink at the age of five weeks by his parents, who had met at a roller-skating rink. An exception to the rule is a nationally known coach John Dayney, who had never been to a rink until he was 15. Dayney started his own skating dynasty. His son, Randy, is a former world champion, and his 18-year-old daughter, Robin, just took third place at the Nationals in Ladies Singles.

What do roller skaters get out of their sport? In addition to the fun, exercise and opportunity to socialize, many skaters would agree with John Dayney's pupil, 13-year-old Linda List: "Skating has taught me that if I want to do something I can."

Want to start your own skating family? Unless your children develop competitive gold fever it doesn't have to cost you much. Although some children start earlier, John Dayney says six is a good age to begin. Beginning skaters of any age should start at general sessions. To progress, the skater should try figure-skating in a class. Then he or she will need private lessons.

Skates can be rented, but if the skater is serious it's better to buy one's own. Growing feet can be accommodated by putting larger boots on the plates.

The Third Generation Monte Carlo. A new dimension in affordable luxury.

With immense pride, we present a trim and timely new edition of Chevrolet's popular personal luxury car: The Third Generation Monte Carlo.

Front and rear overhang have been reduced. The turning diameter is over two feet shorter than last year, giving the car added agility in cramped quarters.

The new interior is a virtual "Driver's Suite," with sumptuous cloths and carpets, tall windows, a totally new instrument panel, and special Monte Carlo "touches" throughout.

Surprisingly, there is more rear-seat leg room, head room and hip room than last year. More trunk space, too.

There is a new standard powerplant, a 231 Cu. In. V6. A 305 Cu. In. V8 is available. (Monte Carlo is equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your dealer for details.) The Third Generation Monte Carlo. Drive it soon.

Trim and contemporary in design, the new-size Malibu is just full of new ideas. About powerplants and personal pleasures. About interior room and exterior size. About ride and comfort and economy.

Good news about V6 power.

In California, it is equipped with an available 231 Cu. In. V6 and automatic transmission.

This V6 offers the smooth power you want, plus the efficiency that common sense now demands.

Good news about mileage.

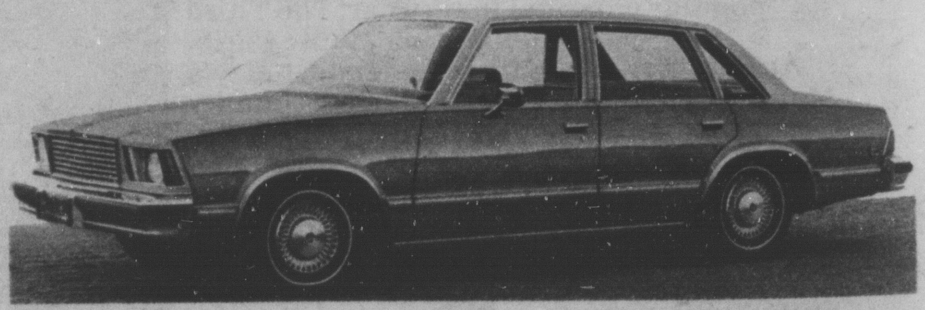
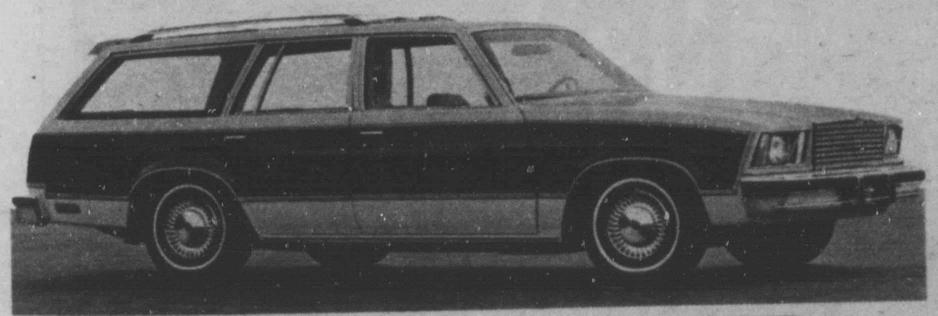
And it is good news. Because the new-size Malibu has impressive EPA mileage estimates as you can see from the accompanying box.



Of course, your mileage may vary depending on how you drive, where you drive, your car's condition, and its available equipment.

Good news about room and size.

The new-size Malibu takes up less space in the world than last year's mid-size Malibu. But, amazingly, the Coupe and Sedan give you more front and rear leg room; more front and rear head room. Also, more usable trunk space.



Good news about corrosion resistance.

Many of the anti-corrosion treatments developed for our best-selling New Chevrolet Caprice and Impala can be found on the new-size Malibu.

Including: Extensive use of galvanized steel. Extensive use of Zincrometal® panels. Extensive use of special coatings, primers and sealants.

And, in the long run, that has to be good news.

AT 18 SHE'S ALREADY A BIG SHOT

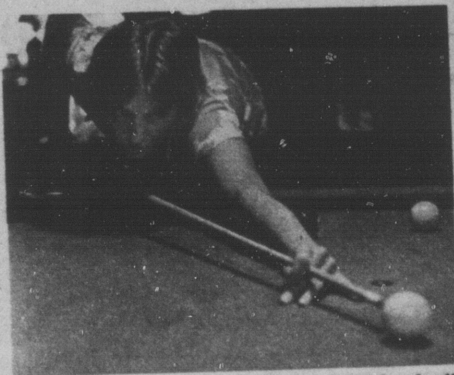
Pool-playing "hotshot" Jean Balukas.

By Pam Lambert

When an official at the U.S. Open Pocket Billiards Championship saw a 9-year-old girl taking shots on one of the tournament tables, he told her that spectators were not allowed to play. But, much to his surprise, the girl was actually a competitor. That was nine years ago, and today, with five U.S. Open women's titles behind her and a recently won world crown, no one is likely to mistake Jean Balukas for a spectator again. And after finishing second in the last two women's Superstars competition, in which she competed in several sports against top athletes on national television, Jean is as likely to be asked for her autograph at a Broadway musical as at a pool hall.

It doesn't seem too surprising that Jean became caught up in pool — her father owns a pool hall within walking distance of the family's home in Brooklyn. But when Al Balukas brought home a pool table 14 years ago for his four sons, he was still in the grocery business and was just doing a favor for a friend who didn't have room for the table.

Jean was only 4 at the time — in her words "just tall enough to see over the table," but she took to the game immediately. "My favorite expression then was, 'Daddy, play me a 50,' " she says.



Take a cue from Jean: eyes on the ball

Five years later Jean was ready to enter her first U.S. Open. She still remembers the letter tournament officials sent her cautioning that she wouldn't be allowed to stand on a box to play.

As Jean improved, she found it increasingly difficult to get games at her father's pool hall. "If I'd beat one of the guys, his friends would tease them about losing to me," she says. Now Jean comes to the hall only weeks before a tournament when she plays Johnny Goon, her father's day manager.

That Johnny can beat her illustrates the gap that currently exists in pool — as in other sports — between the top men and women competitors. "I'm supposedly the top woman player, but I'd have a tough time beating the number 50 man," says Jean. "If I was a boy and played pool, I'd be a nobody."

Jean thinks that women pool players still have a long way to go because pool has been a man's game for so long. "When they think of pool players, people have this image in their head of gambling and smoke," she says.

Jean, however, is far removed from the stereotype of a tough pool shark. With close-cropped hair and a dusting of freckles over high cheekbones, there's still something childlike about her. Maybe it's the lingering traces of her childhood shyness, the way her blue-gray eyes won't quite meet those of the person she's talking to until she breaks into a smile.

Although the sport is not lucrative enough for a career, Jean plans to continue playing pool as a sideline. "Why quit?" Jean asks. "It's not as though I'm practicing every day all year long."

For a career, Jean thinks she has a good shot at becoming a golf pro, but her secret love is tennis, which she has studied with fellow Lithuanian Vitas Gerulaitis Sr. She says a bit wistfully, "I wish I'd started tennis at four instead of pool."

Jean says that one of the highlights of her sports career was meeting her sports idols at ABC-TV's Superstars competition. With characteristic diffidence she says, "I really didn't think of myself as a superstar like the rest of them."

Jean won four of the seven events in which she competed in both 1976 and 1977. She was as surprised as anyone else at her performance, despite the fact that she was a New York City bowling champion and center for her high-school basketball team. Jean does not take full credit for her achievements, saying, "I think what I have in sports is a gift from God, and that's why I can get out there and do so well."

What does Jean think would have happened if her father hadn't brought them that pool table when she was 4? Without any hesitation she answers, "I probably would have gotten into some other sport."

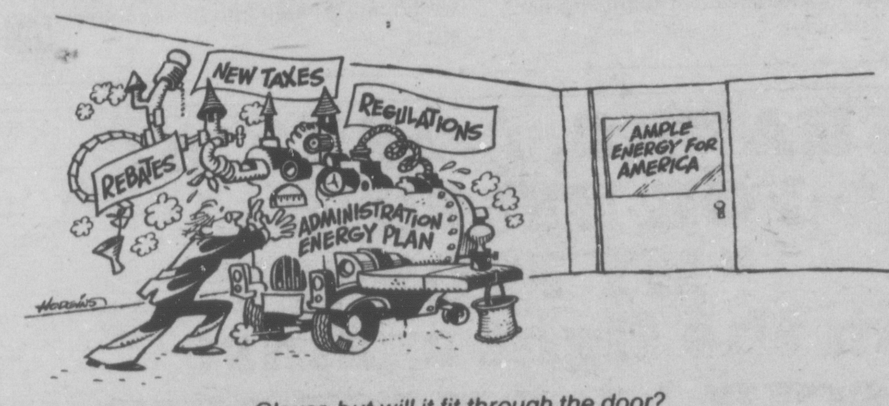
Observations

Telling it like it is. While we've been critical of the Administration's energy program, we have not been alone. Many newspaper editorials and television commentators have been bringing the program's shortcomings to the American people. Here are some comments from newspapers and TV:

DAILY NEWS "The weird concoction of taxes, rebates, regulations, and fuzzy objectives which President Carter packaged as an energy program has... [had] inexcusably sketchy examination. Americans can only hope that the misguided and fundamentally flawed proposals will be weighed and measured more. ...An effective energy policy should be directed at two principal goals—reducing drastically the nation's dependence on imported oil, and assuring certain, steady supplies of energy in amounts sufficient to sustain economic growth. In its present form, the President's plan fails dismally in both key areas."
New York, August 8, 1977

St. Louis Globe-Democrat "The government has proven beyond all doubt that it is totally incapable of supplanting the open market in regulating prices or in controlling supply and demand. Washington has manufactured the energy crisis. The sooner it gets out of the energy business, the sooner this federally created crisis can be ended."
June 11, 1977

The Topeka Daily Capital "This plan would do nothing to encourage exploration for oil. The tax would go to government—a part to pay bureaucrats, the rest to be rebated. It seems logical that government would do more to solve the energy problem if it decontrolled prices, levied no higher gasoline taxes and did what it could to encourage firms to find and produce more oil."
June 3, 1977



Clever, but will it fit through the door?

WDAU-TV "The President's program is long on conservation and short on expanding energy sources so that our economy can keep growing. It tells us—in effect—that we must lower our sights; that America's long period of economic expansion is over. That concept ought to be rejected."
Scranton, Pa. August 10, 1977

Richmond Times-Dispatch "...the basic weakness in Mr. Carter's energy plan ...is its inordinate emphasis on conservation. Very little was included in the plan to stimulate the production of energy....excessive conservation would seriously retard the nation's economic growth."
June 21, 1977

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS "...neither direct taxes at the gasoline pump, nor on oil at the wellhead, can produce incentives for one iota of additional energy. So the prime need ... is for a balanced program that offers incentives for both individual conservation and investment on the supply side."

THE MARTIAL ARTS HAVE ARRIVED

Do you know the difference between judo and aikido, jujitsu and karate? If you don't, finding out can be painful.

Judo champ Connie Kenison of Menlo Park, Cal., in action

By Jack Murray

Like a grass fire that lies unnoticed until fanned by a strong wind, the martial arts are spreading across America.

Although these various disciplines were introduced into the United States prior to World War II, it wasn't until the later 40's and early 50's that a significant number of practitioners could be found in this country. During the middle 50's, Curtis Le May, then chief of the Strategic Air Command, spearheaded an Air Force program in the martial arts that fostered their popularity among servicemen.

In 1964 judo was introduced into the Olympic Games, appropriately enough in Tokyo, and the United States had its first judo medalist, Jimmy Bregman, of Washington, D.C. For the most part, though, there was still only a small group of hard-core devotees who knew what was happening in the sport.

In the 70's ABC-TV televised a new series, Kung Fu, and thanks to some talented stunt men and some spectacular camera work, millions of young Americans became enthused and signed up for lessons in the various Oriental fighting arts.

Eventually, the public came to understand that the martial arts include several similar, although entirely separate, disciplines. The most common of these are:

Jujitsu. Perhaps the oldest of the martial arts. For many years skills were passed from one generation to another by the Japanese warrior or Samurai class. Later they were taught only to Japanese military personnel. Jujitsu emphasizes pressure on the joints, such as the elbow, wrist, fingers, and involves extremely rough self-defense techniques.

Judo. This originated in Tokyo with Professor Jigoro Kano, who wanted to give the Japanese a national sport and a means of self-conditioning. It is a form of wrestling based on jujitsu, but it is bad form to injure one's opponents.

Aikido. Another Japanese contribution. It is passive in nature and taught strictly as a self-defense skill. It incorporates many of the foot techniques of judo, along with some of the joint techniques of jujitsu.

Karate. Developed on Okinawa by monks who were forced, by their conquerors, to find a form of self-defense that did not employ weapons. Emphasis is on empty-handed striking and kicks. Within the past few years professional karate has been introduced in America. Like boxing, it is a full-contact sport, and the participants wear padded gloves and protective shoes.

One side effect of this sudden exposure of the various martial arts on television was an extremely large number of young adults who signed up for judo or karate classes for the purpose of self-defense. As the rate of street crime grew, so did the number of people donning traditional pajamalike costumes for once-a-week training. Unfortunately, most of them learned only that they had a lot of muscles that they hadn't used in a long time, and all of those muscles ached. The net result was that many of them dropped out long before they acquired any reasonable skill.

Yet by 1975, the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States estimated that at least 250,000 Americans, of all ages, were involved in some form of martial arts training. At least a third were women.

And late in 1978, the International Olympic Committee will decide whether to include women's judo in the Olympics. If the decision is affirmative, this rapidly growing sport should become even more popular.

Jack Murray, managing editor of American Judo Magazine, currently holds a third-degree black belt in judo.

THE AMERICAN MILITARY SCULPTURE COLLECTION

100 authentically detailed miniature pewter sculptures, honoring the courageous Americans of every service and every era—from the Revolution to the present day.

Subscription deadline: October 20, 1977.

Limit: One set per subscriber.

Today, as we approach the 200th anniversary of our nation's first great military encampment at Valley Forge, it is time for Americans everywhere to recall the proud heritage of our men in uniform. A time to honor all the brave American fighting men who have served the cause of liberty—on land, on sea and in the air—from the time we began our struggle for independence right on to the present day.

To this purpose, the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge—a nonprofit organization dedicated to the perpetuation of traditional American values and ideals—is proud to announce that it will issue a remarkable series of miniature pewter figures—The American Military Sculpture Collection.

This will be the most comprehensive collection of military sculptures ever created to honor America's fighting men. It will portray Americans of every military service, in the uniforms they wore in every era of our history. And it is available to you now, for a very brief period of time.

A comprehensive collection

This unique collection will consist of 100 finely detailed and totally authentic miniature pewter sculptures. Each sculptured figure will portray an American fighting man in the uniform of his service at a specific period in our nation's history. And each will have its own distinctive character and personality.

Among those to be portrayed are:

The Colonial Private—a Virginia rifleman—who endured the terrible winter at Valley Forge in 1777 . . .

An Army Corporal, wearing the short jacket and high collar that was regulation for our infantry soldiers during the Mexican War of 1846 . . .

An Infantryman in the distinctive spiked helmet and full dress uniform of 1881 . . .

An Army Air Corps Captain—a World War I pilot—wearing the wings and medals he had so proudly earned . . .

An American doughboy of 1918, in leggings and full field pack . . .

An Armored Division Private in the European theatre of 1944, with special tank helmet and holstered pistol . . .

An Air Force Captain, navigator for a giant B-52 of the Strategic Air Command in the late 1950s . . .

An Army Private, wearing the full field dress of the present-day Airborne Cavalry . . .

In all, one hundred pewter sculptures, honoring America's heroes of every rank and service—through two centuries of our nation's history.

Original works of art, authentic in every detail

Each individual figure will be an original work of art, created exclusively for this collection by Ron Hinote—recognized as one of America's leading sculptors of military miniatures. Hinote's work is widely admired for its detail and devotion to historical accuracy—qualities which distinguish this outstanding new collection.

The Infantryman of 1813, for example, will be depicted wearing a coat with long-cut sleeves. These coats were tailored long on purpose, because the material was known to shrink drastically.

The World War I Army Air Corps Captain will be portrayed in his dress uniform. And you will actually be able to see the medals he has won, including the Distinguished Service Cross—newly established by an act of Congress in 1918.

The full field pack of the American doughboy will be sculptured with painstaking detail to include entrenching tools, mess kit and other necessities of life at the front lines. The Marine bundled against the grim Korean winter of 1952 will be shown with his trusty M-1 rifle and a welcome cup of hot coffee. In every case, the uniform, the equipment—and the action—will be carefully authenticated and true to life.

To assure the highest quality, moreover, this historic new collection will be produced by the world-famous Franklin Mint. Each sculptured figure will be cast in fine American pewter. And each will be individually hand-finished and hand-polished, to bring out every fascinating detail of the sculpture and the full rich luster of the metal.

Issued in limited edition

The American Military Sculpture Collection will be issued in only one edition. This edition will be produced solely to order for individual subscribers, with an official limit of just one set per person.

After each subscriber has received his sculptures, the molds will be broken—so that this collection can never be issued again.

Convenient acquisition plan

The sculptures will be completed and issued to subscribers at the rate of one per month. The original issue price is $19.50 for each sculpture, and payment will be on a convenient monthly basis.

Each subscriber will also receive, without extra charge, a handsome five-tiered cabinet designed to display the complete collection on wall or tabletop. Crafted of rich cherry wood solids and veneers, and fitted with latching glass doors, this is a display you will be proud to have in your home—the ideal setting for this most impressive panorama of historic military sculptures.

In addition, each sculpture will be accompanied by an informative reference folder, describing in detail the significance and background of that figure, its uniform, and the equipment portrayed.

Subscription deadline: October 20, 1977

As an owner of The American Military Sculpture Collection, you will possess a work as unique as it is distinctive—the definitive tribute to both the courage and the achievements of the American fighting man. But the deadline for entering your subscription is October 20, 1977. Any applications postmarked after that date cannot and will not be accepted.

Your subscription application should be mailed directly to The Franklin Mint. No payment is necessary at this time. But please remember: the Subscription Application at right must be postmarked by October 20, to be accepted.

WHEN YOU SHOULD SEE A CREDIT COUNSELOR

A growing number of Americans at all income levels are charging toward disaster and could need professional help to pull them out of overwhelming debt.

By Paula Dranov

Jack and Sandra were desperate. They dreaded the daily mail delivery and the ringing of the telephone. "I felt so helpless, so panicky," says Sandra of the realization that they simply couldn't pay off the $7,400 they owed on their car, a bank loan and their 12 credit cards.

"I knew we were getting in pretty deep," Jack recalls. "But before I lost my job, I figured we could handle it." Indeed, Jack and Sandra hadn't even added up their debts while he still was earning $14,500 as the manager of a small appliance store. Although he soon found a sales job, he had to take a big pay cut. "Now, I'm making only $9,500, and we just can't spend the way we used to. But it took us a while to realize that. Let's face it, until we get out of this mess, we can't spend anything at all."

Jack and Sandra aren't the only couple to find themselves in too much debt. About 5 percent of all Americans who use credit — and virtually all of us do — eventually face bills they can't pay. And with consumer installment credit rising every year — from $90 billion in 1965 to $196.16 billion today — the likelihood is that many more of us are going to find ourselves in the same fix.

For most of those in trouble today, overspending was easy. "It was the credit cards that did it," Jack says of his own predicament. "It never really seemed like spending — until the bills came in. And even then, at first, the payments seemed so low that we just kept using them."

The temptation to spend more than he could afford was everywhere, Jack complains. And it's true that today, flashing a credit card can get you anything from an original work of art to auto repairs and even taxi rides in some cities. What's more, obtaining credit and credit cards has become easier. Even young people without an established credit record can successfully apply for some charge cards as long as they've held a job for six months or so and earn about $8,000. For others, the more credit you've got, the more you can get as long as you're not delinquent in your payments.

Although most Americans use credit prudently — total installment debt is less than 15 percent of total personal income — a growing number are charging toward disaster. For many, credit cards are tickets to the good life.

Jean and Charles are much more affluent than Jack and Sandra — he earns $40,000 as a corporate executive — but they found themselves in the same kind of trouble — $25,000 worth. Ironically, other than their two cars, they didn't have much in the way of major purchases to show for all that debt.

Eventually, both couples concluded that they couldn't solve their problems alone and sought the help of credit counselors. Although this kind of counseling isn't new — the first such agency was established in Phoenix in 1958 — it has become increasingly available in recent years. There now are more than 200 such agencies throughout the country affiliated with the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, a nonprofit organization supported by contributions from banks, retail stores, consumer finance groups as well as labor, legal, credit-reporting and social-service agencies.

Essentially, a credit counselor helps clients evaluate their financial situations by reviewing their incomes and obligations. Consultations are free, but should a client want the counselor to arrange a debt-repayment scheme, there's a standard fee — except in hardship cases — of $10 per month.

Galo Cabrera, a New York counselor, says many of the people he sees don't know how much they owe before he adds up the amount for them. Often, a husband and wife will have credit cards about which the other doesn't even know. And often, clients are hopelessly naive about credit and debt management. "I even had one couple who wrote their bank saying they wouldn't make any more mortgage payments until some plumbing repairs were made," Cabrera reports. "They looked upon the bank as the landlord and figured that if that's where they were sending their money, the bank should fix the pipes!"

But worst of all, most people who come for help have no idea of cost of credit. Although aware that they're paying interest, they don't realize that on installment purchases it usually amounts to 18 percent per year and that on most bank loans it comes to 12 percent or more. Borrowing from a finance company can mean charges up to 18 to 22 percent per year.

Counseling agencies will never see one partner of a couple without the other — whether the two are married or living together. Frequently, counselors find, overspending can be traced to the anger of one partner toward the other — "revenge spending," they call it. "There's also an element of keeping up with the Joneses," says the National Foundation's Mary Quinn.

The debt-repayment plans counselors devise are designed to enable their clients to pay off what they owe without penalizing them so severely that they revert to their old habits in despair. But for many, the austerity imposed can be traumatic.

"He took away our credit cards," says Sandra. "We handed them over, and he cut them to shreds. Those cards had been our lifeline." "I was glad to see them go," Jack sighs. "I don't know if I could have resisted the temptation if we had just promised not to use them."

Their counselor helped Jack and Sandra arrive at a budget with which they could live. They agreed to shave their phone bills from an average of $25 per month to $15, to reduce the amount they spend on food by 25 percent and to curtail, until their debt is repaid, gift-giving, eating in restaurants and all but essential clothes purchases.

While credit counselors see an increasing number of clients at Jean's and Charles' income level, the National Foundation reports that the average client earns $15,000 a year and owes $6,000. In New York, Galo Cabrera's typical client is a couple in their mid-30's with two children, an annual income of $11,000 and debts of $7,800 spread among 8.8 creditors. This "typical" client spends $397 more per month than he or she earns.

Like all counseling clients, Jack and Sandra and Jean and Charles agreed to send their counselor a check each month to be used toward their debts. In both cases, the counselor was able to get an extension of the bank loans and to persuade most of the other creditors to give them more time to make payments. "Most creditors are glad to do it," says Cabrera.

In addition to agreeing to the repayment scheme, clients also must promise not to incur new debts until the old ones are paid. The National Foundation claims that 80 percent successfully complete their repayment plans. If a client defaults, the counselor notifies the creditors, who then can take legal action against the debtor.

How much installment debt is too much? The National Foundation figures you can safely owe up to 15 percent of your annual salary. That figure would include car payments but no money owed on home mortgages. When debt approaches 20 percent of annual income, "it's time to start taking a long look," says Mary Quinn.

There are some danger signals to alert you to a credit overload:

- Falling behind in rent or utility payments.
- Using more than 20 percent of take-home pay for installment payments.
- Reducing credit payments in order to meet the rent.
- Requesting a new loan before an old one is paid.
- Exchanging small debts for a big one via a consolidation loan.
- Using cash advances from credit-card issuers for daily expenses.
- Delving into savings accounts for daily expenses.

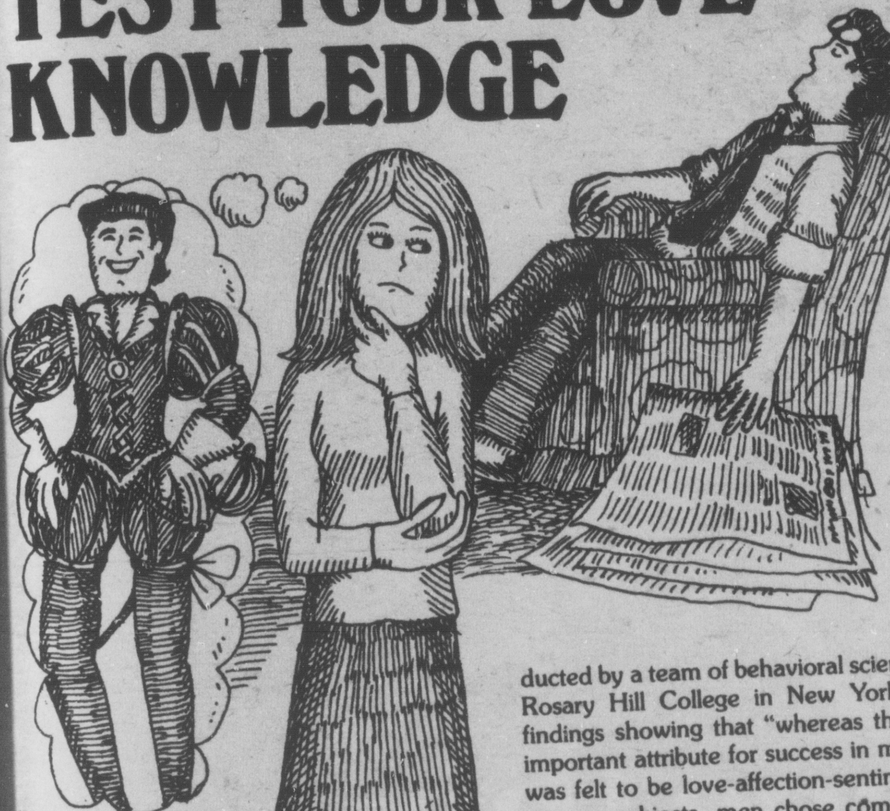
PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Does romance tend to disappear from marriage after the honeymoon? Do calculating women prefer gullible men?

TEST YOUR LOVE KNOWLEDGE



TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Romantic love — when couples idealize each other, minimize faults and see virtues larger than life — tends to fade gradually after the honeymoon.

2. Women consider love to be more important to marriage than men do.

3. When a love affair goes on the rocks, the man is more likely to terminate the relationship.

4. The more beautiful a woman is, the more likely men are to fall in love with her.

5. Love songs allow men to release emotions that are considered unmasculine in our culture.

6. Women who play a calculating game where romance is concerned are most attracted to men who are openhearted, trustful, "naive."

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies conducted by social psychologists at Johns Hopkins and Harvard investigated "the degree of idealized images in the marriage relationship." They found that romantic, pre-honeymoon images tend to persist after marriage, despite conflict and daily routine. Each spouse continues to see the other as responsible for good behavior, and circumstance or situation responsible for the bad. Seeing the best side of your partner may serve a benevolent function by acting as a buffer against irritations and minor conflicts and by maintaining the reinforcing value of continued support. The findings also strongly suggest that many marriages would not last as long as they do if love did not at least partly blind people to their spouses' faults and frailties.

2. True. A psychological study of men's and women's attitudes toward love, conducted by a team of behavioral scientists at Rosary Hill College in New York, cites findings showing that "whereas the most important attribute for success in marriage was felt to be love-affection-sentiment by women subjects, men chose companionship."

3. False. According to a National Science Foundation study of more than 100 dating and engaged couples, the desire to break up was seldom mutual. Women were more likely than men to perceive problems in the relationships and more likely to be the ones to precipitate the breakups.

4. False. In his treatise on falling in love, psychologist Vernon W. Grant reports findings showing that beauty and attractiveness are definitely not the same and that "even a high degree of beauty may have a low degree of attractiveness." A strikingly beautiful woman may have a cool, aloof or self-centered manner that minimizes her attractiveness. Conversely, a plainer female's pleasing personality may do more to make her attractive to the opposite sex than the facial features of a classic beauty. Surface features often play a smaller part in attraction than many people suppose, and romantic love, "especially when it leads to marriage, tends to stress much more vital traits of character and temperament."

5. True. In a study at the University of Northern Iowa, 200 of the most popular songs over a 14-year period were evaluated. In most of them men were pictured as emotional and submissive. Women, on the other hand, were depicted as active and aggressive in love relationships.

6. False. Psychological studies of romantic attraction at the University of Delaware, in which 144 male and female subjects were given personality tests, showed that calculating women found calculating men the most appealing. These women appeared to enjoy a relationship in which each partner sought to control or manipulate the other.

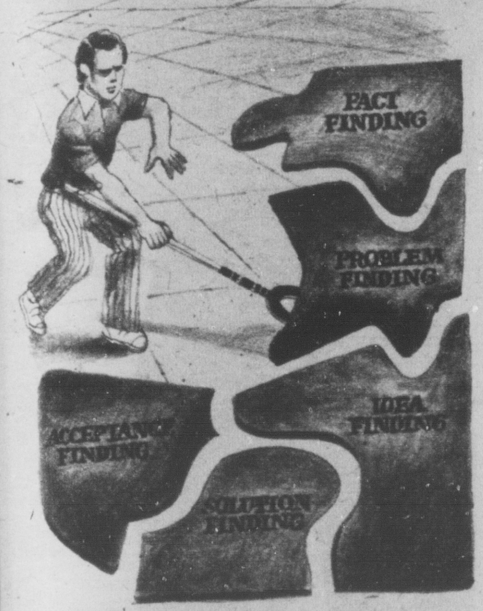
THE SECRET TO PROBLEM-SOLVING

After 25 years of research, five steps have emerged that will help you arrive at creative and original solutions to just about any predicament you may encounter.



By Edward Wakin

A group of factory supervisors were meeting to figure out how to keep plant workers from wasting time reading the newspapers used to wrap company products. The supervisors threw ideas around: use foreign-language newspapers, hire illiterate workers, blindfold them. The ideas began to sound silly, until a workable idea was triggered: hire blind workers.

That idea emerged because the supervisors kept the door open so ideas could enter freely. They were being creative by solving a problem with an original and usable idea. They demonstrated what Prof. Sidney Parnes calls creative problem-solving, a skill anyone can learn.

Experts like Parnes have taken the mystery and the magic out of creativity and brought it within reach of everyone. They have shown that it is noncreative and less effective to jump at the first solution that comes to mind, but creative and far more effective to increase the flow of ideas. Nobel Prize winner Linus Pauling has put it simply: "The best way to have a good idea is to have lots of ideas."

The past 25 years of research have led to clear directions for being creative with good ideas. The emphasis is not on the gifted few, but on the giftedness in everyone. Professor Parnes directs undergraduate and graduate studies in creativity at New York's State University at Buffalo. He and his colleagues also advise companies, organizations and schools and have trained thousands of people in creative problem-solving (CPS).

CPS involves five specific steps. Breaking a problem into parts increases the chance for solutions; the more ideas the better; postponing judgment keeps ideas flowing. The latter principle — deferred judgment — was made famous in the brainstorming techniques of the celebrated adman Alex F. Osborn, whose work is the basis of CPS. The five steps work every time.

The process begins with a mess, anything about which you want to do something. Write down what is bugging you. Keep adding to the list for as long as the spirit moves you. Then zero in on a topic that you want to work on and proceed to the five steps, remembering two points: each step leads to the next one, and during each step start with a free flow of ideas before passing judgment on them.

1) FACT-FINDING: Write down whatever you know about the mess you've chosen. Add your opinions and feelings. Make a note of what you don't know and figure out where to get answers.

2) PROBLEM-FINDING: Try to make specific statements about your problem after looking over your fact sheet. Begin statements with "How to. . . ." or "In what ways might I. . . ." Figure out what your goal is in solving the problem. Why do you want to solve it? Change the key words in your problem statements. Review your problem sheet and pick one problem statement that stands out.

3) IDEA-FINDING: After writing the statement you have chosen, put down possible solutions. That is only the beginning because the first ideas are not likely to be original. Put down whatever ideas you think of, no matter how silly they seem. Play with the ideas; rearrange them. When you feel you have gone all over the lot, review your idea sheet and make a selection of six or eight ideas.

4) SOLUTION-FINDING: Now comes a free-wheeling search for the criteria to be used in judging possible solutions. Consider issues of time, money, legal requirements, skills needed. Why did the possible solutions appeal to you in the first place? Your answers will lead to other criteria. Now come two all-important decisions: select the criteria you are going to use in picking a solution, then use them to pick that solution.

5) ACCEPTANCE-FINDING: With no mental restrictions, think of the ways in which the solution can be implemented. Who can help and how can that help be obtained? What do you have to do? When? Where? How can the solution be modified so that it will be acceptable to you and to others? After a final review, select the best ways to put your solution into action. Draw up a timetable and act upon it immediately.

When Parnes talks of results from CPS, he has no patience with words like "miraculous." "What we are really attempting to do," he says, "is to help unshackle the brain so it can perform its process of idea-production."

So effective, you LOSE up to 6 pounds the very first weekend — LOSE up to 12 pounds of both fluid and fat in just 14 days — LOSE as much as 20 — 30 — 40 — POUNDS OR EVEN MORE . . . (and never gain it back for the rest of your life), as medical science shows you how to turn ordinary coffee or tea into the most "DYNAMITE" FAT-MELTING aid you've ever seen in your life.

LIKE TURNING UP AN INNER FURNACE THAT SHRINKS YOUR BODY'S FAT CELLS —STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY!

Just 60 seconds from now you are going to discover how to take your morning cup of coffee . . . drop in what appears to be an ordinary sugar-cube . . . and launch yourself on the most incredible FAT-BURNING SPREE you've ever heard of. Yes, a journey to 'lifetime slimness' so fantastic, that just a few short weeks after using this doctor's amazing "Coffee-off" weight-loss program you'll suddenly find yourself 5 — 10 — 15 pounds lighter . . . your belt size 1 — 2 — 3 notches tighter! Because for the first time in your life you are going to win INSTANT CONTROL over your appetite . . . become its master instead of its slave . . . actually SWITCH OFF that maddening urge for food for hours at a time . . . as you watch your waistline shrink itself down by as much as a full size in just a single week!

24 HOURS — up to 2 POUNDS GONE!
48 HOURS — up to 6 POUNDS GONE!
AND THAT'S JUST THE BEGINNING!

Just think of it! Ordinary coffee or tea suddenly transformed into a fantastic body-slimming aid that not only helps you melt away as much as 12 pounds the first 2 weeks — but even more amazing, helps you:

LOSE up to 4 to 6 inches off your waistline

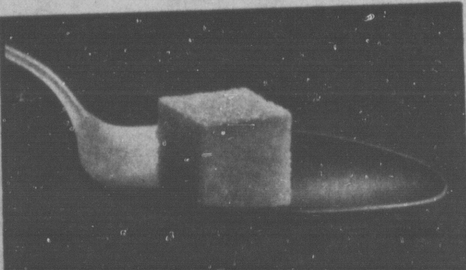
LOSE up to 2 to 5 inches off your hips

LOSE up to 3 inches off your thighs

LOSE up to 4 inches off your buttocks

LOSE up to 4 inches off your stomach

all without a moment of torturous diet — without a moment of brutal, punishing exercise — without battling your willpower or fighting off gnawing hunger!



LIKE 4 HOURS OF WILLPOWER IN ONE TINY, TASTELESS CUBE

AMAZING "WILLPOWER-IN-A-CUBE" makes you master of your appetite instead of its slave . . . gives you INSTANT CONTROL OF HUNGER — LIFETIME VICTORY OVER FAT!

VITAL NOTICE:

Before starting this program, consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, or thyroid disease should use only as directed by a physician. As a matter of fact, we urge you to show this entire program to your own family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this Lifetime Road To Slimness including the few minutes of nightly toneup the doctor highly recommends is by far one of the most medically sound, fully sensible approaches to the problem of obesity.

*ALSO NOTE: People who dislike coffee or tea may use "FULL-STOP" slim cubes in clear bouillon for the same LIFETIME SLIMNESS results.

TURNS A CUPFUL OF COFFEE (or tea) INTO HOURS OF "LIQUID WILLPOWER"

(completely flavorless — affects only your appetite — not your taste.)

Most significant of all, as long as you follow this medically proven "Coffee-Off" lifetime slimness program, you actually become totally immune to fat build-up for the rest of your life — even if you've been hopelessly overweight for all your adult life.

NOW A LIFETIME OF SLIMNESS WITHOUT A MOMENT OF GNAWING HUNGER!

How can medical science make this lifetime dream come true? It's simple. Because one of America's leading weight-loss specialists has finally found a way to take ordinary coffee or tea . . . and convert it into a wondrous new kind of fat-fighting aid that SHUTS OFF EVEN A RUNAWAY APPETITE, ON COMMAND! Yes, medical science has finally found a way to take ordinary coffee or tea and actually force hunger to STOP on the spot . . . make excess pounds and inches disappear from sight so fast . . . that in just 10 days time you will simply refuse to believe your bathroom scale— and in just a matter of weeks you may actually need a brand new wardrobe!

BEST OF ALL — NO CRAVING, NO SLIDE-BACK — YOU STAY SLIM FOR GOOD ON THIS LIFETIME SLIMNESS PROGRAM!

The secret is a medically-proven formula, (that to the eye looks just like an ordinary sugar-cube) . . . BUT, when activated in coffee or tea . . . enters your system and automatically SHUTS OFF YOUR APPETITE — SHUTS OFF THAT DRIVING URGE FOR FOOD — SHUTS OFF GNAWING HUNGER for hours at a time! Actually kills your desire, your craving, your appetite for food from meal to meal! So much so in fact, you aren't lured or tempted by even the most mouth-watering food. Not by ice-cream . . . not by cake . . . not even by the most luscious steak. In a nutshell . . .

YOU'RE SIMPLY TURNED OFF FOOD FOR HOURS AT A TIME

The name of this doctor's wondrous "Coffee-Off" way to Lifetime Slimness is "FULL-STOP", because that's just what this medically-proven slim-cube formula does — brings gnawing, runaway appetite to a dead FULL STOP right in its tracks! Yes, according to medical experts just one "FULL-STOP" slim-cube in a cup of coffee or tea turns off your appetite INSTANTLY as if it suddenly went to sleep. You simply have no desire to eat for hours on end . . . even if all your life you've been cursed with a non-stop appetite. In fact, so effective is this "willpower-in-a-cube" you may actually have to consciously remind yourself to eat — which the doctor insists on — in order to prevent TOO MUCH WEIGHT-LOSS, TOO FAST!

Now, just think what this great new development means, if all your life you've had to battle your appetite and struggle with your willpower!

Doctor's "LIQUID-WILLPOWER" DEVELOPMENT
Ends Torturous Diet!

It means that instead of battling those mealtime pangs of hunger . . . fighting that maddening urge for food . . . you simply reach for a "FULL STOP" slim-cube instead of fattening food and "sip your appetite to sleep" with this doctor's amazing 3-cups-a-day "Coffee-Off" way to AUTOMATIC WEIGHT-LOSS. Because just like water turns off thirst, incredible "FULL-STOP" slim-cubes switch off hunger AUTOMATICALLY all day long! Down goes your appetite— down go the calories — and down goes your weight . . . with a rush!

LIFETIME CONTROL OF YOUR APPETITE FINALLY YOURS — MEANING YOU ARE NOW JUST DAYS AWAY FROM YOUR FIRST STEP TO LIFETIME SLIMNESS!

So if you want to SIP YOURSELF SLIM with this doctor's amazing coffee development . . . if you want to melt away pounds and inches STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY . . . if you want to try this exciting medically-proven concept that combines both a doctor's scientific development and his full-satisfaction eating program that makes lifetime immunity to fat not a hope but a living reality . . . then take advantage of the no-risk offer described below! Yes, act now, on guarantee of full satisfaction or money refunded in full (except postage & handling). Simply return within 10 days.

Remember — this is the last ad for a reducing product you will ever need to read in your life. If you drink coffee . . . or if you drink tea . . . then there is simply not a reason in the world to ever again be embarrassed by a single pound of overweight fat. So why not take the FINAL STEP and get rid of all those excess pounds and inches FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE. Act now!

ROBBING HOODS

If burglars ever should break in,
I hope they'll take that diamond pin,
Not knowing that what seems to pass
For precious gem is only glass.
I also hope they will not scorn
My wife's mink stole, no longer worn,
And add to that our TV set
That needs a picture tube, I'll bet.
But mainly let them take, with mirth,

Since our insurance doesn't pay
A cent beneath that, anyway.

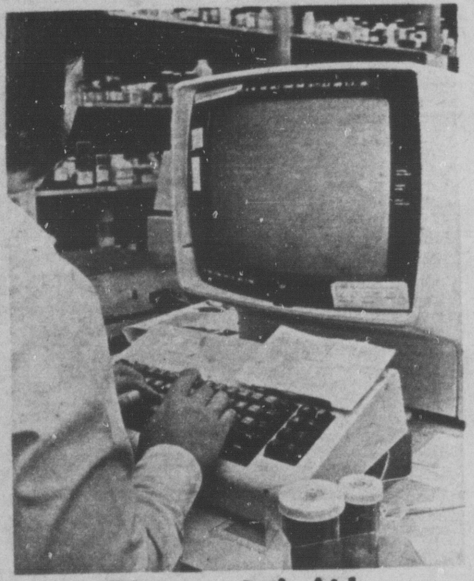
A Real Steal

Want to buy merchandise at prices that are a real steal? You may have to look no farther than your local police department. Most auction off recovered but unclaimed property at least once a year, and the prices are often unbelievably low — such as a regulation-size pool table for $20 or a bicycle for $5. Bert Sloane, communications coordinator with the Beverly Hills (Calif.) Police Dept., says his department has auctioned off everything from a full-length mink coat to a set of Cadillac hubcaps. Another California police department auctioned off a kitchen sink. Less exotic items, such as kitchen appliances, lawn mowers and musical instruments, are also available, and the merchandise is sold "as is," with proceeds usually going into the city's general fund. To find out about auctions in your area, call your police department's public-information officer or watch local papers for announcements.



Pharmacist's Aide

Having Big Brother watch out for you can be a good thing when the Big Brother happens to be the IBM computer located at the Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center. The computer is used by the 5 county-owned pharmacies to print prescription labels, and when it receives the patient's file number, it automatically compares the newly prescribed drug with others the patient may be taking to make sure he will not react adversely. If there's a potential problem, the computer prints a warning so that the pharmacist can check with the patient's doctor. The computer also has a lot of friends among the county's many Spanish-speaking patients — it prints bilingual labels.

Adapting Recipes for Crockery Cooking

You can cook your family's old favorites in the handy new crock pots — but only if you make a few adjustments. Some adaptations endorsed by our food editor:

- Brown fatty cuts of meat and fowl or trim off the fat before putting them into the crock pot. Excess fat raises the temperature in the cooker, causing overcooking.
- Use only half the usual amount of liquids, such as tomato sauce, water and bouillon — they won't boil away in slow-cookers.
- To keep frozen vegetables and seafood from losing color and texture, thaw them before adding to the crock pot during last half-hour of cooking time.
- Root vegetables such as carrots and potatoes take longer to cook than meat, so slice them thinly, and put them in the cooker first.
- Milk, cream cheese and sour cream break down during long cooking, so either add them at the end of cooking time or substitute undiluted condensed cream soups that can cook all day.

Seedy Dealings

Whether you're a homeowner planning a new lawn, a farmer thinking about seed for next year's crops or a home gardener who will pore over seed catalogues this winter, there's a law to protect you if you get poor or mislabeled seed. Although you're likely to get a refund if you return the seed to the store, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture wants you to know that you can take other action. To protect yourself, save the package, your receipt and some of the seed. Then, if the seed fails to perform as advertised, get in touch with the company — mistakes can happen. If the company doesn't respond satisfactorily to your complaint, notify your state department of agriculture. To facilitate investigation of your complaint, in your letter be sure to include the package, the seed you saved and your receipt.

Protecting Girls From Sports Injuries

With women's sports as likely to be soccer as softball these days, many parents are concerned about possible injuries. But before you start biting your nails when your daughter comes home and announces she's going out for basketball, listen to Dr. Allan J. Ryan, editor-in-chief of The Physician and Sportsmedicine magazine. He says that women are no more likely than men to be injured in contact sports — with the right precautions. The first step in preventing injuries is to make sure that your daughter wears the equipment (shin guards, knee pads, etc.) recommended for the particular sport. Training in the correct movement by the coach is also important. But the most crucial step, says Ryan, should take place long before the athlete gets suited up — proper conditioning. It should include exercises to stretch muscles, general calisthenics, running and, for some sports, special workouts with weights to build up strength and to prevent muscles from tiring quickly. And it's an old wives' tale that strenuous training will make women bulky — just look at Olga Korbut.

Quick Takes

Although the set's on, many viewers apparently tune out when they watch television news. A study by a State Univ. of N.Y. at Buffalo researcher reports that people contacted after watching the evening news could recall only 1.2 out of 10 news stories. . . .The winner of the salad sweepstakes is the tomato. The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture says that tomatoes are found in more home gardens than any other vegetable — 95% of gardens contain them. Beans are the runner-up. . . .Youngsters who roasted in the summer sun may not like what they see in the mirror a few years from now. Studies show that 4 out of 5 young people have sun-damaged skin and that the amount of damage increases steadily with age and exposure — even without actual sunburn. . . .As if pro football players didn't have enough injuries to worry about, now there's "turf toe." The Florida podiatrist who named the condition, a swollen and painful great toe joint that reduces a player's effectiveness, says that turf toe is caused by switching between natural and artificial playing fields. . . .What do today's teenagers want to be when they grow up? The answers may surprise you. Although 72% of the teenagers surveyed in a Gallup poll said that going to college was important to them, the top career choice of teenage boys was skilled worker (carpenter, plumber, electrician), and secretary was the No. 1 job choice of teenage girls. An apple a day won't necessarily keep the dentist away says the British Medical Journal. Seems the apple's reputation as "nature's toothbrush" has been a bit inflated. The journal says apples may bring about some cleansing, but they haven't been shown to improve dental health.

U.S., Soviet in joint appeal to Israel

Urge nogotiating role for Palestinians and pullback from territory

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States joined with the Soviet Union on Saturday in urging Israel to recognize the "legitimate rights of the Palestinian people" and to grant a negotiating role at Middle East peace talks to their "representatives."

A joint declaration, designed to speed up convening of a Geneva conference on the Middle East, called also on Israel to withdraw from territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

In the past, the United States has publicly supported only the "legitimate interests" of the Palestinians. The reference to "rights," included at the behest of the Soviet side, appeared to bring the Carter administration closer toward accepting the idea of Palestinian statehood.

The declaration was issued by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko after the latter's return to Moscow. They met last in New York on Friday morning.

The statement marked the closest Soviet-American cooperation since the two nations cochaired the convening the brief opening session of the Geneva conference in December 1973 following the last Arab-Israeli war.

The State Department spokesman, Hodding Carter, said the "rights" of the Palestinians, including the nature of their eventual "homeland," should be negotiated at Geneva. He stressed that these "rights" cannot be achieved without an end to belligerency in the area and "are not to be purchased at the expense of Israel."

In several respects, the statement appeared to represent further pressure by the Carter administration on Israel. It said the Palestinians should participate in the "work" of the Geneva conference and it did not specifically call for peace treaties between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

Instead, Washington and Moscow agreed there should be "termination of the state of war and establishment of normal peaceful relations."

Israeli diplomats here had no immediate comment. But the statement was expected to displease the Israelis, who have opposed the creation of an independent Palestinian state and have resisted giving the Palestinians a separate role at Geneva.

Israel also has ruled out any negotiations with the Palestine Liberation Organization, which all Arab countries and the Soviets consider the sole representative of the Palestinian people. And Israel takes the position that the Genea conference should have as its objective formal peace treaties with its Arab neighbors.

The State Department spokesman said Israel and the Arab parties were informed of the statement in advance. Vance turned over a copy to Foreign Minister Hasan Ibrahim of Jordan as they had breakfast together

In the declaration, the two superpowers affirmed their readiness to guarantee a peace agreement between Israel and the neighboring Arab countries "should the contracting parties so desire."

"The U.S. and the U.S.S.R. appeal to all the parties in the conflict to understand the necessity for careful consideration of each other's legitimate rights and interests and to demonstrate mutual readiness to act accordingly," it said.

In the view of U.S. officials, the declaration does not call for participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — in peace talks or advocate creation of a Palestinian state. At the same time, there is no specific reference to the 1967 U.N. Security Council's Resolution 242 which has served as basis for U.S. policy in the Middle East.

MARY FORD

Singer Mary Ford dies at 53

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Ford, the singing and guitar-playing partner of Les Paul in the 1950s, has died of pnuemonia after nearly eight weeks in a diabetic coma.

Paul and Miss Ford put out a string of silkily harmonized pop hits such as "How High the Moon," "Vaya Con Dios," "Mockingbird Hill" and "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise."

The duo pioneered the multiple recordings technique used to provide full harmonies on their records of the 1950s.

Although Miss Ford retired from performing after her divorce from Paul in 1964, letters and phone calls poured into the hospital from people who remembered the couple's hits.

"She died after being here 54 days," Marilyn Morrison, Arcadia Methodist Hospital spokeswoman, said Saturday. "Her cause of death was the insulin reaction that brought on pnuemonia."

Miss Ford, 53, was admitted to the hospital in a diabetic coma Aug. 8, and died Friday.

"She had worked too hard for too many years; she just wanted to retire and be a housewife," said Don Hatfield, a building contractor and boyfriend in her youth whom she married in 1965.

Born Irene Colleen Summers in suburban Pasadena on July 27, 1924, she took the stage name Mary Ford to fit better with that of her monosyllabic partner.

Negotiations hampered by attempted coup, but troops quell uprising

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Five heavily armed hijackers released 59 of their 140 hostages from a Japanese jetliner early Sunday in a step-by-step exchange for $6 million in ransom and six "comrades" freed from Japanese jails.

But negotiations were interrupted by an attempted coup in Dacca, and officials had no indication where they planned to go with the remaining 80 hostages.

Shortly after the exchange was completed, gunfire erupted at the airport, and three miles away in downtown Dacca, and rebel troops announced an "armed revolution" over Radio Bangladesh. By daybreak the shooting had died down and the radio said loyal troops had quelled the revolt.

The rebels had apparently hoped to capitalize on the government's preoccupation with the hijacking to seize power. Witness said that rebels at the airport executed as many as seven military officers.

Officials said the hijackers — members of the radical Japanese "Red Army" who had seized the Japan Air Lines DC8 over India on Wednesday — were informed of the disorders and ordered food and air conditioning equipment brought to their plane.

But the officials gave no indication what they planned to do next. There was also no word on the fate of Air Vice Marshal A.G. Mahmoud, who had led the negotiations with the hijackers. One of his assistants was reportedly killed.

In Tokyo, the JAL officials said a bus carrying released hostages from the airport had turned around and returned to the airport when the shooting broke out. Officials later said the passengers were safe in a lobby near the control tower.

The hijackers, members of the terrorist Japanese "Red Army," gave no indication what they planned to do next with their remaining 80 hostages. The Japan Air Lines DC8 was refueled and stood poised at the southern tip of an isolated runway, apparently ready to take off.

Officials in the Dacca control tower said the plane was expected to head east, but they did not elaborate. Earlier, Japanese Foreign Ministry sources said the terrorists wanted to go to a "revolutionary" state willing to accept them.

Before the step-by-step release of the 59 hostages, the hijackers freed California banker John Gabriel, who officials said had been singled out for execution. He was reported seriously ill late Saturday and was rushed to a hospital after his release.

Russ, Bulgaria fishing ships seized; 2 hit by gunfire

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Argentine navy reported Saturday it seized four more foreign fishing trawlers, three Russian and one Bulgarian, and that two of them were hit by gunfire from Argentine destroyers.

There were no reports of casualties in the incidents which the navy said occurred late Friday and early Saturday 30 miles inside Argentina's 200-mile territorial waters limit in the South Atlantic off the oil port of Comodoro Rivadavia, which is about 900 miles southeast of Buenos Aires. A Soviet vessel was reported adrift after being hit by gunfire.

Carter celebrates 53rd birthday

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — Jimmy Carter celebrated his 53rd birthday Saturday, and in a way it was a comedown. He got just one cake.

It was pistachio nut — his favorite

One year ago, as he campaigned for his presidency, he got a birthday cake at every stop.

Carter, who figures he has aged "probably three years" in the nine months since he took office, rode a helicopter to this presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains in western Maryland late Friday. He was accompanied by his wife, Rosalynn.

John Gabriel, a bank president from Montebello, is carried on a stretcher from a hijacked Japanese jetliner in Bangladesh. Gabriel was the first of 59 hostages released by terrorists after they received $6 million in ransom and the release of six fellow terrorists from Japanese prisons. Another 83 persons continued to be held hostage, however.

Car slams into gas station; woman dies, husband injured

Mercy Marie Liddle died at Pomona Valley Community Hospital two hours after the 10:54 a.m. accident. Her husband George, 76, who was driving the car, was reported in critical condition at the Pomona hospital after suffering head and internal injuries.

Police said Liddle's car rammed into the garage area of the Shell Station at Garey and Orange Grove avenues.

Officers reported the auto was eastbound on the San Bernardino Freeway at the Garey Avenue offramp when the car's brakes apparently failed. The auto continued at a high rate of speed, traveling off the freeway and across Garey Avenue into the gas station.

The car rammed into two parked cars and struck a post outside the station's garage area, officers said. No one was injured at the station.

Mrs. Liddle was treated by emergency room personnel at the hospital for more than an hour before being pronounced dead at 12:50 p.m.

Trailer burns on freeway; 2 escape

A Palos Verdes man and his wife escaped injury Saturday morning when their vacation trailer caught fire on the Kellogg Hill stretch of the San Bernardino Freeway.

Firemen said the trailer was completely destroyed and the damage was estimated at $10,000. The trailer Was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Eisentraut.

The trailer, being pulled by a car, began moving from side to side on the freeway, causing a leak in the vehicle's butane refrigerator which ignited with the pilot light, firemen said.

All-time fair attandance mark?

Los Angeles County Fair officials are predicting a possible all-time attendance record may be set as the fair closes out its 17-day run today.

Unusually good weather was cited by officials as the reason for high attendance figures during the 50th run of the Pomona fair.

Linda Robinson of West Covina became the one-millionth visitor to the fair this year at 9:36 p.m. Friday. She was awarded a bowl commemorating the occasion and was given a guided tour of the fairgrounds.

Total attendance as of Saturday evening was 1,109,276.

The all-time attendance figure was set in 1972 when 1,268,446 persons visited the fair. Last year, a total of 1,116,741 came to the fairgrounds.

Youth bands will be the feature today at the Pomona event. A youth band jubilee is scheduled from noon to 4 p.m. in the amphitheatre. At 3 p.m., a youth band parade will be held.

Honorary degree to Rose Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy accepted her first honorary college degree Saturday and was hailed by her son as "the Rose of all roses, the Rose without thorns, Rose of Old Boston."

"Thank you a million times," Mrs. Kennedy, wearing an academic cap and gown over a tailored royal blue suit, told the Georgetown University officials who gave her a doctor of humane letters degree for her work on behalf of the mentally retarded.

Byrd vows Senate vote on natural gas pricing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd pledged Saturday the Senate will take a conclusive vote on natural gas pricing no matter how long it takes to end a filibuster on the issue.

As the Senate held its second consecutive Saturday session, Byrd conceded that supporters of lifting federal natural gas controls have the votes to win.

But he predicted that federal controls still will be in effect when Congress completes work on the critical portion of President Carter's energy bill, although he said producers will be permitted to charge higher prices.

"The Senate is tired of this filibuster," said Byrd, predicting that a conclusive vote is likely by Tuesday.

Despite the prediction, leaders of the filibuster refused again Saturday to agree to set a time for a vote to end a fight that is threatening to block passage of the President's entire energy package.

The Senate worked on the natural gas bill for six hours Saturday, then quit after a long series of parliamentary squabbles that did little to end the filibuster.

Some senators have urged that Byrd should withdraw the bill and move on to other matters because militant foes of deregulated natural gas prices appear determined to keep up their filibuster indefinitely.

"I won't take the bill down," Byrd said heatedly during an informal weekly meeting with reporters. "You can forget that rumor. We have to have an energy bill."

Among other filibusters during his 19 years in the Senate, the West Virginia Democrat said, "This is the most difficult one I have experienced."

Meanwhile, on the Senate floor, filibuster leaders refused to concede defeat and continued to block a direct vote on the natural gas issue.

Despite a defeat on a key test vote Friday, Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and James Abourezk, D-S.D., said they were prepared to keep the Senate tied up for two more weeks if necessary.

At issue in the protracted battle is whether Congress should end 23 years of price controls over a fuel source which the administration says is running out.

Backers of deregulation say only if producers are allowed to set prices will they earn high enough profits to provide enough incentive to find new reserves.

Deregulation opponents say that while higher price ceilings may be needed, an end to controls would raise home heating costs sharply and give the producers excessive profits.

The Senate is considering a deregulation plan that would allow the ceiling to rise from its present $1.46 per thousand cubic feet to about $2.48 for two years, with the lid taken off thereafter.

The administration is supporting a plan for a $2.03 ceiling which would rise with inflation, but remain as a cap nonetheless.

FREEDOM BY RANSOM

Two Japanese terrorists, still in handcuffs, are led to a special plane in Tokyo for their flight to Bangladesh as part of a ransom demand made by hijackers holding 140 hostages aboard a jetliner. Tsutomu Shirosaki, 29, left, and Yukiko Ekita, 26, were among six terrorists released from Japanese prisons and turned over to the hijackers along with $6 million. In return the hijackers released 59 hostages, but the drama continued late Saturday.

GOP rejects bid to change name of party

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Republicans' Rules Review Committee rejected on Saturday the idea of changing the party's name as a way of improving its public image.

A motion to launch a year-long study into the name change question and the broader image problem was tabled by voice vote after a debate in which several members said the name Republican is a "stigma" which its candidates must bear.

"It is a massive burden we bear," said John East of North Carolina, who offered the study motion. "The principal obstruction we have going against us is this label."

But the suggestion was shelved after several members complained that the committee was getting into a divisive struggle not really related to its function of reviewing and updating party rules.

While a simple name change is a rules matter, party counsel William Cramer ruled that the bigger question of improving GOP perception by the public was not.

He said this already was being worked on by the Republican National Committee.

The name change was first raised at the National Committee meeting in Chicago last January. Party Chariman Bill Brock referred it to the Rules Committee at that time. The decision Saturday means the committee does not want to do anything about changing the name at least at this time, although the issue could be revived later.

Several party members and leaders have been agitating for a new name which would be easier to run under and reconstruct the party around.

Rites mark return of war dead

HONOLULU (AP) — A silent and solemn military ceremony marked the return to American soil Saturday of the remains of 21 U.S. servicemen and a civilian released by Vietnam.

Squads made up of men and women from the different military services carried the flagdraped caskets down the ramp of a U.S. Air Force transport, past a line of dignitaries and to a military bus.

The only sound on the hot runway apron at Hickam Air Force Base was the sharp bark of an Army sergeant who ordered an honor guard to present arms as each casket came from the belly of the C141 Starlifter.

Fewer than 100 spectators were there for the ceremonies.

The remains were taken to the Army's Central Identification Laboratory here where military investigators will attempt to confirm or establish identification of the servicemen.

Frank Sieverts, the State Department's expert on prisoners of war and servicemen missing in action, said none of the names would be disclosed until all the remains have been identified.

The remains were handed over to Sieverts during a brief ceremony in Hanoi.

Smith, foe in secret meeting

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — In a surprise opening to a long-time foe, Prime Minister Ian Smith secretly crossed into neighboring Zambia and conferred with President Kenneth Kaunda about prospects for peace in Rhodesia, the government disclosed Saturday.

An official statement said the two met last Sunday in the Zambian capital of Lusaka and discussed the latest BritishAmerican plan for a transition to black-majority rule next year in this white-governed country.

Sources close to Smith said the talks were "cordial" and lasted most of the day.

Informed sources said one issue discussed was U.N.-supported efforts to negotiate a cease-fire between the Smith government and the black nationalist guerrillas who for five years have been fighting it.

Smith has refused to bargain directly with guerrilla leaders, but Zambia is one of the five "front-line" black states in southern Africa that support and shelter the guerrillas.

The well-concealed meeting seemed to signal Smith's intention to suspend his efforts toward an "internal" settlement with moderate blacks inside Rhodesia and to try to reach an accommodation, though indirect, with the guerrillas.

It is not clear how much pressure Kaunda can exert on the insurgents to bring about a cease-fire. Zambia is the base for Joshua Nkomo's Zimbalwe African People's Union ZAPU — one of two elements in the guerrilla Patriotic Front. The other front partner, Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union — ZANU — is based in Mozambique.

Zimbabwe is the nationalists' name for Rhodesia.

Kaunda and the presidents of the other "front-line" states — Tanzania, Mozambique, Angola and Botswana — have given their backing to the new British-American plan for a Rhodesian settlement.

But Smith and the guerrilla leaders thus far have been critical of parts of the plan, particularly sections dealing with the makeup of security forces during and after the transition. They have said, however, it could form the basis for negotiation.

The plan calls for appointment of a British administrator and the stationing of a U.N. peacekeeping force in Rhodesia to oversee one-person, one-vote elections in the country, which has a population of 6.4 million blacks and 270,000 whites.

The white-led Rhodesian security forces would be replaced by a new Zimbabwe national army based on the guerrilla units and some elements of the existing army.

The U.N. Security Council on Thursday set the peace plan in motion by approving a resolution for Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to appoint a U.N. representative to take charge of a peace force.

One dead, 2 dozen injured, thousands without power

Storms cause millions in damage

By The Associated Press

Storms and tornadoes caused millions of dollars in damage and at least one death over the weekend in Illinois and Ohio. More than two dozen persons were injured and thousands were left without power.

A dozen people were injured, three of them hospitalized, as high winds, hail and sheets of rain pounded the Danville, Ill., area Friday night.

Mayor David Palmer estimated damage at $20 million in the east central Illinois city of 43,000. After a helicopter tour of the storm-ravaged area, Palmer said he would seek federal disaster emergency aid.

Officials said power to about 10,000 Danville residents that was knocked out during the night probably would not be restored until Monday.

Most of the city's streets were blocked by up to two feet of water and many cars were abandoned in the flash flooding.

A boy identified as Wayne Burton, 14, drowned when he fell into eight feet of water that had accumulated on a loading ramp at Danville High School, authorities said.

A severe thunderstorm apparently accompanied by a tornado battered suburban areas near Cincinnati at dawn Saturday, causing an estimated $2 million in damage. Police said more than a dozen persons were injured and 12 homes were destroyed.

Winds clocked at 59 miles per hour raked the area, along with one to three inches of rain, weather officials said.

Resident Laverne Brown said she heard "a terrible roar" shortly after 7 a.m. and saw a twister approach. She said it narrowly missed her home then demolished five nearby houses. "I saw a house buckle and pop. Then it went whirling and whirling away."

In the Montford HeightsWhite Oak area northwest of the city, sections of homes were found 600 to 700 feet away on wooded hillsides. Most of the damage was confined to a single street.

Hamilton County Sheriff Lincoln Stokes said 27 homes were damaged in the neighborhood, and many of the injuries were suffered there. Hospital officials said most of the injured were treated and released.

Gov. James A. Rhodes was asked to declare the neighborhood a disaster area.

Sea of lava from erupting volcano heading for ocean

KALAPANA, Hawaii (AP) — Madame Pele — the legendary Hawaiian volcano goddess — was said to be holding back a wide river of lava just above this tiny coastal community, but officials said there is no question it would rush through and into the ocean.

"It's only a question of what path it will take," said Harry Kim, Hawaii County civil defense director.

The 500-foot-wide lava flow from Kilauea Volcano had slowed to only 30 feet per hour by Saturday noon and was not expected to cascade into the ocean until Monday noon, Kim said.

It was hovering about threequarters of a mile above sea front homes, filling a series of gullies and low spots in a fairly level forest area.

The lava had earlier been expected to complete its 10-mile flow to the sea Friday or Saturday.

The 175 residents of this community 30 miles southeast of Hilo began evacuating Wednesday, taking most of their possessions with them.

A few remained behind to keep watch on homes, and tend to animals and gardens. But the area was expected to be cleared before the lava arrived.

"I wish it would rain buckets for several days," said one woman resident as a light sprinkle fell.

"I know it won't stop the volcano, but somehow it would be reassuring," she said.

Meanwhile, the eruption feeding the flow continued strong with fountains up to 200 feet.

Scientists said there is no end in sight to the latest phase of eruption, which began Monday afternoon.

The outbreak of the volcano's east rift zone began Sept. 13. Fountaining has been intermittent, with the current phase the longest and strongest.

"This is a close-knit, religious community, and there are strong spiritual vibes," said resident Eugene Dudoit. "The people feel this is an act of God."

But since many residents are of Hawaiian ancestry, cultural traditions are strong. Pele is an honored and respected goddess in Hawaiian folklore.

"The people believe they have done nothing to hurt Pele, and she won't hurt us," said Dudoit, who is part-Hawaiian.

The community repeatedly has resisted development in the area, and many believe the eruption and lava flow to the village is Pele's response to those who would change simple, rural lifestyles.

Some native Hawaiians also frown on recent army experiments aimed at diverting lava flows. Dudoit said they see this as interference with Pele.

There have been no efforts to divert the latest flow because of technical problems and lack of preparation time, officials said.

2 women ordered to return welfare funds

Pomona Superior Court judges have ordered two women to make restitution for welfare funds they accepted illegally in separate cases, authorities said.

Judge Sam Cianchetti made repayment of more than $5,000 to the county a condition of three years' probation granted Geraldine Ann Kirkham, 41, of La Puente. He also ordered her to serve 10 days in jail. Department of Public Social Services workers charged Mrs. Kirkham obtained the funds under the county's child support program at a time when she claimed not to have been employed, but was.

Judge Howard D. McClain made repayment of more than $1,700 a condition of three years' probation he granted Christina Hildago, 29, Pasadena, who also was accused of illegally accepting child support funds while she was employed.

Bonita sets food service

A new food service program for residents over 50 years old will be started Monday by the Bonita Unified School District and the city of San Dimas.

Dorothy Gee, the school district's director of food services, said a noon dinner will be served daily, Monday through Friday, at the Ekstrand School cafeteria.

The meals will be served at the same time as children in first through fifth grade students receive their lunches. These will consist of an entree, vegetable, salad, bread and butter, dessert and a beverage. The adults will share the meals with young children who will find a "grandparent" to share their table.

Cost will be $1.25 for adult servings. A sample menu will include spaghetti with meat and cheese, tossed green salad with Italian dressing, hot bread, a fruit cup and beverage.

Still haggling over new SALT pact

Arms accord expires Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1972 U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreement, the first joint effort aimed at restricting the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers, expires Monday with both still haggling over an accord to replace it.

In the legal sense, the lid will be off the arms race when the deadline passes. The ceilings that have been in effect for the past five years will no longer be binding and either side could begin immediate production of deadly new weapons beyond those limits.

But in recent days, both nations have issued unilateral statements pledging to abide by the terms of the expiring agreement so long as the other side exercises similar restraint.

The Carter administration has gone out of its way to emphasize that these statements do not represent a full extension of the old agreement.

Some members of Congress contend that the administration's tactic is designed to circumvent a 1961 law requiring the Congress to approve any agreement that places limits on U.S. arms.

Among them is Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who has alleged that the arrangement amounts to a formal agreement in everything but name. Jackson plans to summon government witnesses before his Senate Arms Control subcommitee and says he will insist that congressional consent is required.

The administration says it has no objection to approval of a joint congressional resolution endorsing the procedure, but it wants to avoid congressional debate on the merits of the expiring agreement.

Officials say this would lead to public debate over U.S. arms policy and could hamper administration flexibility in on-going negotiations with the Russians.

The ability of the two sides to agree on a new accord is regarded in both capitals as a crucial test of Soviet-American relations.

Officials say other issues — trade, human rights and ideological competition — are secondary to the question of whether a competitive escalation of nuclear forces can be averted.

A breakdown in the current negotiations, officials say, would have extremely serious political and military consequences.

Among the most important of these would be accelerating distrust and fear between the superpowers, a rapid nuclear arms buildup in all sectors, and proliferation of nuclear weapons in other countries. As one official said, "If we don't exercise restraint, we can't expect others to do the same."

Even under the SALT I, a major achievement of the Nixon-Kissinger detente policy, the Soviet-American arms buildup has not been contained. The agreement did not preclude modernization of existing weapons systems nor research and development of new systems.

In a speech two weeks ago, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said the Soviets are "now deploying a further generation of intercontinental ballistic missiles at the rate of between 100 and 150 a year."

At his news conference Thursday, President Carter noted that SALT I imposes no limits on the U.S. cruise missile, a highly accurate pilotless plane with a nuclear warhead that has become the centerpiece of U.S. defense strategy since production of the B1 bomber was halted.

Restraints on the cruise missile and on the new generation of Soviet ICBMs are two of the issues the United States and the Soviet Union have been negotiating in their efforts to reach a SALT II agreement.

The United States also wants restrictions on long-range use of the Soviet Backfire bomber. Moscow has challenged Washington's assertion that the Backfire is an intercontinental weapon.

Carter took office eight months ago promising to work toward abolition of nuclear weapons in all countries, and two months later the administration proposed to Moscow a ban on the testing of new weapons and deep cuts in existing forces. The Soviets reacted angrily, accusing the United States of seeking unilateral advantage.

There was little progress at a subsequent round of negotiations in May, although there was agreement to work within the guidelines established by former President Gerald R. Ford and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev at Vladivostok in 1974.

Head of sheriff station to speak

Capt. Lawrence Dykehouse, commanding officer of the sheriff's station in Industry, will address the meeting Monday night of the Rowland Heights Community Coordinating Council at 7:30.

Dykehouse will discuss various sheriff's department procedures including the "team policing concent," and neighborhood involvement programs.

The meeting will be held at Alvarado Intermediate School and is open to the public.

Noise ordinance considered

Los Angeles County's CETA programs and a model noise ordinance will be discussed Monday at 8 o'clock at the Pomona City Council's monthly study session.

In addition to talking about the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center program funding for the past year, the council will go over all the CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) programs which the city administers for local agencies and for surrounding cities.

Councilman Adrian Wright had asked that the city attorney draft an ordinance to provide for control over loud noises.

City Attorney Patrick Sampson said that it is only by adopting a sophisticated ordinance such as the Model Community Noise Control Ordinance would the city be able to go beyond the pre-emption issue and set meaningful standards for noise abatement.

Newspapers valuable as learning tool

Twelfth in a series
By ROBERT COCHNER
and JUDITH HINES

This article is concerned specifically with the daily newspaper because, in many respects, it can be an extremely valuable tool in the learning process. Many school systems have recognized the newspaper's value and they have reading and spelling skills, increase vocabulary, keep up with current affairs, and learn about science, politics, government, business and the major social and economic problems which confront all citizens. And the newspaper-in-the-home can be even more useful, particularly if the child is encouraged to read it every day — not because the child should, or because he or she will learn about things and thus become a more knowledgeable individual, but simply because reading a paper is fun.

Obviously, the discipline imposed by the classroom environment helps the learning process. Some skills can only be learned with a group, and the letters of the alphabet, the words and phrases which create sentences — the very basics of reading and writing — should generally be left to highly trained teachers. On the other hand, the extraordinary success of television's "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" has certainly demonstrated the importance of education (with fun) in the home.

An habitual newspaper reader is discomfited when there is no newspaper available. When the carrier fails to de;iver the paper, a considerable amount of irritation is directed not only to the carrier but to the newspaper itse;f.

Millions of people simply must have their daily newspaper. In homes where the reading habit is well-entrenched, it is likely that books — well-thumbed books — line the shelves and current magazines are always handy. In such homes, television probably has less importance, and the children are very likely to be readers. These are the children who invariably do well at school.

If the home environment favors reading, children will read. How, then, can such an environment be established if it does not now exist? How can the reading habit be transferred, without pain, from parent to child?

If you have fallen out of the newspaper-reading habit, the first thing to do is to get back into it. Nothing will work unless there's a fresh, new paper in the home every day. And if you haven't picked up a paper lately, you may be very surprised, for it's likely your local paper contains a great deal of information it once did not carry.

More and more newspapers are also becoming usepapers. Although your paper is certainly not neglecting the coverage of news, it is also filled with the kind of information designed to make your life easier and more pleasant; solid consumer reporting, columns on health, family problems, recreation and leisure activities, calendars of local events, coverage of movies and television and sports . . . plenty of interesting items which can't be covered satisfactorily by television or radio.

Too, many newspapers realize that you may no longer have the time to devote to a thorough reading of the paper, which is why information is better arranged and easier to find. Newspapers even look more inviting.

Subscribing to the paper is easy; just call the circulation department and within a few days the paper will begin to become part of the family.

Order your copy of PARENT POWER today. It's the book that tells you how to help your child succeed. For your copy send $1.75 plus 25 cents postage and handling to Parent Power, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44113.

Cooperative: way to bury dead

NEW ULM, Minn. (AP) — The cooperative, a popular way since the 1800s for Minnesota farmers to market goods, store grain and fuel homes, is being used by some to bury their dead.

The 3,000-member Minnesota Valley Burial Association was formed in 1929 because "families who needed the services at that time did not feel their needs were being met," said manager-mortician Eric Dulka.

Households pay $5 to belong to the co-op. If someone is buried, a portion of the funeral cost is returned. Last year, a member paying for a $1,000 funeral received a $48 dividend.

The average cost of a co-op funeral last year was between $1,100 and $1,300, and a state Consumer Services Division survey last fall found the average funeral price in the state was $1,609.

By the end of last year, the association reaped 24 per cent in profits. State laws require customer-members to get 20 per cent of the profit in dividends. The rest is reserved for working capital by a 12-member elected board.

Other funeral co-ops work in a similar way. Range Cooperatives of Virginia, Minn., operates two funeral homes, as well as service stations, food stores and home heating services. Its customers get a share of the business in cash or stock.

"Because we're a co-op doesn't get us any more funeral business," said Ronald Held, manager of the Range co-op. "We have to do a good job and just like any other business. Some people don't even know they have a chance of sharing in the profits, until the end of the year. Once they find out, we may get them to use one of our other services.

"It's a tough market to penetrate," he added. "There's a public relations thing, involvement in the community. People just don't talk about funerals very much."

At one time there were 30 funeral cooperatives in Minnesota but they have dwindled to about 10 now.

Hayseed revolution: small towns growing

While nobody was looking, U.S. reversed 'irreversible' trend

EDITOR'S NOTE: A couple of decades ago, nothing seemed likelier than the continued attrition, even the demise, of small towns. The next time somebody looked closely, there was a surprise. Plenty of Americans were changing their idea about the good life, and they were finding it in the hinterland hinterlands. The effects are far-reaching.

BOYNE CITY, Mich. (AP) — While nobody was looking, this tiny place and thousands like it across the United States quietly reversed the nation's most "irreversible" population trend.

They stopped dying.

Since 1970, when Census Bureau figures first recorded net population gains for rural areas over the 25 largest cities, 300,000 urban Americans annually have become emigrant hayseeds. Agricultural college enrollment has doubled in the last 13 years and has gone co-ed.

Instead of being razed to cut taxes, dilapidated old homesteads are being snapped up for renovation.

Polls disclose a new outlook. In 1950, two of every three Americans preferred life in cities. Last year, the National Opinion Research Center reported a complete reversal. Two-thirds of the sample population said that given a choice, they would live someplace with fewer than 50,000 inhabitants.

Jim Kuhn knows nothing of the surveys and cares less. They remind him of the statistically oriented, highly interdependent urban world he recently fled for Boyne City. In so doing, Kuhn forfeited the $32,000 remuneration, free car and pension benefits he earned as an upward-bound research engineer at General Motors Corp.'s laboratories in Detroit.

Kuhn craved personal achievement and physical security unavailable in high-pressure corporations and high-crime cities. The anonymity of bigness, he feels, projects an appearance of freedom — and the reality of considerable danger.

"At GM, nobody is totally responsible for anything," says Kuhn. That protects anyone from being blamed for the goofs that cause costly recall programs, but it also prevents an individual from getting full credit for success. Rewards also are often skewed. Just as Kuhn developed enough seniority to bring his creative engineering ideas on line, GM promoted him to supervisor. Corporate brass thought they were pleasing him. To Kuhn, however, it seemed that "they were taking away my drawing board and giving me a telephone to boss other people who were doing what I have always loved."

Kuhn believes that high crime rates cloud even the most ordinary sense of personal security in the big city with a mist of fear. As he puts it: "Sure, people are freer in big places. The trouble is that if good people can do as they please, so can bad people — and they do."

To work off the frustrations of job and urban stress, Kuhn bought 10 acres of wooded land near Boyne City and with his wife Arleen and son Chris began building a vacation home.

Construction means cement, cement requires water and, in the country, water comes from wells. So, dapper as usual in smart sports clothes, with aviator-style glasses setting off an immaculate coiffeur and trim blond beard, Kuhn rented drilling equipment from an openlyskeptical hardware store owner. Word circulated that "some damned fool was trying to hit water," as the raucous racket of well-work reverberated through the hills. Natives stopped by to watch.

The well failed, but the Kuhns' social acceptance had been assured by the time the old-timer at the hardware store took back the equipment with the remark "Didn't think you'd make it, but it's good you tried."

When they moved into their house last spring, it had become a charming, Tudor-style cottage set in deep woods at the head of a ravine. The Kuhns scavenged its heavy, exposed beams from local barns, the deep "Michigan basement" is designed for five-foot snows, and Kuhn made the stainedglass windows himself.

Jim has hired himself out as an laborer to gain the skills he needs to start his own construction business. Arleen has taken a job at a nearby ski resort, and Chris has entered the local school.

"You trade mental strain for physical exhaustion," says Kuhn, "but we knew that."

Since 1970, fully half the town's businesses have been bought by new arrivals who are busily revamping the once-decaying Victorian storefronts.

Joe Gierlach, 34, now runs the local cinema. Jim White, 28, operates one of three hardware stores. Don Toffolo and Chuck Rivard bought the little department store. Bruce Janssen opened a woodworking shop, and a commune of young people set up a stained-glass works in an abandoned Baptist church. Paul Haynes, 29, notes that not long after buying Gocha's Dress Store, he and his wife had "more friends than we had in the city" because so many people share the new hayseed experience.

A cheerful real-estate man named Arthur "Frenchy" Poineau, 49, midwifes the rebirth of many urban folk in Boyne City. If housing or business proposals sound good to him, he "risks a few bad checks" for the chance to build his clientele and community. Poineau, who has seen many attempted resettlements fail, notices something different about people arriving now. "These aren't retirees who didn't count on our winters, or youngsters who didn't know how hard it is to make a living. The new people have thought it out better. They'll stay."

The Boyne City experience is being repeated across the United States, according to Calvin Beale, leader of population studies for the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Growth can be as spectacular as the six-year doubling of population in Citrus County, Florida, and as problematic as the dilemma of Petaluma, Calif. Response to the town's "settle here" drive in the 1960's proved so successful in the 1970's that officials tried to ration housing permits. They failed. The city manager of Bow, N.H., faced with quickly-trebled size, bemoans the need for a sewage system and a second firehouse. The 450 citizens of Meeteetse, Wyo., drew national attention in 1975 with their mixed feelings about the 900 "new folks" coming when copper mines opened in the ranchlands.

Beale, widely-credited with having "discovered" the hayseed revolution, explains it in terms of a national reaction against urban problems dramatized by the "massive riots following the death of Martin Luther King Jr." Suddenly, people became hyper-aware of pollution, crime and alienation in cities, many of which began losing population.

A coterie of experts on rural population now watches the trend closely. Professor Glen Fuguitt of the University of Wisconsin sifts Census Bureau figures for the latest movements. Michigan State University's Professor James Zuiches investigates the increasing tendency of the hometown young to stay put, instead of seeking jobs in cities. Peter Morrison researches the history and direction of what he calls "the rural renaissance of America" for the Rand Corporation "think tank."

— The countryside itself has become a far more hospitable place, some of them contend. Superhighways and vastly improved local airprts enable escapees from the city to return occasionally for entertainment or business, the pro-country forces also contend.

Rural areas will have more clout as their populations and economies grow, but this is not seen as an automatic boon to entrenched interests. Urban people bring citified liberal values with them into the traditionally conservative countryside, which produces two kinds of results. Overall, it homogenizes views, breaking down long established city-country voting patterns. Attitudes may be changing on a massive scale. Transplanted people slowly accept the mores of adopted communities, while older settlers change their outlooks slightly to account for new ideas. As

Hope through music composer's message

NEW YORK (AP) — Stan Satlin, social group counselor turned theatrical composer, like some of the theater's song men, can't read a note of music or even begin to write down his musical creations.

Satlin, 39, only recently discovered his flair for music, wrote about 150 songs and launched a successful off-Broadway "all-music musical" called "Children of Adam."

The young composer's penchant for more than just a lively tune surfaced on an aptitude test he took when he was 17. The surprised Brooklyn teenager found that he scored highest in music. Since he had never played an instrument or ever considered it, he agreed with his guidance counselor who said, "I guess it's too late for music," and settled for the social sciences.

He forgot about music and went on to Brooklyn College, and then to New York University for a master's degree in social group work. He also logged enough credits for another master's in American history, and planned to go into advanced therapist work.

Instead, Satlin discovered Daytop Village, a therapeutic community for ex-addicts who were helping to cure addicts by using a group encounter approach.

Eventually, Satlin began running encounter groups with universities and he trained psychiatrists, psychologists and military officers during the Vietnam War, preparing them to return to their posts and establish drug programs.

Many group encounters later, Satlin confronted himself in Tepoztlan, Mexico, where he was then living and doing free-lance counseling.

"My wife and I separated," he said. "At the same time, someone gave me a copy of Whitman's 'Leaves of Grass.' Before this, I had only written about ten songs in my entire life. Suddenly, I started to write a lot of music.

"Thirty songs came out of that one-and-a-half-month period after the separation. As a counselor, I had talked to people who wanted to commit suicide, and I started to feel a similar despair. Then the music started to happen — it was like a rebirth."

One of the songs to emerge from that period in 1973 was "You've Got To Die To Be Born Again," now one of the catchy show-stoppers in Satlin's show.

The reflective songwriter, who composes his lyrics first, then works out a melody and sings it into a tape recorder, points out:

"A lot of my songs come from moments and feelings of my own experience. They reflect my struggle, yet are positively oriented. We all have that choice — to overcome despair, transcend it and make life more meaningful."

In his program notes for "Children of Adam," Satlin states that his songs "are inspired not by any musical predecessors, but by such notables as Walt Whitman, Krishnamurti, Hesse, Camus and Castaneda."

His own philosophy celebrates a simple "belief in life, self and the oneness of the universe. I believe in an optimistic way of life, the power of faith and in God. Anger, despair and cynicism are boring and bring harm to the system," he asserts.

As a full-time composer, Satlin says he wants to offer hope through music. "It's the same kind of approach I'd have if I were running a group."

For this reason, he made his career change with relative ease:

"Running groups was rewarding and satisfying. With music, it's similar — to reflect on the time, to help people. I've been in the help profession all my life and I feel that I'm doing something to help. People are not threatened by music — they're very open."

"Children of Adam" focuses on relationships, a theme which prevails in Satlin's work. Romance is the hub of the songs in the show, but many of his other pieces comment upon the ties between a person and his work, family and environment.

Quoting Krishnamurti, Satlin, now divorced and living in Greenwich Village, indicates: "We only learn in a relationship — never in a vacuum."

If "Children of Adam" becomes a long-running hit, Satlin hopes an album will result and he says that sometime he'd like to perform some of the songs himself.

it grows more powerful, the farm vote also gets harder to predict.

Recently, the bell-bottomed pioneers of the 1970's began encountering a phenomenon that perturbed their predecessors a century ago. Their very arrival destroys the bucolic "frontier" they seek. Hayseed watchers report that whole communities like Bloomington, Ind., have lost their rural character through migration.

When an urban escapee from Detroit strode bravely into the evergreen forests of the Pacific Northwest to build a secluded cabin, he discovered that previous immigrants had produced more entanglements in red tape than he encountered in the underbrush. A woman who moved to Northern California's Mendocino County to escape city restrictions found building code specifications against her carefully-researched, ecologically-sound Swedish dry toilet so infuriating that she felt forced to organize resistance. Result: She is now a building code inspector, and a bureaucrat.

The irony of all this is summed up by Clayton Denman, editor of "Small Town" magazine and professor of anthropology at Central Washington University. "It is a movement of people who reject their urban or suburban backgrounds to escape what they see as restrictions in city life," he says. "Yet sometimes these things follow them."

Mulching

Mulching of shrubs and other plantings enables the soil to hold moisture longer, says the Colorado State University Extension Service.

White hunter era is ended

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Thick dust covered the upturned hardwood captain's chairs and six-sided tables piled by the iron gate door of the long bar here, once the hangout of white hunters of East Africa.

A scratched and well-worn Yale padlock on the chain around the door, framed by fluted, Victorian Empire-style columns, was symbolic of the end of an era of big game hunting.

A recent Kenyan government ban on hunting put 90 professional white hunters out of work.

One was Edgar de Bono, 63, who for 40 years was a gem ranger or hunter in East Africa.

"I read about the ban in the newspaper as I was coming in from my last safari," said De Bono. "I thought the floor had disappeared under me."

De Bono, who became a Kenyan citizen last April, did not have to worry about leaving the country like most of the other hunters whose guns were silenced.

"I advertised in the paper and got a job," he said as he checked the day's receipts behind the desk in a tour company vehicle rental office.

A widower with four grown children and four grandchildren, the stocky hunter - turned - manager said: "I was forced to take a job."

He said some hunters were leaving Kenya, while others were organizing photo safaris or were trying to find jobs.

Dressed in casual tan slacks, a print red shirt with a cigarette hole near the pocket, he smoked locally-made Embassy Braid cigarettes as he spoke of safaris in days gone by.

Born in Egypt of Maltese parents, De Bono, who was a British citizen, said he had an early fondness for guns and animals.

He learned English, French, Italian, Greek, Portuguese, Arabic and Swahili as he journeyed over ancient desert caravan routes or followed game with wealthy clients in the shadow of Mount Kilimanjaro.

His hair streaked with gray, the former hunter looked younger than his 50 years. His tanned face showed few lines around the eyes.

He said most white hunters worked for safari companies but some were free-lancers. In the old days when the going was good, hunters swapped stories and information of game movements over drinks in the long bar in the New Stanley Hotel in the center of Nairobi.

"The image of the white hunter was to be tough and hard-drinking," he said. "The hunters would gather after 11 a.m. and stay for a few hours but I was never a drinker."

His last safaris, he said, cost about $400 a day and lasted three weeks on average. De Bono ran about eight safaris a year.

He worked three months with John Wayne while they filmed "Hatari" — a Swahili word for danger — and took Jimmy Stewart on a hunting trip.

Hunting safaris resembled a baggage train with 10 local porters, a Land Rover, a five-ton truck and the hunter-guide. They would drive to areas near game, especially the big five: elephant, lion, cape buffalo, rhino and leopard.

"The clients shot the game and sometimes I would help with the wounded ones," said De Bono. His main weapon for more than 40 years was an English-made, .500 (half inch), double-barreled Army-Navy model rifle.

He said the herds of game that roamed the mile-high plains of East Africa had been reduced to a fifth of their prewar size. Poachers were responsible for 50 per cent of the decline, development, land misuse, and population pressure for 30 per cent, and 20 per cent was from natural causes, he estimated.

"The future for the animals looks awful, even in the national parks," De Bono said.

Few countries in Africa still allow big game hunting. Botswana and Rhodesia are the main two left. Hunters say it is poachers, not professionals, who are depleting the herds.

In Nairobi, zebra skins sell for about $350, while a lion skin can cost between $4,000 and $10,000.

Sputnik lured Pomona into the Space Age

Progress Bulletin

Pomona, California ■ Sunday, October 2, 1977

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Sputnik revolutionized the science of military defense.

It pulled Pomona into the Space Age as the home of one of the country's major tactical missile designer-producers.

Ralph E. Hawes Jr., general manager of that missile plant, Pomona Division of General Dynamics, said Sputnik abolished the idea that the USSR was a second-rate power, technologically.

The 22-inch ball orbited around the earth by the Russians on Oct. 4, 1957, placed the USSR into the tactical-weapon world.

"During World War II, the U. S. realized its gun systems were ineffective against the kamikaze, Hawes continued. He described Japan's suicidal kamikaze pilots as "aircraft with infinite courage."

That's what the U. S. has today with its Cruise Missile Guidance System, made by Boeing for the Air Force.

This missile is 14 feet long, 26 inches around. It is tipped with a 200-kiloton nuclear warhead and flies at 550 miles per hour to targets 1,500 miles from its launch platform, according to information released by Boeing.

After Sputnik, Hawes said, the U. S. had to switch its emphasis from the Japanese to the Russians, causing technical people to pay attention to the USSR and "what we needed to build to defend ourselves."

Five years before Sputnik, the Pomona plant, known then as Convair, opened to produce small surface-to-air missiles and a weapons system for ground soldiers.

The Korean Conflict clearly demonstrated in the early 1950s that "superior power on a land mass, as opposed to the sea, had to be developed," Hawes explained.

"When the plant opened here in 1952 we had to start considering where might we have to fight? It would not be in the Pacific. It would be on land."

After that determination had been made, the shoulder-fired, Redeye System was developed and produced in Pomona. It gave the ground soldier protection from aircraft.

At about 1960-61, the plant became General Dynamics Pomona Division.

"Until just recently," said Hawes, "Pomona's main thrust was in air defense. Then it expanded to sea and land defense.

"We've widened our technical ac-

Who will be on next bus to the moon

Many scientists see colonization of space

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

A group of scientists, technicians, workers and a few bewildered journalists gather in a spacious hallway of barren walls and polished steel.

At 2 p.m., a space bus will take them from an airfield in Southern California to the nearest space station in L-5 — a location that forms a triangle with the moon and earth.

The trip to L-5 will take three days. Rocket engines roar deafeningly as the shop leaps into the heavens.

Outside, where the panels are being erected, there is no gravity. Inside the mile-diameter wheel-shaped station, it is much like earth. More than 10,000 people work and live here.

Fantasy? Science-fiction?

According to many scientists and space experts, the day of colonizing space is not far away.

Man presently has the capability to build huge space stations that could house from 10,000 to 1 million persons, claimed a Princeton physics professor.

Others believe such grandiose schemes are possible, but indicate

CONQUERING THE HEAVENS

In March of 1979, a new era of the space age will begin with the secheduled launching of the first of many manned orbital space shuttle flights. By the late 1980s, many scientists technicians and workers may be living in orbiting space stations hundreds of miles from earth. Some believe that within 40 years space colonies with populations of from 10,000 to 1 million persons may be operating almost autonomously in space. These pictures, provided by Rockwell International, show an artist's conception of the space shuttle modules and demonstrate what future space stations might look like.

Space Age

'Sputnik' spurred changes

Advanced countries of the world are 20 years into the Space Age. On Tuesday, the 20th anniversary of the Russian launching of Sputnik will be observed.

The technology which allowed the Russians to place their 22-inch ball into orbit around the earth brought many changes.

The "egghead" was born. Colleges changed their ideas of what the youths of today needed to meet the challenges of exploring space in the 21st Century.

Military defense changed. Rockets and missiles were refined and tipped with nuclear warheads.

Even the weatherman gained an ally — a satellite which sends back pictures of cloud formations and storms over earth.

The possibilities of finding life forms in space, of establishing space stations and colonies — perhaps more than any other wonder of the Space Age — catches the imagination and makes it easy to drift off into the "Buck Rogers" world.

Weather service finds an ally in space; forecasting revolutionized

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

When Tropical Storm Doreen came up recently, Jack Murphy grabbed some pictures from a contraption that looks like a washing machine and made a weather prediction.

The glossy prints that Murphy took from his satellite receiver at the Los Angeles office of the National Weather Service wouldn't have been available 20 years ago.

Murphy, a forecaster for the weather service, is well aware that Sputnik, the Russian satellite, changed the scope of weather forecasting for years to come. The 22-inch ball soared into space on Oct. 4, 1957 — 20 years ago this Tuesday.

In the years since Sputnik, about 1,900 satellites have been sent into earth orbit on behalf of dozens of countries. Some are just weather satellites that can spot and track hurricanes, typhoons and tropical storms like Doreen which raked the Southern California coast recently.

"When Doreen came," said Murphy, "you could see a spiral of clouds on our pictures that was moving toward the center of a storm. By looking at the pictures, we can tell where the rain is the heaviest."

The weather service can receive satellite pictures every 30 minutes, and from looking at a series of prints, forecasters can determine the movement of clouds, Murphy indicated.

In that way, hopefully, weathermen can pinpoint where a storm will hit next, said Murphy.

Weather satellites have "sensors" attached that take pictures of clouds and other formations.

Those pictures — especially a series of prints — can give forecasters accurate information on all kinds of storms, including dust storms, Murphy related.

Dust storms show up as 'dirty clouds' on the pictures, he added. "We know what it's like when it's clear — so when we see a dim cloud, we can predict a dust storm."

During normal weather conditions, satellite pictures are used primarily as backup to other information coming from teletype machines and amateur forecasters in the "areas," said Murphy.

Murphy emphasized that satellite photos are a tool and "are not in themselves a forecast." Teletype reports from all over the country, charts drawn by computers, and other information are used in making forecasts.

But Murphy noted the satellite prints are "such a useful tool that we'd be lost without them. When the machine breaks down, you don't know what to do."

The photos can even determine if there is snow in the mountains around Southern California. "We can't tell how thick it is, however," Murphy noted. "I couldn't tell you if there was enough for skiing."

The prints basically show white and dark areas — the whites are clouds, the darks are clear areas.

In the future, Murphy said, the Los Angeles weather station will have moving satellite pictures. In fact, Washington, D.C. and San Francisco already have them and Los Angeles should get them by September, 1978.

The photos will come over every 15 minutes, and forecasters will be able to determine in what directions clouds are moving, he stated.

The Los Angeles station also will be totally computerized, with a computer replacing teletype machines.

Murphy predicted that within the next 20 years, there will be a "mating of information received by satellites and computers. Computers will take information directly from the satellites and use it. We will only monitor the operation."

Murphy claimed there is absolutely no question if the satellite pictures are helpful or not.

"They are one of the big innovations of the 1960s — and they have been refined in the 1970s."

Is man alone? NASA would like the answer

By BOB SWETNAM

Is man alone?

For thousands of years this question has remained unanswered.

Reports of creatures from space, incredible flying machines and manipulation of events on earth from beings in the heavens have been described since the dawn of civilization.

There are billions upon billions of stars, galaxies and solar systems in our midst.

Is it unreasonable to think that none have life?

Does extra-terrestrial intelligence exist somewhere in space?

Are there other advanced civilizations much like our own? Are some superior?

For centuries, the only answers have been pure speculation.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena (JPL), however, hope to study such questions in an academic and scientific manner.

They are presently seeking funds from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to continue a project that would scan the skies for evidence of extra-terrestrial life.

Using huge radio telescopes, located throughout the U.S., scientists hope to monitor the sky for unusual radio transmissions in space.

Although the experiment may seem like one based on fantasy and science fiction, researchers are taking it very seriously. Very careful planning has gone into the project.

"We want to be able to say that there either is or is not something out there," said Dr. Samuel Gulkis, a senior scientist and radio astronomer at JPL. "I would say there is only a minute possibility we will discover something, but the rewards if we do would be tremendous."

Radio telescopes — which can detect radio transmissions millions and billions of miles from earth — are the basis of the experiment.

Gulkis said JPL is presently developing sophisticated sound equipment to help measure and analyze radio telescope data.

"This experiment will differ from some of the searches done in the past because we will be scanning the entire sky," he said. "Previous searches have worked towards identifying particular objects for study such as single sun-like stars."

The senior scientist said 12 prior searches failed to turn up any evidence either proving or disproving the existence of higher intelligence in space.

"We will be looking for radio signals of a much more narrow band than those commonly found in nature," he explained.

If NASA goes ahead with the project, radio astronomers and researchers will be hard at work for

New frontier issue: technology vs. ethics

What could possibly kindle the imagination of the public as much as Sputnik did?

What will be the next development — not necessarily in space — to capture the interest and influence our educational system like the orbiting of the 22-inch ball into outer space by the Russians on Oct. 4, 1957?

Six professors at Harvey Mudd College in Claremont say there's nothing planned in the foreseeable future which would attract as much attention from the public and the government as the news of Sputnik's firing.

The professor met recently to review the effect of the space age on education and to discuss present developments in the fields of science and engineers.

Three of the professors were members of the original faculty when the college of science and engineering opened its doors just a few days before Sputnik was fired. They are Dr. Graydon D. Bell, chairman of the physics department; Dr. J. Arthur Campbell, professor of chemistry; and Dr. William H. Davenport, emeritus professor of English literature and Fellow in the humanities.

Two others, Dr. John B. Rae, emeritus professor of the history of technology and humanities; and Dr. Courtney S. Coleman, professor of mathematics, arrived at the college just two years later, in 1959.

Why pay even more?

A new study by a North Carolina economist confirms what many energy experts have been saying all along — that Congress will be making a serious mistake this fall if it fails to deregulate the price of natural gas.

Dr. Edward W. Erickson of North Carolina State University argues (in a report prepared for the gas industry) that Americans could save at least $100 billion in fuel costs over the next 12 years if gas producers were given a financial incentive to drill new wells.

Without the new gas, Erickson points out, the country will have to import expensive oil from the Middle East, convert power plants from gas to coal and rely more heavily on synthetic and liquefied natural gas at premium prices.

Erickson's analysis is timely because the Carter administration wants to clamp a lid of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet on the price of natural gas. The House already has approved this dubious proposal. And the vote in the Senate is likely to be close.

The administration, it seems to us, is being penny wise and pound foolish on the deregulation issue. What's the sense in keeping natural gas prices artificially low (rolling them back from $2 or $2.25 in some states) if production falls off and the country is forced into using more expensive forms of fuel?

Call for help first

For an example of why good Samaritanism can be expensive, consider the financial problems being encountered by a small-but-generous hospital in South Williamson, Ky.

The 143-bed hospital, operated on a shoestring by the Presbyterian Church, offered refuge, meals and medical care to hundreds of coal miners and their families who were driven from their homes in Williamson, W. Va., last spring by flooding along the Tug River, which divides the two towns.

Hospital staff members served 1,500 meals a day, provided insulin to diabetics and took part in a massive immunization program to prevent typhoid, typhus and diptheria epidemics in the valley.

Yet when the hospital, which has been losing money for years, asked the government for $125,000 in reimbursement, the request was turned down by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration because the aid hadn't been officially authorized.

It is, of course, always gratifying to learn that federal agencies are doing their best to protect the taxpayer's dollar. But it seems to us that when dozens are killed and hundreds made homeless by flash flooding, a hospital can be excused from neglecting the normal chain of command.

"If you provide services," insisted an AA official in Atlanta, "your obligations should be understood before you provide them." That may be reasonable in some situations. But it doesn't make much sense when people are hurt, hungry and paddling around in rowboats looking for help.

There's a chance the hospital will be able to recover its money by appealing to Maj. Gen. Richard L. Frymire Jr., the director of disaster services in Kentucky.

The lesson so far, though, is that if you're going to provide emergency relief to disaster victims, you'd better be sure the government knows about it in advance.

Thoughts

And when the Lord smelled the pleasing odor, the Lord said in his heart, "I will never again curse the ground because of man, for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth: neither will I ever again destroy every living creature as I have done." — Genesis 8:21.

The real problem is in the hearts and minds of men. It is not a problem of physics but of ethics. It is easier to denature plutonium than to denature the evil spirit of man. — Albert Einstein.

"Behold, I am coming soon, bringing my recompense, to repay every one for what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end." — Revelation 22:12, 13.

No man who continues to add something to the material, intellectual and moral well-being of the place in which he lives, is left long without proper reward. — Booker T. Washington, American educator.

"Truly, I say to you, this generation will not pass away before all these things take place. Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away." — Mark 13: 30, 31.

The sages and heroes of history are receding from us, and history contracts the record of their deeds into a narrower and narrower page. But time has no power over the name and deeds and words of Jesus Christ. — William E. Channing, American clergyman.

Schools not all at fault

Dear Editor:

As an elementary school teacher, I realize the need for parents to understand and be aware of the type of education their children are receiving. I believe the goal for most parents and teachers is for the children to be educated and prepared to become the citizens of tomorrow.

The statistics of the competency level of our high school graduates, as quoted by John Douglas in his first article of the series "Parent Power," are devastating. Although the schools are producing many high school graduates that have tested "below" the average 12th grade level, the educational system cannot entirely be blamed.

Many of our entering kindergarten students suffer from handicaps that children of yesteryear did not have. With the increase of divorce and the changes of the "family structure," many children lose the security and identification that is necessary for a positive self-image. Because of society's ever-changing lifestyles, the diets of our children are not nutritionally balanced (as needed for a healthy body) which has caused many behavioral and emotional disturbances in some children.

I am not saying that the schools are without blame, but I am saying that the educational institutions are not exclusively at fault. When the youth of our country witness corruption within our government, the breakdown of the family structure, exploitation of the media and the fallacies in our laws, they are without the necessary guidelines needed to become productive citizens within our democracy.

I feel a great need for parents and educators to communicate and work together to educate our children, for they are our only hope for the future. If some parents would accept the responsibility of teaching their children manners, values and respect, many teachers would be able to fulfill their responsibility in teaching the "basics." I have wasted many valuable hours of "teaching time," because of discipline problems.

I am looking forward to reading more of John Douglas' articles on "Parent Power" and anticipate finding some answers to the problems that teachers and parents face in order to help our children.

More on a tin-medal tyrant

WASHINGTON — This is another report on the private world of Anastasio Somoza, the vainglorious dictator who runs Nicaragua like a private estate. We have dubbed him the Idi Amin of Latin America.

Somoza is caught up in the vision of his own grandeur. He is a tin-medal tyrant of unmilitary bearing, who loves to dress like a military peacock and adorn himself with sashes and medals.

He is not as heroic, however, as the medals would attest. He prefers to speak to his subjects, for example, from the safety of a bulletproof booth inside a three-sided, steel-plated shed, surrounded by a fence. The bulletproof glass grossly distorts his owlish, ogling face.

In the tradition of his dictator father, Somoza uses his power to bleed his people. This massive transfusion has enriched his own bloodstream; he has amassed a personal fortune that runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

He uses the political machinery to keep his people in line. No one, for example, is permitted to hold a government job unless he is a member of Somoza's political party, the Nationalist Liberal Party.

As evidence of their political allegiance, party members carry a membership card widely known as "La Rosadita," or the little pink card. The more irreverent call it "La Magnifica," after the prayer card which Catholics carry as protection from unknown dangers.

La Rosadita is the key to government employment. Ministers and managers, truck drivers and garbage collectors alike must produce their little pink card before they are put on the government payroll.

Under the Somoza system, the obligations of a public servant are unique. They are expected in addition to their governmental duties to attend Somoza's parades and speeches and to hail their chief with compulsory cheers. In the past, they were actually required to report to their places of employment and punch time clocks before a parade. Then they were bused or trucked like cattle to the appointed location.

Government employees must also kick back part of their pay to finance the party. Each payday, five percent of their gross salary is automatically deducted from their paychecks for party dues. The money is used to pay for rallies, parties and anything else Somoza chooses to charge to the party.

A decade ago, while Somoza's brother Luis was president, the government was reorganized into a system strikingly similar to the communist system the Somozas denounce. Hundreds of "cantons" were created at the local level, giving the Somozas a tighter grip on the populace down to the grassroots.

The canton leaders are expected to know everyone in their jurisdictions. Almost all government services — roads, schools, permits, licenses — are administered through the cantons. Thus it is impressed upon the peasants that if they expected to live a trouble-free life, they must jump when the government so orders.

So today, when Somoza needs a large crowd to cheer him, he merely passes the word and the local leader rounds up the required number of bodies. As an inducement, Somoza turns on the party money valve and a flow of cash trickles down to the cantons.

The canton leaders, of course, help themselves to the biggest share. But all the way down the line, the other organizers take their cuts. There is little left for the peasants who pour out of the buses. Usually, each peasant is presented with a little banner to wave and a glass of "guaro" — rotgut liquor produced by the government — to wash away his doubts and ease his burdens.

Some readers may ask why we would spend five months investigating an obscure dictator of no consequence beyond his own borders. In recent years, the American people have found themselves uncomfortably allied with a host of two-bit tyrants. They have been recruited into the U.S. bloc by the power brokers in Washington.

Anastasio Somoza is the epitome of these petty tyrants — a bemedaled, beer-bellied potentate who has developed an epoxylike bond with Washington. He toes the U.S. line at the United Nations. He allowed the CIA to use his country as the staging base for the Bay of Pigs invasion. He is the darling of the Pentagon.

As the price of Somoza's friendship, the United States has provided the economic and military support that has kept his family in power. This has brought about the Americanization of Anastasio Somoza. He even spurns the Spanish language, preferring instead the American slang he learned as a student at West Point. He has become a foreigner in his own land.

Somoza rules a country bedeviled by oppressive heat and humidity. The human birth rate is as high as the productivity is low. Most Nicaraguans are born into poverty; they toil for some of the lowest wages in the Western hemisphere. The average hourly pay is barely 30 cents.

Yet their ruler is estranged from them; more accurately, he has insulated himself from their problems. He has a low opinion of his people and, according to one source, "doesn't believe the country can be developed through the Nicaraguan people." It is a disdain, Nicaraguans tell us, that the people reciprocate.

WASHINGTON — Some see it as another concession to anti-American pressure. Others see it as a contribution to the return of American isolationism.

And still others see it as a bold and benevolent correction of a wrong done some 75 years ago. However you see the new Panama Canal treaty, there is surely some doubt in your mind — at least just a little.

For example, if you oppose the treaty, isn't it a little difficult to justify occupying a 50-mile strip of another country's land? Especially when your country is the world's foremost prophet of democracy.

If you support the treaty, won't you concede there is a great deal of doubt about the continued security of the canal?

It is also a little difficult to explain why we could claim a right to continue holding Guantanamo Bay in Cuba when the canal is an almost identical situation.

On the other hand, treaty opponents, you surely can't question the public relations value in Latin America.

Oh, you can? You think we would be showing a weakness by ratifying this treaty. You think that we have to draw the line somewhere and that the Panama Canal is an important place within our sphere of influence.

That raises an interesting question: Just how important is the canal? Those who oppose the treaty always point out its economic and military importance, but is it really that important?

After all, only about 5 percent of our intercoastal cargo is transported through the canal. Is that enough to warrant all this concern?

We can't get our aircraft carriers through the canal, treaty proponents point out. Well, that doesn't mean it is militarily insignificant, but the military importance is not what it once was.

We now have a two-ocean navy and the need to transfer ships is not what it was before World War II.

I can see both sides of this argument. Proponents have a good point when they talk about ending colonialism, but isn't Guantanamo Bay important to our national defense and couldn't it be described as a colony? You can bet Castro thinks so.

Supporting or opposing the treaty boils down to several factors, but perhaps most importantly, (I realize you won't all agree) what is the world opinion?

If it is perceived as a sincere and generous gesture, ratification is probably worth the grief it could cause.

If it is perceived as a further sign of American weakness, perhaps disapproval would be worth all the grief it surely will bring.

Just in jest

Automotive vehicles in the United States traveled a total of 1,390 billion miles last year. If they averaged 13 miles to the gallon of gasoline, that means 107 billion gallons of gas were consumed to go the distance. Therefore, a conservative estimate would be that motorists paid approximately $64 billion for the gasoline they burned up during the year. But what is perhaps even more interesting is that every time the price of gasoline is upped one cent a gallon, there goes another billion dollars down the exhaust pipes over a 12 month period. Which just goes to prove the truth of that old saying: If the oil companies take care of the cents, the dollars will take care of themselves, or to put it another way, a penny added on is a billion dollars earned.

Hawaii

The Hawaiian Islands were settled by Polynesian seafarers from islands 2,000 miles to the south about 700 A.D. The first Europeans arrived at the end of the 18th century, followed in the next century by a heavy influx of Asian settlers. The present population by national descent, according to the 1970 census, is 39.2 per cent Japanese and the remainder Hawaiian, Chinese, Filipino, Korean and mixed ancestry.

Dr. Miller

Brandy shot too spirited for bird

DEAR DR. MILLER: You seem so set against spirits for birds, I just think you ought to know I've saved my parakeet several times with a quick shot of brandy. He has a tendency to fainting spells and he would have died long ago if I hadn't been right there with a brandy bottle to revive him. — E.O.

DEAR E.O.: Whether your bird's brandy bottle bouts are beneficial would best be determined (and should be) by a local veterinarian. Crediting the brandy for helping him survive these "attacks" is questionable — it might even be to blame for his having had them.

MEMO TO M.N.: Epilepsy can only be diagnosed after a complete examination by a veterinarian. Other conditions may cause seizures. The sooner your Yorkie is examined, the better.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've always been leery of poisons, but when my new kitten came up with a crop of fleas I looked around for the safest flea powder I could find. It contained rotenone and derris root which is not supposed to hurt anything but the fleas, but I didn't even use this inside. I took the kitten outside and dusted her with powder there. I wouldn't even have any of the stuff in the house. Then I kept her out for a few hours and brushed out the powder. It seemed to do the trick. She didn't have any more fleas. But, oh tragedy! My goldfish are all belly up in their little fish pond. They're all very dead and I'm afraid maybe I killed them with the flea powder? I thought it was so safe, but I don't know of anything else that could have happened to them so suddenly?? — D.R.

DEAR D.R.: Rotenone is probably the safest insecticide. It has a very low toxicity — for warm-blooded animals. Unfortunately, many flea families have become highly resistant to the poison, and they can literally shake it off without lethal effects. Not so for fish, or other cold-blooded species however. You're probably quite right in assuming your fish fatalities were due to rotenone poisoning. (It's actually used to kill off unwanted fish in streams and lakes.)

What people say

"We don't claim that any album cover or any other form of media causes any particular act of violence to women. What we do claim is that when millions of people see women portrayed as victims day in and day out, the impression is created that it's safe, and even normal, to pick on women, that it's not surprising (and finally not even upsetting) that women are assaulted."

—Julia London, member of 'Women Against Violence Against Women," pressing for record industry-wide policy against the use of violence against women for promotional purposes, and urging record buyers to boycott albums with covers depicting such violence.

Astrographs

For Monday, Oct. 3, 1977
Your Birthday, Oct. 3, 1977

You will make a friend this coming year, one who will be very valuable to you. This person will be older and very well respected in his field and the community at large.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Let what you've learned from past experience serve as your guide today. New methods can be better, but it ain't necessarily so. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're doing business today and things degenerate into too much small talk, find a way to bring them back into perspective.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is something important pending that you've been reluctant to make a final decision on. Procrastinate no longer. Act on it today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things won't quite come together for you today. You're giving your best efforts, but your short attention span could hold you back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Although you could be attracted to someone of the opposite sex today, it's a passing fancy. Don't jeopardize a good relationship through a momentary lapse.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Anything you do to beautify your home today should be along lines that you can live with indefinitely. Faddish improvements are boring.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a bit of a dreamer today until it comes down to push and shove. Your good, old-fashioned horse sense will come to the fore.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't spoil young ones today by lavishing material things upon them. They may be upset if you deny them, but the lesson will be invaluable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If your mate takes a view of a family situation that is a little too Pollyannaish today, inject your realistic approach and straighten it out quickly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A person indebted to you may try to give you a song and dance routine to avoid paying. If you press, you can recover at least a portion today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A friend who is in a financial muddle may want some cash today. You'd be better off showing him how to undo his own mess.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Shallow praise won't cut it with the boss today. Good, solid performance will.

Ann Landers

ADC mothers human beings

Dear Ann Landers: Can you stand one more letter on ADC mothers? After working in the Michigan welfare system for nine years I've learned people cannot be placed into neat little categories. Individuals who receive assistance (I hate the label "ADC") are as different from one another as "people who have never asked for anything" — another phrase I hate and hear a lot.

Nearly half of my caseload clients worked at the best jobs they could get — in restaurants, hotels, county hospitals, small businesses and other jobs that don't pay too well. Many tried to go to school nights when they were working days. I learned plenty from some of those fine women. Now that I am a working mother myself I understand a little better what they go through.

Of course there are some slobs and freeloaders who never cooked or cleaned the house, who drank and kept men, rarely spoke to their children except to send them for another six-pack of beer, but ADC mothers are not all alike. They are human beings — just like the rest of us. — C.C., Saginaw, Mich.

Dear C.C.: Amen. I couldn't have said it better myself. In fact, I couldn't have said it at all. But you can and did because you have been there.

Dear Ann Landers: On the advice of — and I must be honest and say with strong encouragement from — a close male friend (I'm a woman), I made an investment which resulted in the loss of a rather substantial sum of money. My friend feels just awful about it and wants to reimburse me for 50 percent of the loss.

I am finding it very hard to agree to let him do it. On the other hand, he has a finely honed sense of responsibility, along with a desperate need to save face.

Do you have any suggestions that will make us both feel comfortable? — A.M. In The Big Apple

Dear A.M.: I have been sitting at my typewriter for 15 minutes trying to come up with an answer — and let me tell you, it's not easy.

Finally I asked myself, "What would I do if I were in YOUR place?" The answer is this: I would take my lumps — all of them — and not let a friend bail me out even though he encouraged the investment and feels rotten about giving me a bum steer.

The only way he will feel better is by resolving never again to give financial advice to a friend. If you want a double rationale, address yourself to this question: Had you made an enormous profit, would you have given him half? I doubt it.

Dear Ann Landers: I read somewhere that a very smart guy who worked with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus figured out a clever way to leave every town as clean as they found it. He sent the word out to home gardeners that exotic manure of camels, elephants, llamas and jungle cats was available at no cost — just come and get it. Within a few hours the grounds were spotless! Do you believe it? — A Skeptic

Dear Skep: Yes, I do. The three most irresistible words in the English language are "something for nothing." (P.S. People will never learn that nothing in life is free. Everything costs something.)

There's a name for jogging

This jogging business has really gotten out of hand. My street used to wake up lazily to chirping birds, an occasional clatter of milk bottles, and the gentle thud of a newspaper as it lodged in the spouting.

Not any more. Joggers in an assortment of shapes and stages of deterioration parade in front of our house 16 abreast like a Russian revolution. Cars zoom in and out, honking and screeching. Dogs bark and occasionally snap a thigh in their teeth. The sweat alone is enough to raise the humidity significantly.

My husband is one of them.

He panted into the kitchen yesterday where he grabbed either side of the sink, bowed his head and gasped for breath.

"I don't want to alarm you," I said, "but there's a tire mark on your throat."

"It's not a tire mark," he said irritably, "It's gym shoe treads. One guy was running the wrong way."

"Couldn't he have stopped?"

"And lose his rhythm?"

I pulled the draperies. "Look at 'em. I haven't seen crowds like that since Bloomingdale's half-price sale on Christmas ornaments. It's not good for you."

"Who said?"

"Dr. Peter J. Steincrohn said. He contends jogging is for horses. Listen to this," I said, grabbing the paper. 'Have you ever taken a good look at the jogger as he labors by? Look at his face. Have you ever seen a happy one? It's usually serious and contorted. If he's a masochist, he's having a great time. If he's like you or me, he's having a heck of a bad time.' He's right, you know. Look at that guy . . . there's nothing in his face but pain."

"That's because the turkey is running against the traffic. You should never make eye contact with the driver of a car. Besides, you're just jealous because you don't have the discipline to get out there every morning and keep fit."

"You mean like the guy jogging along beside you this morning with a cigarette dangling from his mouth?"

"He's awfully good with dogs, though. What you don't understand is that we joggers share something special out there . . . an esprit de corps, so to speak. We're special and we know it. We're doing something for our bodies and our country and it's worth everything we have to sacrifice. There's a name for it."

"I know. We used to call it World War II."

Articles on health confusing

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have no medical background. My concern is to keep my family healthy and happy, but when I read articles pertaining to health care, I am sometimes confused. Please help!

Is it true that taking zinc as a supplement tends to decrease the symptoms of arthritis? If arthritis is neglected will it lead to bone cancer?

With all the controversy over estrogen and uterine cancer, can vitamin E be taken, not as a substitute, but at least to alleviate menopausal symptoms?

Does a high protein diet add cholesterol to the body? I take gelatin capsules to solve the nail splitting but do not want to risk another problem.

DEAR READER — There is a lot of misinformation in print, particularly by those hawking vitamins, minerals and food supplements for pay and quasi health magazines that depend upon revenues from advertisements from firms marketing such items. I am not surprised that you are confused.

Zinc in limited quantities is important to the body and a deficiency in zinc can be responsible for the loss of taste and smell. There are some inconclusive studies of its use in arthritis. The place to get proper guidance for the treatment of arthritis is from your doctor or a rheumatoid specialist. Wasting time and money on highly advertised so-called arthritis cures may delay or even decrease your opportunity for getting proper treatment.

Incidentally, we know that people feel better if they take almost anything and think it will help. This is true even with a serious disease. Hence, unscientific testimonials prove absolutely nothing.

Arthritis will not become bone cancer. The reason to treat arthritis is to eliminate pain and maintain function.

Vitamin E has no value at all in alleviating the symptoms of the menopause. Any so-called results are simply the faith healing response. If a person had faith in sugar pills they would do just as well.

A high protein diet alone will not increase your cholesterol unless that means taking in more calories than your body needs. The problem is that many so-called high protein foods also contain a lot of fat such as some cuts of meat, whole milk (about 50 per cent of its calories are fat and a high percentage is saturated fat).

Gelatin will not hurt you. You can get better protein out of lean beef with all the fat removed or from lean fish, such as flounder or sole or from the lean pieces of chicken, such as breast meat with the fat and skin removed. Some women find that nail polish or polish remover is a factor in causing nail problems.

The best thing you can do for your family is to give them a balanced diet. To help you I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Women in the childbearing years often need extra iron and a single all purpose vitamin tablet a day with iron will not hurt you.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Opening lead — K♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Pessimistic Pete thought: "Anyone else would think of a slam. I hope I can make game." So he opened the bidding with four hearts. Everyone passed.

West opened the king of clubs. Pete thought some more. "Everything is going to be wrong. Can I make game against the bludgeonings of fate?"

Then Pete discarded a spade!

West shifted to the nine of that suit. Dummy's jack was covered by East's queen and South's ace.

Pete led a trump to dummy, ruffed the six of clubs, led a spade to the king, ruffed dummy's last spade.

Then he entered dummy with a second trump, led the queen of clubs and discarded the three of clubs.

West was in and had no way to collect more than one further trick. A diamond lead would make Pete's king good. Any other lead would allow him to ruff in dummy and discard one diamond.

Pessimism had paid off. Any other line of play would have lost the hand.

Sweden likes twin beds

Nowhere in the world are twin beds more popular than in Sweden, it's said. And twin bedrooms there have turned into quite a status symbol. There aren't all that many of those, however. Not enough space. Still, the Scandinavian situation is odd. What our Love and War man today chooses to call premarital permissiveness is a fairly well accepted pattern among the Nordics. A. Not on purpose. They might drop leaves, branches or nuts from trees, just fooling around, but they don't aim when they toss.

A. Most youngsters overcome both at least by age 10.

Attitude keyed to adjustment

By R. CLIFF WATERS
Marriage and Family Counselor

I am often asked, "What is normal?" or "What is a well-adjusted person like?"

Some characteristics of the well-adjusted individual are that he accepts himself as a worthwhile person. No drum roll.

In contrast, the poorly adjusted person may view himself as inadequate and a failure. Him, you notice. It isn't just the "hang-dog" look and the tendency to self-pity, it is the attitude . . . like a dark cloud of doubt, pessimism and negativism that hangs over all he says, all he does.

The well-adjusted person is able to enjoy pleasurable activities. He doesn't opt out or make excuses to not get involved. He understands and is not threatened by experiencing and expressing emotion. He enjoys rewarding, close relations with people.

The maladjusted person is a chronic worrier always geared for an emergency situation. Around him, you sense tension. You may feel his anxiousness and desire to move away. He withdraws from social contacts and close interpersonal relations. He experiences strong feelings of depression.

Characteristically the well-adjusted person is willing to be a part of life and continue trying. He is honest with himself and others. He lives in the present, not in the past or future. He sets realistic goals for himself. He is versatile in types of responses and roles assumed with others. He does not expect others to be as he is and he is willing to accept some ideas from others which are counter to his previous notions.

The poorly adjusted individual will often resort to fantasy (daydreaming) for reward rather than real-life situations. He holds on for too long a period of time to grief or bitterness. He blames others for his own problems. He drifts through life, lacking purpose and goals.

The well-adjusted person has both humor and purposiveness in his life, not just one without the other. He is not driven by undue competition nor perfectionism. He loves others and is concerned for them.

"Also, we study what the USSR might do. They emphasize missile saturation, which could penetrate our systems. The Russians send 10 to 15 missiles per ship.

"So, we turned to the question of how do you improve ship gun systems? The Phalanx, a close-in weapon system for the Navy, resulted."

"As the Soviets were forcing the world into the Space Age and a strategic program of defense, our capabilities of projecting, technology-wise, were stimulated," said Hawes.

"We thought more of what we had to do to protect ourselves, in a tactical program. We knew the Soviets would also apply technology. In technology, they are not second rate. They are very, very competitive," Hawes said.

"The Russians develop systems in a shorter time than we do. They have an autocratic type government, compared to our open government.

"Now in procurement of our weapons systems, we're facing kind of another Sputnik. We're beginning to wake up. That's the challenge we're faced with today."

Since Sputnik, weapons produced at Pomona have included the Standard Missile 1, the surface-to-air Terrier and Tarter family; the Redeye; the Phalanx; Sparrow Aim-7F, an air-to-air missile; the five-inch Anti-Ship Missile; Standard Arm, an anti-radiation missile; Viper, the Army's shoulder-launch, tank defense weapon; and the Sparrow AIM-7F, an advanced air-to-air missile.

Doctor 'eyes' a degree in law

NEW YORK (AP) — Vivien Boniuk is going to have another sheepskin to tack up on her office wall among the certificates that identify her as an ophthalmologist, a pathologist, a surgeon and a professor.

After one more year at the other end of the classroom, of going to lectures at night, of cramming for exams and fighting to get into over-registered courses, she will be a lawyer — duly graduated from New York Law School and ready to stand before the Bar.

"It's like being given the key to a secret club," Ms. Boniuk said in an interview. "You learn the meanings of the words. You get to know the people. You don't feel intimidated by anything."

But, says the native Canadian, she has no intention of giving up her practice at Flower and Fifth Avenue Hospitals and New York Medical College. And she says she has no intention of quitting her job as associate professor of ophthalmology and pathology at the college, or her work with retarded children.

"I didn't begin with the idea of giving up medicine," she explained. "It simply was the largest gap in my knowledge. I began with the idea of expanding my own horizons and, so far, what I've learned has had that effect."

It was also the ubiquitous nature of law that attracted the 36-year-old optical surgeon.

"It's difficult to open any medical journal — or any magazine at all — without hearing about the interface of law and medicine," she said. "There are an incredible number of people studying law — and not just people fresh out of college either."

New York Bar Association figures show there are some 500 Americans holding both the Doctor of Medicine (M.D.) and Juris Doctor (J.D.) degrees.

Alhough she doesn't plan a full-time legal practice, or any real practice at all, Ms. Boniuk says her studies are not just an intellectual exercise. There is enough in the large number of malpractice suits and the volume of legislation on medicine, drugs and related issues to occupy a part-time lawyer concerned with physicians' needs, she said.

In any case, Ms. Boniuk does not see the law as a smooth road to riches.

"A lot of doctors have this notion that if they become lawyers then all of a sudden they will be highly paid — called to serve as expert witnesses and that kind of thing," said Ms. Boniuk, who has never been called as an expert and doesn't expect it.

"That's just ridiculous. You can wind up with a general knowledge of both, but you're not going to be an expert in either."

She said many medical witnesses had no legal background at all.

The same discipline and drive that got her an M.D. in 1963 from Dalhousie University Medical School in Nova Scotia helps her legal studies, she said.

"To tell you the truth, it's significantly less difficult to get by," she said. "You don't have scads of material to memorize like you do in medical school. It's more a logical, reasoning kind of approach."

Ms. Boniuk was a resident at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, an affiliate of Washington University Medical Center, at Baylor University Hospital and at Yale University Hospital. She is also a fellow of the Canadian Royal College of Surgeons.

Ms. Boniuk is no stranger to prejudice against women. In San Francisco, she said, she was rejected for a residency because of her sex.

"They told me they were afraid I'd work for a couple of years, then get married and quit," she recalled with a trace of old anger. "I don't know what they thought I went through medical school for."

She says her feminist politics are primarily on a personal level. "I speak up now," she explained. "I used to be silent and grit my teeth."

Gang violence at high school

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gang violence broke out at Roosevelt High School in East Los Angeles, leaving a 17-year-old youth seriously injured after several members of a rival gang beat him with a baseball bat and stabbed him, authorities said.

Police said Thursday's attack, the first such incident of the new school year, was committed by four nonstudents, apparently in retaliation for a previous slaying. The youth was in critical condition at County-USC Medical Center.

Fire striking public employes say delegates

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Delegates from 415 California cities have endorsed strongly a state ballot initiative which would require the firing of public employes who strike.

By a four to one vote Wednesday, the general assembly of the League of California Cities approved the anti-strike resolution at a convention here.

San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, a sponsor of the resolution, said the mandate by California mayors and councilmen "reflects a clear understanding that the public will not put up with public employee strikes."

Wilson said about 100,000 of 500,000 required signatures have been gathered.

and professor of engineering, joined the faculty in 1975. He moderated the discussion.

Dr. Bell recalls that in the late 1950s, brighter students in high schools were told "your future is in science."

In retrospect, Dr. Rae believes "the effect on education was disappointing."

"Sputnik was merely a 'moment' in the development of scientific technology . . . now it's a question of technology versus ethics," says Dr. Davenport.

Dr. Tanenbaum ponders whether there is a "new frontier" out in space, or will future breakthroughs be more earthbound?

According to Dr. Coleman, Harvey Mudd and other colleges across the country received funding for the space program "because a lot of people had money and were looking for something to support."

"Congress did all the right things, but for all the wrong reasons," says Dr. Campbell.

Dr. Campbell adds, "Sputnik had nothing to do with the first 48 adventuresome students who came here, but a lot to do with students who entered in the next 10 years."

There was a great resurgence in engineering, sciences and maths and the opening of the space age did much to publicize the existence of the small college recently established as a part of the Claremont Colleges.

"We hit the scene at the right time," said Dr. Bell. "National Science Foundation grants were given to colleges without too much concern for exactly what results might be expected. In the early days, we got nearly every grant requested.

"Now, grants are harder to come by. The government now wants a grant project to have an immediate application."

"Not only was the national news media focusing on us, but by 1965, half of the high school chemistry students in the nation were using a textbook written at HMC," adds Dr. Campbell, one of the authors.

"The $3 million government grant to write the book probably wouldn't have been forthcoming without the interest in space study."

The professors said that in the early space days, everyone was called a scientist, where actually many were physicists or engineers.

"If a project was successful, it was considered a 'scientific achievement' but if it failed, it was called a 'failure of engineering'," adds Dr. Davenport.

Dr. Rae states, "The effect on education in general was disappointing. There was a great deal of excitement — or panic — at first and some very useful things were done.

"Basically, I feel that when the panic wore off, a lot of business of refining education was lost."

Dr. Coleman disagrees. He believes the positive effects included a continued interest in the sciences.

Dr. Rae and Dr. Davenport agree that the effects of the space age on literature actually started with the bombing of Hiroshima.

Dr. Davenport pointed to the C.P. Snow lectures on "Two Cultures" and the famed Pauling-Teller debates.

The professors said that since the Industrial Revolution, writers and philosophers have been questioning the advantages and disadvantages of scientific changes upon mankind.

"The bombing of Hiroshima was the beginning of a revulsion by many," adds Dr. Davenport. "There started a horror in the minds of man and a feeling that science and the humanities were separate.

"But the moon shots put scientists in a better light. There was a tremendous positive reaction, both professionally and with the public, to landing on the moon."

Dr. Davenport continues, "There is now a major question about the relationship of science and ethics. We have to consider what happens when this technology changes life.

"Man must develop some sense of social responsibility."

All the professor agree that art and music have been more affected by other aspects of science than the space age.

They point out that while every rock group must have an electrical engineer, the lyrics still deal with green pastures and the days before Sputnik became a part of our vocabulary.

Dr. Rae said that there was a certain element of jealousy because the Russians had fired their space capsule first. This, he feels, probably started many students toward the sciences.

Dr. Bell confirms this, saying "High school teachers would tell the brighter students to study in science or engineering while, actually, many of these youths could have gone in many directions."

As the pendulum has swung from studies of a specific science to a generalized education which includes many fields including humanities, the professors fear that some students will not be adequately trained in one specialization.

At HMC, this pitfall is avoided through a program whereby all students become involved in a practical project which must be solved.

The professors agree that computers, while refined during the past 20 years, had to be fairly sophisticated before the flight into space was possible.

But, Dr. Tanenbaum pointed out, there have been many developments evolving out of the space age. These include radio astronomy, space medicine, more computer science and mapping.

Dr. Campbell adds, "With such a large fraction of the research budget assigned to the space program, if one is to take everything that came out of it, there were many developments.

"But that doesn't prove these developments wouldn't have happened anyway, without a space program."

"And you never know what was missed by too much emphasis on the space program. What hasn't been discovered which might have been?" asks Dr. Rae.

The group agreed that Americans react to crises, but also become blase and disinterested rapidly.

The six professors voiced pleasure in the fact there is a renewed interest in college education.

They agreed that there appears to be a higher percentage of extremely gifted students entering the college today.

What will be the next development to spark the imagination of Americans?

It probably will not be in space — since no gold or metals were found on the moon or Mars, only rocks, the professors believe.

And, they agree, it would really have to be a spectacular development to match that first 184-pound ball which pierced the outer space just 20 years ago.

Volunteers map; fight on crime

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A volunteer citizens' group has announced a citywide crime-prevention effort similar to the Neighborhood Watch program started by police several years ago.

The Citizen Support Forum made the announcement Monday in a press conference with the endorsement of Police Chief Edward M. Davis, Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp, Deputy Mayor Grace Davis and school Supt. William J. Johnston.

Dorothy Hall, forum president, said volunteers will distribute crime prevention pamphlets within the Los Angeles Police Department's 17 divisions.

The Neighborhood Watch Program was started by LAPD in an effort to involve citizens in crime prevention.

Vacation time out in Japan 'juku' in

TOKYO (AP) — Summer may be vacation time for youngsters in some places, but for many in Japan it is a time to cram for examinations for higher schools in future years.

In some cases it can mean 18 hours or more of study a day in special schools called juku.

Officials at the Ministry of Education said they had no exact figures on how many students attended juku sessions during the summer vacation period recently ended, but as part of the highly competitive Japanese education system the number is large. The head of one preparatory school in Tokyo said 20,000 students registered there alone for various cram sessions during the summer months.

One pupil, 13-year-old Yasuhiko Ohta, told The Associated Press in an interview: "I come here at 8 a.m. and study until 12:30 p.m. every day because I have an entrance exam for high school next spring. When I finish the day here, I go home and study until late at night."

Asked about missing vacation time, he replied: "I went to a swimming pool last Sunday, but that was the only time I took leave from my study. My mother told me if I do not study, I cannot get into a good high school."

Education in Japan is compulsory up to the ninth grade. After that pupils must take entrance examinations to enter high schools, public or private.

Many in Japan believe chances for success are better for students who start off in private schools. For them, what is known as "shiken jigoku" or examination hell, begins with the effort to get into a prestigious private kindergarten.

"The competition for getting into high school in Japan is very keen," said Ikuo Tatamiya, 60, president of the Yoyogi Seminar Preparatory School. "Sometimes one point difference on exams is the key to admission. So pupils must work harder, even in summer."

Shin Iriye, the 54-year-old headmaster, said about 400 youngsters from all over Japan took part in summer sessions at the school.

"These boys and girls get up at 6:30 a.m., study five hours in the morning, take a one-hour nap and then study four hours in the afternoon, eat supper and study eight hours at night — a total of 17 hours," he said. "I tell them to go to bed at 11:30 p.m., but they are eager to learn more, so I let them do their own work until 2 a.m."

Iriye said he did not consider such schedules too severe, adding that the pupils "simply want to work, so I let them."

"What's bad about Japanese education," he said, "is that teachers at formal schools do not care even if some of their pupils cannot understand what they teach.

"Worse than that are the entrance exams. Pupils have got to know, for example, more than 3,000 English words to pass entrance exams for high school. But, according to study guide lines mapped out by the education ministry, teachers are required to teach no more than 540 words. This is utter nonsense.

"So there is a natural need for this type of school to supplement their formal education and get them prepared for entrance examinations."

San Clemente Island use

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Navy says responsibility for its San Clemente Island research and development test center will be transferred Saturday to the North Island Naval Air Station.

San Clemente Island for the past 10 years has been under the domain of the Naval Undersea Center at Point Loma, and more recently the Naval Ocean Systems Center on the point.

"It's the dominant user theory," said Cmdr. Robert Nevin of the Ocean Systems Center about the island, which also is used as an aerial fleet and gunnery range.

"The fleet uses the island more than we do. The island will continue to have a dual purpose," Nevin said.

Navy officials said several long-range testing programs are being conducted in the island, including those for the San Diego-built Tomahawk cruise missile.

Camera angles: teaching photography

Audio-visual 'technique' offers learning reward

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

In a previous column, I described an innovative new method to teach certain facets of photography using modern audio-visual techniques. Peter Nicastro, of Garfield, N.J., founded Photography Learning Systems and introduced a series of lessons which combine a tape-recorded cassette of instructions illustrated by a sequence of slides and a printed studybook for reference. The learning experience can take place anywhere you can set up a screen and slide projector and listen to a tape recorder.

With school sessions under way throughout the country, I found it much more convenient to have one of Nicastro's teaching modules at home. I listened and looked at an "Audio-Visual Portfolio" by Eva Rubenstein. It was a rewarding encounter with a noted photographer whose work is in the collections of major museums here and abroad. It was like having a personal chat with someone whose discerning appraisal of her work and emotions can illuminate your own ideas and motives in picture-taking.

Eva Rubinstein is known for the personal style in her photographic encounters with people and environments. She was the subject of a monograph, one of a series on important photographers, published by Morgan & Morgan. It is remarkable because photography came into her life late, after careers as a dancer and an actress. In 1967, while working in the Long Wharf Theatre in New Haven, Sean Kernan came to photograph the productions. Eva started to assist him ... and was hooked.

Photography became an obsession. She applied herself with passion, working out of a basement darkroom she had set up. Then Eva moved to New York and photography dominated all her activities. She took a course in photography, enrolled in a Lisette Model workshop, devoured photo books and felt the influence of masters like Irving Penn, August Sander, Paul Strand, Cartier-Bresson, Yousuf Karsh, Eugene Smith and Evelyn Hofer.

Among other facets of the craft, Kernan showed Eva what good print quality was like and she worked to perfect her technique in that area. She learned that a print has personality which can be changed through contrast.

"Taking a picture can be instinctive," Eva says, "while printing is a slow, introspective time which I enjoy. I can work for hours until the print says, 'This is the way I look best. This feels right.'"

The format of the lesson itself is an interview by Will Faller, editor of "Photograph" magazine, with Eva Rubinstein. The 34-minute discussion is illustrated with 44 slides, each one advanced by an audible signal on the tape. The photos shown were made in war-torn Ireland, Spain, Romania, Italy and the United States. Faller probes for reasons why she chose each scene and how the creative process produced the images.

"Is your seeing a deliberate act or intuitive?" Faller asks.

"When I see the possibility of a picture," Eva replies, "I put the camera to my eye and the scene in the viewfinder 'happens' or it doesn't. I may shift the camera a bit, eliminating or adding something until it feels 'right.'

"I never studied art or composition seriously so I don't have theories to go by. But when I was younger, I saw a lot of paintings and reacted to them. Maybe I got a sense of design or graphics by osmosis. Most of my later shooting is instinctive."

Eva uses public transportation and walks around a lot with a camera handy for unexpected, interesting vignettes. On a train in Ireland she focused on four schoolboys deeply engrossed in smoking a last cigarette before getting home. In embattled Londonderry, she photographed a battle scene with the feeling that she was safe behind her camera although there were daily casualties.

She found a street corner that "turned her on," a sharp ascending curve that had possibilities. She waited there for more than an hour but her patience paid off. A schoolboy came along going up the steep street just as two elderly men passed him. She clicked. It had symbolism: Youth ascending while old age is on the downward path.

"I shoot a lot of images of hallways, empty rooms, waiting rooms and stairways," Eva says. "Stairs have a sense of mystery — you don't know where they're leading but they invite you up. When I shoot such images, I may not be conscious of their meaning to me, that usually comes later and sometimes through other peoples' eyes and their reactions."

Her pictures of people were greatly influenced by August Sander, the great German photographer, and Irving Penn.

"In portraits, I'm basically doing what I see and feel for myself," Eva says, "but I hope the subject approves the results. We must both find it valid or I won't use it. I like to work by window light or outdoors. I hate using strobe flash for portraits but sometimes there is no other choice if daylight isn't available. It's almost impossible to maintain the right atmosphere in a portrait session with a blinding flash going off periodically."

News quiz

Editor's Note: How much do you remember about the news of the week? If you score fewer than five correct answers, you had better read the paper a little more carefully. If you get eight or more right, you rate an "A."

1. Fuel economy ratings for 1978 cars were released by the Environmental Protection Agency. Winner of the "1978 Gas Mileage Derby" and leading in three of five categories were: (a) eight-cylinder limousines; (b) foreign compacts; (c) diesel-powered cars.

Broncos fall to UC Davis

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly football fans were treated to a display of fireworks when the Broncos scored Saturday night in their home opener.

The only trouble was the fireworks were shut off in the second half as Poly's offense couldn't do anything against a tough UC Davis defense as the visiting Aggies took a 27-14 decision at Kellogg Field.

Actually, the officials were the big yard gainers in this contest as the whistles blew all night to keep a large home opening night crowd looking for better things to do.

The refs called a 31 penalties in what turned into a sloppy contest with Davis being charged for 206 yards of infractions and Poly 154.

Poly accounted for a grand total of 89 offensive yards (33 on the ground in 43 plays and 56 through the air) while Davis managed 280 (55 on the ground and 225 passing) as it's obvious it's going to take some time to get any kind of consistency going.

The big reasons why Davis is 3-0 and Poly 0-3 after Saturday's performance can be attributed to Poly's problems on pass defense in the second quarter, the inability of Poly ever to get decent field position in the second half and an onsides kick gamble that backfired.

"I guess at this level of competition it's just going to take us longer to put it together than I ever thought," Poly coach Jim Jones said after the loss.

One of Jones' coaching decisions had to be questioned.

Poly had just tied the score at 14-14 with 57 seconds left in the first half when quarterback Sammy Ross ran for nine yards after sophomore Jim Middleton of Pomona returned an interception 66 yards.

UCD then cashed in on its golden opportunity with quarterback Mike Moroski completing his third touchdown pass of the quarter on an one-yard toss to Steve Griffin to give the Aggies a permanent lead (21-14) with 14 seconds left in the half.

Earlier in the quarter, Moroski completed TD tosses of 19 yards to Randy Wilson and 12 yards to Griffin. The scores came 1:07 of each other midway through the period with the second score coming after Mark Markel intercepted a Ross pass at the Bronco 13.

Davis wrapped up the victory with 10:37 left in the game on fullback Fred Wheeler's one-yard TD run to climax a 46-yard drive.

Poly got the home fans excited when the Broncs scored on its first offensive series of the night with Ross running 13 yards for a touchdown to finish a 46-yard march.

Turnover were also a big item in the game with Poly losing four fumbles and seeing three passes intercepted. But the Broncs also recovered four Aggie fumbles and stole four passes.

Owens paces Bruins, 34-16

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ready or not here we come," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue about the Pacific-8 Conference football race following the Bruins' 34-16 intersectional victory over Iowa Saturday night.

"We'll have to wait and see how we'll do," said Donahue, whose team begins Pac-8 play at Stanford next Saturday. "This evens us up on the nonconference season and was a very important win for us to gain our confidence."

Speedy James Ownes zipped 67 yards for a touchdown and Rick Bashore fired two scoring passes to help give the Bruins their second victory against two defeats.

"James' run gave us the momentum we needed," said Donahue. "It came on a trap play which is new in this offense this year. We were pleased to score that many points.

"I felt the defense did an outstanding job and it hasn't played poorly yet," added Donahue. "We needed points on the board to relieve the pressure on the defense and we got that in the first quarter."

"We lost the game in the first five minutes," said Iowa Noach Bob Commings. "UCLA's a heck of a team. Without a doubt, it is the best offensive team we've played."

Owens, who competed as a hurdler in the 1976 Olympics, blasted off right guard and raced to a touch down after just 2:10 of play and the Bruins led the rest of the way, although Iowa scored two fourth quarter touchdowns.

Owens, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound junior, finished the game with 134 yards on 16 carries.

Bashore, the Bruins' sophomore quarterback, hit Glenn Cannon with a six-yard scoring pass in the first quarter, and Don Pederson with a 16-yard TD strike in the third period as UCLA evened its season record at 2-2.

The Bruins, who had been struggling offensively this fall, scored on their first three possessions. Peter Boermeester kicked a 28-yard field goal, the first of his two three-pointers, to give UCLA a 10-0 lead after 7:35 of play, and Bashore's scoring strike to Cannon with 2:56 left in the first quarter made it 17-0.

Iowa's only score until the fourth period was a 42-yard field goal by Dave Holsclaw on the final play of the opening half. That came after a personal foul against UCLA on the kickoff return following Boermeester's second field goal and a 27-yard pass from Bob Commings Jr. to Brad Reid.

Iowa, also 2-2, scored its touchdowns on a six-yard run by Rod Morton and a 26-yard pass from Tom McLaughlin to Mike Brady.

UCLA completed the scoring with 2:10 to play on a 13-yard run by backup quarterback Steve Bukich following a fake punt by Iowa which failed.

Owens became the first UCLA player to rush for more than 100 yards in a game this season.

Bashore, who gave way to Bukich in the third quarter, finished with 10 completions in 16 attempts for 97 yards. He rushed for 73 yards on 17 carries.

Morton led the Hawkeye ground game with 60 yards on 14 attempts. Commings completed just three of nine passes with one interception for 44 yards before being relieved by McLaughlin in the third quarter.

McLaughin connected on 7 of 11 passes for 123 yards in bringing the Iowa offense to life. The Hawkeyes gained only 67 yards in the first half, including the long pass to Reid in the closing seconds.

McLaughlin engineered scoring marches of 84 yards in 11 plays, climaxed by Morton's touchdown with 13:20 left, and 80 yards in four plays ending with his pass to Brady with 7:31 to go.

UCLA's third quarter touchdown was set up by the first freshman Kenny Easley's two interceptions.

The Bruins had only one turnover compared to 13 in their first three games this season. However, UCLA was penalized for more than 100 yards, which possibly kept them from scoring more than they did.

Texas kicker sets FG mark

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas kicker Russell Erxleben set a major college football record Saturday when he connected on a 67-yard field goal in a 72-15 rout of Rice.

The third quarter kick broke the record set last year when Texas A&M's Tony Franklin blasted a 65-yarder.

Erxleben's kick, however, was two yards short of the small college mark. Abilene Christian's Ove Johansson booted a 69-yard field goal last season against East Texas State.

The Longhorns were leading 54-7 when Erxleben set the record. The Horns' kicker was the nation's leading punter last season.

Don Lugo and Webb tie

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Don Antonio Lugo High, in the first varsity home game in the school's history, earned a 20-20 tie with Webb School of Claremont Saturday night at Chino High.

The Conquistadores' performance is going to cost coach John Monger his hair.

"The kids played their hearts out tonight," Monger said after his squad, made up of only sophomores (except for freshman placekicker Luis Zendejas), preserved the tie when Willie Hadsock and Todd Meideros broke through to block Webb's extra point kick with 10 seconds left to play.

"I'm very pleased," Monger continued. "I told them if they won tonight I'd shave off my hair — they played so well I'm still going to do it."

The Conquistadores looked as though they might win the game when scatback Carlos Sanchez took a pitchout and sprinted 76 yards for a touchdown with 2:44 remaining in the game. That score gave the Chino school a 20-14 lead, but Zendejas missed the PAT kick for the first time in five tries this year.

But Webb quarterback Kerry Bensinger directed a nine-play, 69-yard scoring drive to tie the game with 10 seconds left. He completed four passes for 55 yards on that series and ran for the other 14 yards himself. The TD came on a nine-yard screen pass to Leon Harrison.

Bensinger finished the game with 131 yards passing and 50 yards rushing. He completed eight of 24 and was not intercepted.

Sanchez, by virtue of his 76-yard TD, rolled up 128 yards on 17 carries. Teammate Manuel Villalobos also carried 17 times, for a net of 72 yards.

Villalobos ran two yards for a touchdown in the the third quarter after Hadsock came up with his first big kick block of the night. Hadsock got in the way of a Webb punt and Don Lugo took over on the Gaul's nine-yard line.

The Conquistadores made a big goal-line stand midway through the fourth quarter. Webb had a first-and-goal on the DL six but three runs netted just two yards and Bensinger's fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Besides his offensive contributions, Bensinger intercepted a pass and returned it 72 yards for a TD just 10 seconds before the end of the first half. That score gave Webb a 14-7 halftime lead.

Webb totaled 277 yards and 13 first downs to Don Lugo's 226 yards and nine first downs.

Steve Moore, a Don Lugo linebacker who suffered a concussion last week, left the game on a stretcher after a head injury Saturday night.

Don Lugo (0-1-1) will host Lutheran La Verne at Chino High and Webb (0-1-1) will visit Brentwood Friday.

Webb	0	14	0	6—20
Don Lugo	0	7	7	6—20

Don Lugo — Malins 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Webb — Larsen 1 run (Richards pass from Bensinger)
Webb — Bensinger 71 pass interception (kick failed)
Don Lugo — Villalobos 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Don Lugo — Sanchez 76 run (kick failed)
Webb — Harrison 9 pass from Bensinger (kick failed)

OUCH!

AUSTIN, Texas — The season grew a bit longer for Rice's beleaguered Owls Saturday, as the University of Texas downed the Houston school 72-15.

Rice is now 0-3 on the year, having been beaten 48-3, 77-0 and 72-15.

Lone bright spot for the Owls Saturday was freshman quarterback Randy Hertel, who passed for the two Rice touchdowns and collected over 200 yards via the airlanes.

Lakers win exhibition

RENO, Nev. (AP) —Kermit Washington converted two three-point plays in a 30-second span in the fourth quarter Saturday night to break a tie and lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 100-93 National Basketball Association exhibition victory over the Golden State Warriors.

The six-point spree vaulted the Lakers from a 79-79 tie to an 85-79 lead the Warriors were unable to overcome in the final six minutes and 30 seconds.

Jamal Wilkes, in his first appearance against his old teammates, scored 16 points to lead the Lakers.

Baltimore helps Yanks clinch flag

The New York Yankees clinched the American League East pennant Saturday with help from the Baltimore Orioles.

While the Yankees' game in New York with the Detroit Tigers was being held up by rain, the Orioles defeated Boston 8-7, killing the Red Sox' last hope of catching the Yankees, the East leaders.

The Yankees had clinched a tie for the East title with a victory against Cleveland last Wednesday night, but had been unable to win a game since. Saturday, they eventually lost their third straight, 10-7 to the Tigers.

The Orioles outslugged the Red Sox with a barrage of six homers, including two by rookie Eddie Murray.

Dave Skaggs, Lee May, Rich Dauer and Doug DeCinces also homered for the Orioles, who were eliminated from the AL East race by the Red Sox Friday night.

Boston's Rick Wise, making his first start since Aug. 19, was bombed for four runs on three homers in three innings as the Orioles rallied from a 4-1 deficit. The victory went to Mike Flanagan, 15-10. Jim Willoughby, 6-2, took the loss.

Ben Oglivie drove in four runs and Jason Thompson had four hits, including a triple and a home run, pacing Detroit's victory. Aurelio Rodriguez added two clutch doubles for the Tigers.

Orioles extend Weaver's pact

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver, who led a young, untested Baltimore team to the verge of a division title, has signed a new contract to manage the Orioles through 1980, the American League club announced Saturday.

It was the first multi-year contract offered to an Oriole manager since Hank Bauer signed a two-year pact following the 1966 season, in which Baltimore won the World Series. Terms of Weaver's contract were not disclosed.

"We thought Earl should be justly rewarded for the outstanding season the Orioles have had," said General Manager Hank Peters in a prepared statement.

With three front-line players—outfielder Reggie Jackson, second baseman Bobby Grich and 20-game winner Wayne Garland—gone in the free agent draft and rookies and young veterans at several key positions, Weaver faced a monumental rebuilding task this season.

Smith's homers guide Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reggie Smith slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of three Dodger pitchers Saturday as Los Angeles defeated the Houston Astros 4-3.

Smith hit a two-run homer in the third inning, his 31st, off loser Joaquin Andujar, 11-8. He hit his 32nd to lead off the fifth inning.

Houston retaliated when Dennis Walling singled home Julio Gonzalez and Jose Cruz later scored on a wild pitch in the sixth.

Burt Hooten, 12-7, hurled the first seven innings for the victory.

Afterward, Smith said he was going through a letdown since the time the Dodgers clinched the pennant a week and a half ago.

"I took some time off, but I lost a lot of my edge," replied the Los Angeles rightfielder. "You're keyed up all season, then win it, and still have all those games left to play. I kind of lost my drive, and it hurt."

Smith said he took extra hitting and now is looking forward to the National League playoff series.

"I wish it would hurry up and start," he said. "I'm sure everything will be different once we get to that workout on Monday."

Leftfielder Dusty Baker doubled in four at-bats and still needs one home run to make the Dodgers the first team in baseball history with four players at 30 or more homers.

"I thought I got it in the fourth inning," said Baker. "I got one more shot at it, against James Rodney Richard and he is hardly the easiest guy to hit home runs against."

Richard, 17-12, will start for Houston in the final game of the regular season today. Roberto Castillo, 1-0, will go for Los Angeles in his first major league start.

Barlow hurls Halo victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike Barlow and Dave LaRoche combined for a three-hitter as the California Angels stopped the American League West champion Kansas City Royals 4-1 Saturday night.

Barlow, 4-2, a right-hander making his first start for California since being acquired from Houston in June 1976, was touched only for singles by George Brett in the fourth and Clint Hurdle in the seventh. LaRoche came on to blank the Royals through the final two innings, allowing only a ninth-inning single to Joe Zdeb.

Kansas City starter Andy Hassler, 9-6, took the loss, giving up all four California runs before giving way to Jim Colborn in the sixth.

Either Hassler or Larry Gura, both left-handers, is expected to pitch against the New York Yankees in the second game of the American League playoffs, which start Wednesday.

Rusty Torres and Ike Hampton led the nine-hit Angel attack with solo home runs as California pecked away for single runs in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings.

On a train in Ireland she focused on four schoolboys deeply engrossed in smoking a last cigarette before getting home. In embattled Londonderry, she photographed a battle scene with the feeling that she was safe behind her camera although there were daily casualties.

She found a street corner that "turned her on," a sharp ascending curve that had possibilities. She waited there for more than an hour but her patience paid off. A schoolboy came along going up the steep street just as two elderly men passed him. She clicked. It had symbolism: Youth ascending while old age is on the downward path.

"I shoot a lot of images of hallways, empty rooms, waiting rooms and stairways," Eva says. "Stairs have a sense of mystery — you don't know where they're leading but they invite you up. When I shoot such images, I may not be conscious of their meaning to me, that usually comes later and sometimes through other peoples' eyes and their reactions."

Her pictures of people were greatly influenced by August Sander, the great German photographer, and Irving Penn.

"In portraits, I'm basically doing what I see and feel for myself," Eva says, "but I hope the subject approves the results. We must both find it valid or I won't use it. I like to work by window light or outdoors. I hate using strobe flash for portraits but sometimes there is no other choice if daylight isn't available. It's almost impossible to maintain the right atmosphere in a portrait session with a blinding flash going off periodically."

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly football fans were treated to a display of fireworks when the Broncos scored Saturday night in their home opener.

The only trouble was the fireworks were shut off in the second half as Poly's offense couldn't do anything against a tough UC Davis defense as the visiting Aggies took a 27-14 decision at Kellogg Field.

Actually, the officials were the big yard gainers in this contest as the whistles blew all night to keep a large home opening night crowd looking for better things to do.

The refs called a 31 penalties in what turned into a sloppy contest with Davis being charged for 206 yards of infractions and Poly 154.

Poly accounted for a grand total of 89 offensive yards (33 on the ground in 43 plays and 56 through the air) while Davis managed 280 (55 on the ground and 225 passing) as it's obvious it's going to take some time to get any kind of consistency going.

The big reasons why Davis is 3-0 and Poly 0-3 after Saturday's performance can be attributed to Poly's problems on pass defense in the second quarter, the inability of Poly ever to get decent field position in the second half and an onsides kick gamble that backfired.

"I guess at this level of competition it's just going to take us longer to put it together than I ever thought," Poly coach Jim Jones said after the loss.

One of Jones' coaching decisions had to be questioned.

Poly had just tied the score at 14-14 with 57 seconds left in the first half when quarterback Sammy Ross ran for nine yards after sophomore Jim Middleton of Pomona returned an interception 66 yards.

UCD then cashed in on its golden opportunity with quarterback Mike Moroski completing his third touchdown pass of the quarter on an one-yard toss to Steve Griffin to give the Aggies a permanent lead (21-14) with 14 seconds left in the half.

Earlier in the quarter, Moroski completed TD tosses of 19 yards to Randy Wilson and 12 yards to Griffin. The scores came 1:07 of each other midway through the period with the second score coming after Mark Markel intercepted a Ross pass at the Bronco 13.

Davis wrapped up the victory with 10:37 left in the game on fullback Fred Wheeler's one-yard TD run to climax a 46-yard drive.

Poly got the home fans excited when the Broncs scored on its first offensive series of the night with Ross running 13 yards for a touchdown to finish a 46-yard march.

Turnover were also a big item in the game with Poly losing four fumbles and seeing three passes intercepted. But the Broncs also recovered four Aggie fumbles and stole four passes.

Lakers win exhibition

RENO, Nev. (AP) —Kermit Washington converted two three-point plays in a 30-second span in the fourth quarter Saturday night to break a tie and lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 100-93 National Basketball Association exhibition victory over the Golden State Warriors.

The six-point spree vaulted the Lakers from a 79-79 tie to an 85-79 lead the Warriors were unable to overcome in the final six minutes and 30 seconds.

Owens paces Bruins, 34-16

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ready or not here we come," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue about the Pacific-8 Conference football race following the Bruins' 34-16 intersectional victory over Iowa Saturday night.

"We'll have to wait and see how we'll do," said Donahue, whose team begins Pac-8 play at Stanford next Saturday. "This evens us up on the nonconference season and was a very important win for us to gain our confidence."

Speedy James Ownes zipped 67 yards for a touchdown and Rick Bashore fired two scoring passes to help give the Bruins their second victory against two defeats.

"James' run gave us the momentum we needed," said Donahue. "It came on a trap play which is new in this offense this year. We were pleased to score that many points.

"I felt the defense did an outstanding job and it hasn't played poorly yet," added Donahue. "We needed points on the board to relieve the pressure on the defense and we got that in the first quarter."

"We lost the game in the first five minutes," said Iowa Noach Bob Commings. "UCLA's a heck of a team. Without a doubt, it is the best offensive team we've played."

Owens, who competed as a hurdler in the 1976 Olympics, blasted off right guard and raced to a touch down after just 2:10 of play and the Bruins led the rest of the way, although Iowa scored two fourth quarter touchdowns.

Owens, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound junior, finished the game with 134 yards on 16 carries.

Bashore, the Bruins' sophomore quarterback, hit Glenn Cannon with a six-yard scoring pass in the first quarter, and Don Pederson with a 16-yard TD strike in the third period as UCLA evened its season record at 2-2.

The Bruins, who had been struggling offensively this fall, scored on their first three possessions. Peter Boermeester kicked a 28-yard field goal, the first of his two three-pointers, to give UCLA a 10-0 lead after 7:35 of play, and Bashore's scoring strike to Cannon with 2:56 left in the first quarter made it 17-0.

Iowa's only score until the fourth period was a 42-yard field goal by Dave Holsclaw on the final play of the opening half. That came after a personal foul against UCLA on the kickoff return following Boermeester's second field goal and a 27-yard pass from Bob Commings Jr. to Brad Reid.

Iowa, also 2-2, scored its touchdowns on a six-yard run by Rod Morton and a 26-yard pass from Tom McLaughlin to Mike Brady.

UCLA completed the scoring with 2:10 to play on a 13-yard run by backup quarterback Steve Bukich following a fake punt by Iowa which failed.

Owens became the first UCLA player to rush for more than 100 yards in a game this season.

Bashore, who gave way to Bukich in the third quarter, finished with 10 completions in 16 attempts for 97 yards. He rushed for 73 yards on 17 carries.

Morton led the Hawkeye ground game with 60 yards on 14 attempts. Commings completed just three of nine passes with one interception for 44 yards before being relieved by McLaughlin in the third quarter.

McLaughin connected on 7 of 11 passes for 123 yards in bringing the Iowa offense to life. The Hawkeyes gained only 67 yards in the first half, including the long pass to Reid in the closing seconds.

McLaughlin engineered scoring marches of 84 yards in 11 plays, climaxed by Morton's touchdown with 13:20 left, and 80 yards in four plays ending with his pass to Brady with 7:31 to go.

UCLA's third quarter touchdown was set up by the first freshman Kenny Easley's two interceptions.

The Bruins had only one turnover compared to 13 in their first three games this season. However, UCLA was penalized for more than 100 yards, which possibly kept them from scoring more than they did.

Texas kicker sets FG mark

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas kicker Russell Erxleben set a major college football record Saturday when he connected on a 67-yard field goal in a 72-15 rout of Rice.

The third quarter kick broke the record set last year when Texas A&M's Tony Franklin blasted a 65-yarder.

Erxleben's kick, however, was two yards short of the small college mark. Abilene Christian's Ove Johansson booted a 69-yard field goal last season against East Texas State.

The Longhorns were leading 54-7 when Erxleben set the record. The Horns' kicker was the nation's leading punter last season.

Don Lugo and Webb tie

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Don Antonio Lugo High, in the first varsity home game in the school's history, earned a 20-20 tie with Webb School of Claremont Saturday night at Chino High.

The Conquistadores' performance is going to cost coach John Monger his hair.

"The kids played their hearts out tonight," Monger said after his squad, made up of only sophomores (except for freshman placekicker Luis Zendejas), preserved the tie when Willie Hadsock and Todd Meideros broke through to block Webb's extra point kick with 10 seconds left to play.

"I'm very pleased," Monger continued. "I told them if they won tonight I'd shave off my hair — they played so well I'm still going to do it."

The Conquistadores looked as though they might win the game when scatback Carlos Sanchez took a pitchout and sprinted 76 yards for a touchdown with 2:44 remaining in the game. That score gave the Chino school a 20-14 lead, but Zendejas missed the PAT kick for the first time in five tries this year.

But Webb quarterback Kerry Bensinger directed a nine-play, 69-yard scoring drive to tie the game with 10 seconds left. He completed four passes for 55 yards on that series and ran for the other 14 yards himself. The TD came on a nine-yard screen pass to Leon Harrison.

Bensinger finished the game with 131 yards passing and 50 yards rushing. He completed eight of 24 and was not intercepted.

Sanchez, by virtue of his 76-yard TD, rolled up 128 yards on 17 carries. Teammate Manuel Villalobos also carried 17 times, for a net of 72 yards.

Villalobos ran two yards for a touchdown in the the third quarter after Hadsock came up with his first big kick block of the night. Hadsock got in the way of a Webb punt and Don Lugo took over on the Gaul's nine-yard line.

The Conquistadores made a big goal-line stand midway through the fourth quarter. Webb had a first-and-goal on the DL six but three runs netted just two yards and Bensinger's fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Besides his offensive contributions, Bensinger intercepted a pass and returned it 72 yards for a TD just 10 seconds before the end of the first half. That score gave Webb a 14-7 halftime lead.

Webb totaled 277 yards and 13 first downs to Don Lugo's 226 yards and nine first downs.

Steve Moore, a Don Lugo linebacker who suffered a concussion last week, left the game on a stretcher after a head injury Saturday night.

Don Lugo (0-1-1) will host Lutheran La Verne at Chino High and Webb (0-1-1) will visit Brentwood Friday.

Webb	0	14	0	6—20
Don Lugo	0	7	7	6—20

Don Lugo — Malins 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Webb — Larsen 1 run (Richards pass from Bensinger)
Webb — Bensinger 71 pass interception (kick failed)
Don Lugo — Villalobos 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Don Lugo — Sanchez 76 run (kick failed)
Webb — Harrison 9 pass from Bensinger (kick failed)

OUCH!

AUSTIN, Texas — The season grew a bit longer for Rice's beleaguered Owls Saturday, as the University of Texas downed the Houston school 72-15.

Rice is now 0-3 on the year, having been beaten 48-3, 77-0 and 72-15.

Lone bright spot for the Owls Saturday was freshman quarterback Randy Hertel, who passed for the two Rice touchdowns and collected over 200 yards via the airlanes.

Baltimore helps Yanks clinch flag

The New York Yankees clinched the American League East pennant Saturday with help from the Baltimore Orioles.

While the Yankees' game in New York with the Detroit Tigers was being held up by rain, the Orioles defeated Boston 8-7, killing the Red Sox' last hope of catching the Yankees, the East leaders.

The Yankees had clinched a tie for the East title with a victory against Cleveland last Wednesday night, but had been unable to win a game since. Saturday, they eventually lost their third straight, 10-7 to the Tigers.

The Orioles outslugged the Red Sox with a barrage of six homers, including two by rookie Eddie Murray.

Dave Skaggs, Lee May, Rich Dauer and Doug DeCinces also homered for the Orioles, who were eliminated from the AL East race by the Red Sox Friday night.

Boston's Rick Wise, making his first start since Aug. 19, was bombed for four runs on three homers in three innings as the Orioles rallied from a 4-1 deficit. The victory went to Mike Flanagan, 15-10. Jim Willoughby, 6-2, took the loss.

Ben Oglivie drove in four runs and Jason Thompson had four hits, including a triple and a home run, pacing Detroit's victory. Aurelio Rodriguez added two clutch doubles for the Tigers.

Orioles extend Weaver's pact

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver, who led a young, untested Baltimore team to the verge of a division title, has signed a new contract to manage the Orioles through 1980, the American League club announced Saturday.

It was the first multi-year contract offered to an Oriole manager since Hank Bauer signed a two-year pact following the 1966 season, in which Baltimore won the World Series. Terms of Weaver's contract were not disclosed.

"We thought Earl should be justly rewarded for the outstanding season the Orioles have had," said General Manager Hank Peters in a prepared statement.

With three front-line players—outfielder Reggie Jackson, second baseman Bobby Grich and 20-game winner Wayne Garland—gone in the free agent draft and rookies and young veterans at several key positions, Weaver faced a monumental rebuilding task this season.

Smith's homers guide Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reggie Smith slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of three Dodger pitchers Saturday as Los Angeles defeated the Houston Astros 4-3.

Smith hit a two-run homer in the third inning, his 31st, off loser Joaquin Andujar, 11-8. He hit his 32nd to lead off the fifth inning.

Houston retaliated when Dennis Walling singled home Julio Gonzalez and Jose Cruz later scored on a wild pitch in the sixth.

Burt Hooten, 12-7, hurled the first seven innings for the victory.

Afterward, Smith said he was going through a letdown since the time the Dodgers clinched the pennant a week and a half ago.

"I took some time off, but I lost a lot of my edge," replied the Los Angeles rightfielder. "You're keyed up all season, then win it, and still have all those games left to play. I kind of lost my drive, and it hurt."

Smith said he took extra hitting and now is looking forward to the National League playoff series.

"I wish it would hurry up and start," he said. "I'm sure everything will be different once we get to that workout on Monday."

Leftfielder Dusty Baker doubled in four at-bats and still needs one home run to make the Dodgers the first team in baseball history with four players at 30 or more homers.

"I thought I got it in the fourth inning," said Baker. "I got one more shot at it, against James Rodney Richard and he is hardly the easiest guy to hit home runs against."

Richard, 17-12, will start for Houston in the final game of the regular season today. Roberto Castillo, 1-0, will go for Los Angeles in his first major league start.

Barlow hurls Halo victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike Barlow and Dave LaRoche combined for a three-hitter as the California Angels stopped the American League West champion Kansas City Royals 4-1 Saturday night.

Barlow, 4-2, a right-hander making his first start for California since being acquired from Houston in June 1976, was touched only for singles by George Brett in the fourth and Clint Hurdle in the seventh. LaRoche came on to blank the Royals through the final two innings, allowing only a ninth-inning single to Joe Zdeb.

Kansas City starter Andy Hassler, 9-6, took the loss, giving up all four California runs before giving way to Jim Colborn in the sixth.

Either Hassler or Larry Gura, both left-handers, is expected to pitch against the New York Yankees in the second game of the American League playoffs, which start Wednesday.

Rusty Torres and Ike Hampton led the nine-hit Angel attack with solo home runs as California pecked away for single runs in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings.

Camera angles: teaching photography

Audio-visual 'technique' offers learning reward

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

In a previous column, I described an innovative new method to teach certain facets of photography using modern audio-visual techniques. Peter Nicastro, of Garfield, N.J., founded Photography Learning Systems and introduced a series of lessons which combine a tape-recorded cassette of instructions illustrated by a sequence of slides and a printed studybook for reference. The learning experience can take place anywhere you can set up a screen and slide projector and listen to a tape recorder.

With school sessions under way throughout the country, I found it much more convenient to have one of Nicastro's teaching modules at home. I listened and looked at an "Audio-Visual Portfolio" by Eva Rubenstein. It was a rewarding encounter with a noted photographer whose work is in the collections of major museums here and abroad. It was like having a personal chat with someone whose discerning appraisal of her work and emotions can illuminate your own ideas and motives in picture-taking.

Eva Rubinstein is known for the personal style in her photographic encounters with people and environments. She was the subject of a monograph, one of a series on important photographers, published by Morgan & Morgan. It is remarkable because photography came into her life late, after careers as a dancer and an actress. In 1967, while working in the Long Wharf Theatre in New Haven, Sean Kernan came to photograph the productions. Eva started to assist him ... and was hooked.

Photography became an obsession. She applied herself with passion, working out of a basement darkroom she had set up. Then Eva moved to New York and photography dominated all her activities. She took a course in photography, enrolled in a Lisette Model workshop, devoured photo books and felt the influence of masters like Irving Penn, August Sander, Paul Strand, Cartier-Bresson, Yousuf Karsh, Eugene Smith and Evelyn Hofer.

Among other facets of the craft, Kernan showed Eva what good print quality was like and she worked to perfect her technique in that area. She learned that a print has personality which can be changed through contrast.

"Taking a picture can be instinctive," Eva says, "while printing is a slow, introspective time which I enjoy. I can work for hours until the print says, 'This is the way I look best. This feels right.'"

The format of the lesson itself is an interview by Will Faller, editor of "Photograph" magazine, with Eva Rubinstein. The 34-minute discussion is illustrated with 44 slides, each one advanced by an audible signal on the tape. The photos shown were made in war-torn Ireland, Spain, Romania, Italy and the United States. Faller probes for reasons why she chose each scene and how the creative process produced the images.

"Is your seeing a deliberate act or intuitive?" Faller asks.

"When I see the possibility of a picture," Eva replies, "I put the camera to my eye and the scene in the viewfinder 'happens' or it doesn't. I may shift the camera a bit, eliminating or adding something until it feels 'right.'

"I never studied art or composition seriously so I don't have theories to go by. But when I was younger, I saw a lot of paintings and reacted to them. Maybe I got a sense of design or graphics by osmosis. Most of my later shooting is instinctive."

Eva uses public transportation and walks around a lot with a camera handy for unexpected, interesting vignettes. On a train in Ireland she focused on four schoolboys deeply engrossed in smoking a last cigarette before getting home. In embattled Londonderry, she photographed a battle scene with the feeling that she was safe behind her camera although there were daily casualties.

She found a street corner that "turned her on," a sharp ascending curve that had possibilities. She waited there for more than an hour but her patience paid off. A schoolboy came along going up the steep street just as two elderly men passed him. She clicked. It had symbolism: Youth ascending while old age is on the downward path.

"I shoot a lot of images of hallways, empty rooms, waiting rooms and stairways," Eva says. "Stairs have a sense of mystery — you don't know where they're leading but they invite you up. When I shoot such images, I may not be conscious of their meaning to me, that usually comes later and sometimes through other peoples' eyes and their reactions."

Her pictures of people were greatly influenced by August Sander, the great German photographer, and Irving Penn.

"In portraits, I'm basically doing what I see and feel for myself," Eva says, "but I hope the subject approves the results. We must both find it valid or I won't use it. I like to work by window light or outdoors. I hate using strobe flash for portraits but sometimes there is no other choice if daylight isn't available. It's almost impossible to maintain the right atmosphere in a portrait session with a blinding flash going off periodically."

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly football fans were treated to a display of fireworks when the Broncos scored Saturday night in their home opener.

The only trouble was the fireworks were shut off in the second half as Poly's offense couldn't do anything against a tough UC Davis defense as the visiting Aggies took a 27-14 decision at Kellogg Field.

Actually, the officials were the big yard gainers in this contest as the whistles blew all night to keep a large home opening night crowd looking for better things to do.

The refs called a 31 penalties in what turned into a sloppy contest with Davis being charged for 206 yards of infractions and Poly 154.

Poly accounted for a grand total of 89 offensive yards (33 on the ground in 43 plays and 56 through the air) while Davis managed 280 (55 on the ground and 225 passing) as it's obvious it's going to take some time to get any kind of consistency going.

The big reasons why Davis is 3-0 and Poly 0-3 after Saturday's performance can be attributed to Poly's problems on pass defense in the second quarter, the inability of Poly ever to get decent field position in the second half and an onsides kick gamble that backfired.

"I guess at this level of competition it's just going to take us longer to put it together than I ever thought," Poly coach Jim Jones said after the loss.

One of Jones' coaching decisions had to be questioned.

Poly had just tied the score at 14-14 with 57 seconds left in the first half when quarterback Sammy Ross ran for nine yards after sophomore Jim Middleton of Pomona returned an interception 66 yards.

Jones called for an onsides kick to shock just about everybody. It didn't work with Davis getting the ball at the Aggie 46.

UCD then cashed in on its golden opportunity with quarterback Mike Moroski completing his third touchdown pass of the quarter on an one-yard toss to Steve Griffin to give the Aggies a permanent lead (21-14) with 14 seconds left in the half.

Earlier in the quarter, Moroski completed TD tosses of 19 yards to Randy Wilson and 12 yards to Griffin. The scores came 1:07 of each other midway through the period with the second score coming after Mark Markei intercepted a Ross pass at the Bronco 13.

Davis wrapped up the victory with 10:37 left in the game on fullback Fred Wheeler's one-yard TD run to climax a 46-yard drive.

Poly got the home fans excited when the Broncs scored on its first offensive series of the night with Ross running 13 yards for a touchdown to finish a 46-yard march.

Turnover were also a big item in the game with Poly losing four fumbles and seeing three passes intercepted. But the Broncs also recovered four Aggie fumbles and stole four passes.

Owens paces Bruins, 34-16

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ready or not here we come," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue about the Pacific-8 Conference football race following the Bruins' 34-16 intersectional victory over Iowa Saturday night.

"We'll have to wait and see how we'll do," said Donahue, whose team begins Pac-8 play at Stanford next Saturday. "This evens us up on the nonconference season and was a very important win for us to gain our confidence."

Speedy James Ownes zipped 67 yards for a touchdown and Rick Bashore fired two scoring passes to help give the Bruins their second victory against two defeats.

"James' run gave us the momentum we needed," said Donahue. "It came on a trap play which is new in this offense this year. We were pleased to score that many points.

"I felt the defense did an outstanding job and it hasn't played poorly yet," added Donahue. "We needed points on the board to relieve the pressure on the defense and we got that in the first quarter."

"We lost the game in the first five minutes," said Iowa Noach Bob Commings. "UCLA's a heck of a team. Without a doubt, it is the best offensive team we've played."

Owens, who competed as a hurdler in the 1976 Olympics, blasted off right guard and raced to a touch down after just 2:10 of play and the Bruins led the rest of the way, although Iowa scored two fourth quarter touchdowns.

Owens, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound junior, finished the game with 134 yards on 16 carries.

Bashore, the Bruins' sophomore quarterback, hit Glenn Cannon with a six-yard scoring pass in the first quarter, and Don Pederson with a 16-yard TD strike in the third period as UCLA evened its season record at 2-2.

The Bruins, who had been struggling offensively this fall, scored on their first three possessions. Peter Boermeester kicked a 28-yard field goal, the first of his two three-pointers, to give UCLA a 10-0 lead after 7:35 of play, and Bashore's scoring strike to Cannon with 2:56 left in the first quarter made it 17-0.

Iowa's only score until the fourth period was a 42-yard field goal by Dave Holsclaw on the final play of the opening half. That came after a personal foul against UCLA on the kickoff return following Boermeester's second field goal and a 27-yard pass from Bob Commings Jr. to Brad Reid.

Iowa, also 2-2, scored its touchdowns on a six-yard run by Rod Morton and a 26-yard pass from Tom McLaughlin to Mike Brady.

UCLA completed the scoring with 2:10 to play on a 13-yard run by backup quarterback Steve Bukich following a fake punt by Iowa which failed.

Owens became the first UCLA player to rush for more than 100 yards in a game this season.

Bashore, who gave way to Bukich in the third quarter, finished with 10 completions in 16 attempts for 97 yards. He rushed for 73 yards on 17 carries.

Morton led the Hawkeye ground game with 60 yards on 14 attempts. Commings completed just three of nine passes with one interception for 44 yards before being relieved by McLaughlin in the third quarter.

McLaughin connected on 7 of 11 passes for 123 yards in bringing the Iowa offense to life. The Hawkeyes gained only 67 yards in the first half, including the long pass to Reid in the closing seconds.

McLaughlin engineered scoring marches of 84 yards in 11 plays, climaxed by Morton's touchdown with 13:20 left, and 80 yards in four plays ending with his pass to Brady with 7:31 to go.

UCLA's third quarter touchdown was set up by the first freshman Kenny Easley's two interceptions.

The Bruins had only one turnover compared to 13 in their first three games this season. However, UCLA was penalized for more than 100 yards, which possibly kept them from scoring more than they did.

Texas kicker sets FG mark

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas kicker Russell Erxleben set a major college football record Saturday when he connected on a 67-yard field goal in a 72-15 rout of Rice.

The third quarter kick broke the record set last year when Texas A&M's Tony Franklin blasted a 65-yarder.

Erxleben's kick, however, was two yards short of the small college mark. Abilene Christian's Ove Johansson booted a 69-yard field goal last season against East Texas State.

The Longhorns were leading 54-7 when Erxleben set the record. The Horns' kicker was the nation's leading punter last season.

Don Lugo and Webb tie

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Don Antonio Lugo High, in the first varsity home game in the school's history, earned a 20-20 tie with Webb School of Claremont Saturday night at Chino High.

The Conquistadores' performance is going to cost coach John Monger his hair.

"The kids played their hearts out tonight," Monger said after his squad, made up of only sophomores (except for freshman placekicker Luis Zendejas), preserved the tie when Willie Hadsock and Todd Meideros broke through to block Webb's extra point kick with 10 seconds left to play.

"I'm very pleased," Monger continued. "I told them if they won tonight I'd shave off my hair — they played so well I'm still going to do it."

The Conquistadores looked as though they might win the game when scatback Carlos Sanchez took a pitchout and sprinted 76 yards for a touchdown with 2:44 remaining in the game. That score gave the Chino school a 20-14 lead, but Zendejas missed the PAT kick for the first time in five tries this year.

But Webb quarterback Kerry Bensinger directed a nine-play, 69-yard scoring drive to tie the game with 10 seconds left. He completed four passes for 55 yards on that series and ran for the other 14 yards himself. The TD came on a nine-yard screen pass to Leon Harrison.

Bensinger finished the game with 131 yards passing and 50 yards rushing. He completed eight of 24 and was not intercepted.

Sanchez, by virtue of his 76-yard TD, rolled up 128 yards on 17 carries. Teammate Manuel Villalobos also carried 17 times, for a net of 72 yards.

Villalobos ran two yards for a touchdown in the the third quarter after Hadsock came up with his first big kick block of the night. Hadsock got in the way of a Webb punt and Don Lugo took over on the Gaul's nine-yard line.

The Conquistadores made a big goal-line stand midway through the fourth quarter. Webb had a first-and-goal on the DL six but three runs netted just two yards and Bensinger's fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Besides his offensive contributions, Bensinger intercepted a pass and returned it 72 yards for a TD just 10 seconds before the end of the first half. That score gave Webb a 14-7 halftime lead.

Webb totaled 277 yards and 13 first downs to Don Lugo's 226 yards and nine first downs.

Steve Moore, a Don Lugo linebacker who suffered a concussion last week, left the game on a stretcher after a head injury Saturday night.

Don Lugo (0-1-1) will host Lutheran La Verne at Chino High and Webb (0-1-1) will visit Brentwood Friday.

Webb	0	14	0	6	—20
Don Lugo	0	7	7	6	—20

Don Lugo — Malins 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Webb — Larsen 1 run (Richards pass from Bensinger)
Webb — Bensinger 71 pass interception (kick failed)
Don Lugo — Villalobos 2 run (Zendejas kick)
Don Lugo — Sanchez 76 run (kick failed)
Webb — Harrison 9 pass from Bensinger (kick failed)

OUCH!

AUSTIN, Texas — The season grew a bit longer for Rice's beleaguered Owls Saturday, as the University of Texas downed the Houston school 72-15.

Rice is now 0-3 on the year, having been beaten 48-3, 77-0 and 72-15.

Lone bright spot for the Owls Saturday was freshman quarterback Randy Hertel, who passed for the two Rice touchdowns and collected over 200 yards via the airlanes.

Lakers win exhibition

RENO, Nev. (AP) —Kermit Washington converted two three-point plays in a 30-second span in the fourth quarter Saturday night to break a tie and lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 100-93 National Basketball Association exhibition victory over the Golden State Warriors.

The six-point spree vaulted the Lakers from a 79-79 tie to an 85-79 lead the Warriors were unable to overcome in the final six minutes and 30 seconds.

Jamal Wilkes, in his first appearance against his old teammates, scored 16 points to lead the Lakers.

Baltimore helps Yanks clinch flag

The New York Yankees clinched the American League East pennant Saturday with help from the Baltimore Orioles.

While the Yankees' game in New York with the Detroit Tigers was being held up by rain, the Orioles defeated Boston 8-7, killing the Red Sox' last hope of catching the Yankees, the East leaders.

The Yankees had clinched a tie for the East title with a victory against Cleveland last Wednesday night, but had been unable to win a game since. Saturday, they eventually lost their third straight, 10-7 to the Tigers.

The Orioles outslugged the Red Sox with a barrage of six homers, including two by rookie Eddie Murray.

Dave Skaggs, Lee May, Rich Dauer and Doug DeCinces also homered for the Orioles, who were eliminated from the AL East race by the Red Sox Friday night.

Boston's Rick Wise, making his first start since Aug. 19, was bombed for four runs on three homers in three innings as the Orioles rallied from a 4-1 deficit. The victory went to Mike Flanagan, 15-10. Jim Willoughby, 6-2, took the loss.

Ben Oglivie drove in four runs and Jason Thompson had four hits, including a triple and a home run, pacing Detroit's victory. Aurelio Rodriguez added two clutch doubles for the Tigers.

Orioles extend Weaver's pact

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver, who led a young, untested Baltimore team to the verge of a division title, has signed a new contract to manage the Orioles through 1980, the American League club announced Saturday.

It was the first multi-year contract offered to an Oriole manager since Hank Bauer signed a two-year pact following the 1966 season, in which Baltimore won the World Series. Terms of Weaver's contract were not disclosed.

"We thought Earl should be justly rewarded for the outstanding season the Orioles have had," said General Manager Hank Peters in a prepared statement.

With three front-line players—outfielder Reggie Jackson, second baseman Bobby Grich and 20-game winner Wayne Garland—gone in the free agent draft and rookies and young veterans at several key positions, Weaver faced a monumental rebuilding task this season.

Smith's homers guide Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reggie Smith slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of three Dodger pitchers Saturday as Los Angeles defeated the Houston Astros 4-3.

Smith hit a two-run homer in the third inning, his 31st, off loser Joaquin Andujar, 11-8. He hit his 32nd to lead off the fifth inning.

Houston retaliated when Dennis Walling singled home Julio Gonzalez and Jose Cruz later scored on a wild pitch in the sixth.

Burt Hooten, 12-7, hurled the first seven innings for the victory.

Afterward, Smith said he was going through a letdown since the time the Dodgers clinched the pennant a week and a half ago.

"I took some time off, but I lost a lot of my edge," replied the Los Angeles rightfielder. "You're keyed up all season, then win it, and still have all those games left to play. I kind of lost my drive, and it hurt."

Smith said he took extra hitting and now is looking forward to the National League playoff series.

"I wish it would hurry up and start," he said. "I'm sure everything will be different once we get to that workout on Monday."

Leftfielder Dusty Baker doubled in four at-bats and still needs one home run to make the Dodgers the first team in baseball history with four players at 30 or more homers.

"I thought I got it in the fourth inning," said Baker. "I got one more shot at it, against James Rodney Richard and he is hardly the easiest guy to hit home runs against."

Richard, 17-12, will start for Houston in the final game of the regular season today. Roberto Castillo, 1-0, will go for Los Angeles in his first major league start.

Barlow hurls Halo victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike Barlow and Dave LaRoche combined for a three-hitter as the California Angels stopped the American League West champion Kansas City Royals 4-1 Saturday night.

Barlow, 4-2, a right-hander making his first start for California since being acquired from Houston in June 1976, was touched only for singles by George Brett in the fourth and Clint Hurdle in the seventh. LaRoche came on to blank the Royals through the final two innings, allowing only a ninth-inning single to Joe Zdeb.

Kansas City starter Andy Hassler, 9-6, took the loss, giving up all four California runs before giving way to Jim Colborn in the sixth.

Either Hassler or Larry Gura, both left-handers, is expected to pitch against the New York Yankees in the second game of the American League playoffs, which start Wednesday.

Rusty Torres and Ike Hampton led the nine-hit Angel attack with solo home runs as California pecked away for single runs in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings.

Mounties post win

Playing opportunistic football, Mt. San Antonio College evened its non-conference record Saturday night by drubbing L.A. Harbor 24-7.

The Mounties used three fumble recoveries by Gary Orantes and a 70-yard return by Bobby Epps with a blocked field goal attempt to fashion the victory in their last tune-up before next week's South Coast Conference opener against San Diego Mesa.

MSAC had difficulty getting started against Harbor as the Seahawks held the Mounties to only 7½ yards in the first half.

Harbor led 7-0 at intermission on the strength of 67-yard drive midway through the second period. The key play in the drive was a 39-yard screen pass to Harry Bell, who was knocked out of bounds on the MSAC one. Bell carried it over on the next play.

Thoroughly stifled in the first half, MSAC could only manage field goal attempts from the 27 and 38, with both kicks failing.

In the second half the Mounties got on the board when John Cowper capped a 40-yard drive with a 22-yard field goal.

The drive began following a fumble recovery by Orantes.

MSAC went ahead to stay late in the third quarter when Orantes recovered another fumble, this time on the Harbor 20, and scored four plays later on Stan Webster's one-yard plunge. The big play was a pass interference call that gave MSAC the ball on the one.

Harbor tried to come back in the fourth quarter when they took over on the MSAC 45-yard line following a punt. The Seahawks drove inside the MSAC 20 before being stalled.

On fourth down Harbor lined up for what would have been a tying field goal, but MSAC's Epps stormed through the Seahawk's line, blocked the kick, fielded the ball cleanly on one bounce and raced 70 yards for a touchdown.

Citrus also posted a win Saturday night by holding off host Rio Hondo, 27-24.

Quarterback Brian Johnson, playing in place of Ken Eriksen, passed for one touchdown and ran for another while Owl placekicker Eddie Neil kicked two field goals and added a couple PATs.

Eriksen, the regular Owl QB, suffered a minor leg injury in the first period but is expected to play in the Owls' next outing.

The win was the first of the year for Citrus after two losses. Rio Hondo is now 0-2-1 on the season.

L.V. Lutheran loses, 27-0

An undermanned La Verne Lutheran High squad was just no match for visiting Irvine High Saturday night as the hosts were blanked 27-0 at Damien High.

Lutheran started the game without the services of five starters and lost two more during the course of the game. Two of the seven out were the starting backfield. The Trojans are now only 15 players strong.

Lutheran held Irvine to a scoreless tie after the first quarter and only trailed 7-0 at halftime. Irvine added 14 points in the third quarter to put the game out of reach.

The only bright spot for La Verne was Craig Downey who rushed for 81 yards on 14 carries. On defense Downey made 10 unassisted tackled and eight assisted.

La Verne will be on the road next Friday night when it plays Don Lugo at Chino High.

Leos romp to 42-20 win

La Verne piled up 438 yards total offense and built a 35-0 lead through the first half before P-P could score.

Frick put the Leopards in front early with touchdown runs of 43 and 11 yards. Frick also scored the last Leo TD of the night returning a kickoff 95 yards in the third quarter.

Sagehen quarterback Lyle Lansdell passed for 190 yards including scoring passes of six and 15 yards.

Leo placekicker Andy Ford was perfect on six extra point attempts.

The contest was called with 1:30 left to play when an altercation occured between the Sagehen sidelines and the officials.

Vikings ink Manfred Moore

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League Saturday activated and signed Manfred Moore, 6-foot-2, 200pound running back who will be used chiefly for returning kickoffs and punts.

Moore, who played college football at Southern California, most recently was with the Oakland Raiders and played for the San Francisco 49ers.

In order to activate Moore, the Vikings placed Keith Hartwig on waivers. Hartwig is a wide receive who was an 11thround draft choice out of Arizona.

Rankin shares lead

DALLAS (AP) — Judy Rankin and Jan Stephenson fired two-under par 70s Saturday to share the lead with 143s in the $50,000 Dallas Civitan Open.

Proud Birdie scores upset

NEW YORK (AP) — Longshot Proud Birdie took the lead turning for home and outdueled Private Thoughts through the stretch Saturday to win the $279,600 Marlboro Cup at Belmont Park.

The victory was only the second in 13 starts this year for the 4-year-old colt owned by Marablue Farm and ridden by Jacinto Vasquez. Both wins have been in stakes.

Archer ties course record

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — George Archer, unrattled by a threeputt bogey on the first hole, came back with 10 birdies and tied the course record with a 63 Saturday which gave him a four-stroke lead after three rounds of Napa's $200,000 pro golf tournament.

James Hunt claims pole

Hunt, the 29-year-old world champion from Britain, posted a track record speed of 120.53 miles per hour Friday to gain the coveted inside front row starting position in the field of 26.

Yanks protest ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner and club prseident Gabe Paul on Saturday criticized American League President Lee MacPhail who denied the Yankees a 25th player for the league playoffs, should New York win the AL East Division championship.

The Yankees fell one man below the limit in mid-September when they sent outfielder Carlos May to the California Angels. Baseball rules state that post-season playing roster must be frozen on Aug. 31.

Former Huskie star dies

SEATTLE (AP) — William Jennings Coyle, one of the last members of the legendary Gil Dobie's unbeaten football teams at the University of Washington, died Saturday. He was 89.

"Wee" Coyle was the star quarterback during the golden age of Huskies football. He was a four-year letterman in football, baseball and track at Washington.

Hubert Green falters

WORKSOP, England (AP) — Guy Hunt of England claimed the first victory of his indifferent 14-year pro career when Brian Barnes three-putted the third playoff hole and let Hunt escape with the title in the mistake-filled $70,000 British Masters golf tournament.

American star Hubert Green was tied for the lead with only four holes to go but again fell victim to the putting miseries that have plagued him all week, three-putted for six on two consecutive holes, and drifted back to a tie for fifth after a wind-blown 75 and a 295 total.

Top-ranked Oklahoma opened Big Eight Conference play with a solid victory over Kansas, Michigan overwhelmed Texas A&M in an intersectional showdown and fourth-rated Penn State was knocked off by Kentucky in key college football games Saturday.

Oklahoma showed no signs of a letdown after last week's thrilling victory over Ohio State, dominating Kansas from the opening kickoff en route to a 24-9 triumph as quarterback Thomas Lott rushed for 102 yards and three touchdowns — frcm eight, nine and four yards out.

"It wasn't hard for us to get up today," said Lott, discounting talk of a letdown. "We play off our pride. We always want to look our best."

Coach Barry Switzer said it was indeed the best Oklahoma has looked this season.

"We controled the game and kept good field position until the game was won," he said. "I think we gained some confidence today, and that should help us when we cross the Red River next week."

Oklahoma meets No. 8 Texas in Dallas next Saturday.

Michigan, rated third after lackluster victories over Duke and Navy, came on strong and overpowered fifth-ranked Texas A&M 41-3 behind fullback Russell Davis, who rushed for 110 yards and scored twice.

Texas A&M's 270-pound fullback, George Woodard, lugged the ball 39 times for 153 yards, but for the most part was well contained by Michigan's defensive unit led by Ron Simpkins, who made 10 solo tackles and assisted on four more.

"They beat us in every area of football — offense, defense and kicking," said Texas A&M Coach Emory Bellard. "They did a toroughly complete job on us."

Kentucky held Penn State scoreless in the second half and beat the Nittany Lions as Joe Bryant kicked a 30-yard field goal and quarterback Derrick Ramsey scored on a 1-yard touchdown run, both in the third period.

In other afternoon games involving Top Ten teams, No. 7 Colorado coasted past Army 31 0, Texas clobbered Rice 72-15 and No. 10 Alabama defeated Georgia 18-10.

Among the Second Ten, No. 11 Nebraska beat Indiana 31-13, No. 13 Texas Tech got past North Carolina 10-7, No. 14 Notre Dame stopped Michigan State 16-6, No. 16 Pittsburgh whipped Boston College 45-7, No. 17 California crushed San Jose State 52-3 and No. 18 Mississippi State edged Kansas State 24-21.

Two other Top Twenty teams were big winners Friday night. No. 2 Southern Cal overwhelmed Washington State 41-7 and No. 15 Brigham Young outclassed New Mexico 54-19. Brigham Young quarterback Gifford Nielsen had another big game, completing 19 of 23 passes for 273 yards and five touchdowns.

Howard Ballage scored on runs of 10 and 59 yards and Mark Haynes returned an interception 97 yards for a touchdown as Colorado blanked Army. Ballage, making his first start of the season, carried 15 times for 128 yards and also caught two passes for 24 yards. The Buffs' defense limited Army's Leamon Hall to 160 yards passing.

A 'wet' farewell for Pele

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Politicians, celebrities and — above all — the fans who love him so much came to bid farewell to a tearful Pele Saturday. The king of soccer ended his 22-year competitive career with an emotion-filled ceremony and one last exhibition match.

After being showered with plaques and medals and ovations from the capacity 76,891 crowd at Giants Stadium here, the "Black Pearl" stepped to the microphone at the center circle to address the throng and television audiences in 40 countries around the world.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I am very happy to be here with you in this moment of my life," the Brazilian star said in halting English. "I want to thank you all, and I want to take this opportunity to ask you in this moment — when the world looks to me — to take more attention to the young ones, to the kids all over the world.

"We need them too much. And I want to ask you, because I believe love is the most important thing in the world that we can take in life: people, say with me three times, love, love, love."

After each time he said "love", the mass repeated it — rising to a crescendo the final time. Pele said, "Thank you very much." Then in Portuguese, "Muito obrigado."

Then came the tears he had fought to hold back. He covered his face with his hands and faltered for a moment before being comforted by Carlos Alberto — his teammate on the Cosmos this North American Soccer League championship season and Pele's captain on the 1970 Brazilian National team that won the World Cup.

Quick to reach his side were Bobby Moore, captain of England's 1966 World Cup champions; Franz Beckenbauer, a Cosmo teammate and captain of West Germany's 1974 World Cup champions, and then Pele's family.

Then came the 1,356th game of his career in which the Cosmos played Santos of Brazil — for whom he scored 1,090 goals in 1,114 games before retiring in 1974 and joining the Cosmos in 1975.

Pele played the first half for the Cosmos, then changed uniforms at halftime and finished the contest in Santos colors.

CLC 'boots' Stags, 37-13

By BARRY ZEPEL
BP Correspondent

In beating Claremont-Mudd 37-13 on Saturday afternoon, a more experienced Cal Lutheran team put the "foot" back into football.

The victorious Kingsmen utilized five field goals by senior Brad Hoffman to easily control the host Stags through the first three periods. Hoffman had the range for distances of 37, 32, 12 and 25 yards and two others of yards each as Cal Lutheran was able to experiment with four quarterbacks.

Before starting signal-caller John Kindred took control of the offense, teammate Eric Murphy put six points on the board for the Kingsmen with a 95-yard kickoff return. That tied the score at 7-7, as C-M scored first on a five-yard run by junior tailback Steve Slattery.

The only other touchdown for the Kingsmen came on a 39-yard pass from second-string quarterback Casey McLaughlin to junior wide receiver Chris Hoff, with 7:34 remaining in the game.

The Stags didn't protect quarterback Don Chester very well, as he was sacked on three occasions. Under pressure most of the game from a strong Cal Lutheran defensive line, the sophomore completed five of nine pass attempts for 113 yards.

Going all the way, Chester scored C-M's final six points on a two-yard run as he attempted to rally his team back in the final period. That drive was ignited on a 30-yard pass to split end Doug Hathaway, putting the ball on the Cal Lutheran 21-yard line.

Stags' head coach John Zinda, admitting that Chester was under tremendous pressure, said, "Don hung tough and ran the team well. However he needs to work on his passing."

Zinda, with 25 new players on his roster this season, had planned to use the first three games, all non-conference, to allow his team to improve in time for the start of the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season.

"We're progressing at the pace I anticipated," Zinda noted. "Even though we lost by a big score, we were up against a powerful Cal Lutheran squad with great depth that is traditionally one of the powerhouses in the NAIA

In gathering 136 yards on the ground in 53 plays, the Stags were led by senior tailback Jimmy Reed, who ran for 96 yards in 20 carries. Slattery added 29 yards in eight attempts.

Hoping to improve his kicking game, Zinda added placekicker Dave Goldstein to the roster last week, and the former C-M soccer player nearly connected with a 45-yard field goal the ball falling just short.

Village tops Calvary, 14-8

SUN VALLEY — Host Village Christian recovered three of Calvary Baptist's eight fumbles Saturday afternoon on the way to a 14-8 triumph over the La Verne school.

Village, leading 6-0 in the third quarter, made it 14-0 when Steve Knudsen scooped up Calvary fullback Robert Turner's fumble at the Calvary two and ran it in for a TD.

Calvary scored later in the third period on a 49-yard pass from Steve Arrechea to Jeff Bryan, who caught three passes for 65 yards and intercepted two.

Locals have big day at Yucaipa Invite

YUCAIPA — Local high schools entered in the Yucaipa Invitational Cross Country Meet Saturday turned in some impressive outings.

Team honors went to Walnut, Pomona and Garey, while individual honors were copped by Garey's Joe Ramirez.

Walnut surprised pre-tourney favorite Claremont to win the varsity and junior varsity races in the tournament's Division 3. Walnut beat out Norco 33-51 for the varsity first and won out over Central 37-45 for the top spot in the J.V. race.

Claremont was fourth in Division 3 varsity and fifth in the frosh-soph race, which was won by Colton with Walnut finishing second.

In the tourney's Division 2 bracket, Pomona won the frosh-soph title with 43 points, with Garey second with 60. Apple Valley won the J.V. and varsity races in Division 2, with Garey second on the varsity level.

The Vikings' second place finish was paced by Ramirez, who turned in the best time of the day in the tourney with a blistering 15:54 on the three-mile course. Ed Allen of Pomona was second in the same race with a 16:35 clocking.

Over 30 Southland high schools were competing in the tourney. Locals will be returning to league dual meet action this Thursday.

Mazmanian wins honor

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Art Mazmanian was named Manager of the Year this summer at the helm of Oneonta in the New York-Penn League.

"We won the pennant and playoffs, so it was a very rewarding season," Mazmanian said. "I was fortunate enough to be voted manager of the year. It was a nice honor to win it over nine other teams."

Mazmanian, head baseball coach at Mt. San Antonio College, directed the New York Yankees' class A farm club to a 47-23 record. Oneonta won the Eastern Division pennant by four-and-one-half games over Toronto's Utica team. Oneonta then defeated Cleveland's Batavia squad 4-3 and 5-3 for the league championship.

Mazmanian commented, "We played a 72-game schedule in a very good league without any of the Yankees' high draft choices."

It was the ninth managing assignment in organized ball for the Mountie mentor in 21 years. He began managing in the pros in 1956 in the now defunct Nebraska State League. It was the very first rookie league formed in baseball.

"The league is classified as class A ball but it's really a rookie league," Mazmanian said of the NYP loop. "For some of the clubs it is their A team but with the Yankees it was really their rookie club. Their A team is actually at Fort Lauderdale in the Florida State League."

The Yanks, Mets, Cleveland, Toronto, Montreal, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Milwaukee Boston and Chicago Cubs have clubs in the New York-Penn League.

Oneonta had a winning percentage of .671 under Mazmanian, and only Lodi (Dodgers) in the California League had a higher winning percentage in organized ball, .686.

"We actually had a higher percentage until the last eight or nine days. We clinched the pennant and we rested some guys to get ready for the playoffs."

Mazmanian's crew, made up mostly of college-age players, had three batters hit over .300.

"There were very few high school players in the league," said Maz. "We had a good bunch of kids who were mostly college kids. Today, in baseball 80 percent of your first-year players are coming out of college. It's very difficult for a high school player to make it these days."

ART MAZMANIAN . . .
. . . MSAC mentor

The Mounties' mentor is no stranger to professional ball. He began with the Kansas City Athletics' organization as he managed in the Nebraska State League for four years until that league folded. Mazmanian then scouted on a part-time basis during the summer months until 1971 when the Dodgers asked him to return to managing.

"The Dodgers call me and asked me to manage in the Pioneer League," Mazmanian remembers. "I managed for the Giants in the same league in 1973-74, and last year Baltimore called and asked me to manage a co-op team.

"That's a team where all the other teams in the league chip in and give you players. Usually you have the rejects who couldn't make their number-one team. The reason for a co-op is that a league may be short a team. This way, with the co-op you have an even number of clubs to play out the schedule."

Mazmanian's 1971 Twin Falls co-op team surprised the baseball world by finishing third. The Angels' Jerry Remy and the Cardinals' Butch Metzger (co-rookie of the year in the National League in 1976) were given to the Twin Falls outfit. Under Mazmanian's guidance, Remy hit .308 in 32 games, while Metzger was 6-5 with a 3.91 ERA and had 108 strikeouts in 106 innings.

Last season, Mazmanian managed Pulaski in the Appalachian League. It was a co-op for the Phillies and Orioles.

"There is no difference between junior college and A ball as far as I'm concerned," Mazmanian claims. "I treat them both the same. The difference is that you're playing a game every night in the pros.

"That's why I enjoy managing more than coaching. In coaching you practice three or four times a week and you're lucky if you play three games. I love managing with games every night."

Asked what he gets out of the game as a coach or manager, Maz replied: "Anytime you think you've done a good job it's satisfaction. When you see players improve there's a reward there for a coach. If the players don't improve and they're not playing up to their capabilities, then you feel badly because you feel you're not reaching them as a coach.

"Winning isn't the judge of good coaching; it's talent that wins. The good coach will be the same whether he had good or bad players.

"I try to be the same regardless and I try to get this across to my players, that if we win it will be because we have the talent. If we lose, it will happen because the talent is short. I'm going to do my job one way or the other."

OMS to host NHRA drags

Drag racing's 1977 Winston World Championship season concludes Oct. 7-9 at Ontario Motor Speedway with the 13th renewal of the National Hot Rod Association's Winston World Finals, last event in a 44-race, $4 million Canadian-American series.

The World Finals, boasting a cash and contingency awards purse of $249,000 and bonus awards amounting to another $100,000, is an event in which the race track has become as big a star as professional drivers like Shirley Muldowney, Don Garlits, Don Prudhomme and Don Nicholson.

OMS, which usually hosts the NASCAR late models, motorcycles and USAC champ cars, opens up to championship drag racing but once a year. Yet more records have been established at that one race — the World Finals — than at any other single event.

OMS was the stie of the first official five second elapsed time by a Top Fuel dragster (1972), the first 8.60 second time by a Pro Stock car (1973), the first five second time by a Funny Car (1975), the first 240 mile an hour speed by a Funny Car (1975), the first 250 mile an hour speed by a Top Fuel dragster (1975), the first and only 5.60 second elapsed times by a Top Fuel dragster (1975) and the first and only all-five second filed in drag racing history (1975).

Now it is bracing for another record assault as Prudhomme tries to become the first to push a Funny Car beyond the 250-mile-an-hour barrier.

Winner of a record 23 NHRA national events, Prudhomme believes his new Plymouth Arrow is capable of 250 — "but only on the right race track." Ontario, obviously, is the right race track.

Prudhomme ran 5.98 and 241.53 MPH in winning the World Finals back in 1975. This year, he ran 247.25 MPH in the first event of the season but hasn't come close since.

Meanwhile, four other drivers have beaten 240 — a speed previously thought unapproachable — and, one, Dale Pulde of Van Nuys, has gone even faster than Prudhomme — 247.93 MPH.

Pulde, now driving the "War Eagle" Pontiac for Mike Hamby, is no stranger to OMS himself. He established national records for Funny Cars of 6.16 seconds, 233.76 MPH before losing in the semifinals of the 1974 World Finals at Ontario.

Pulde is one of a half dozen drivers thought capable of dipping into the fives at this year's finals, joining an exclusive club which presently includes only Prudhomme (5.97 and 5.98) and Eddie Pauling of Phoenix, Ariz. (5.97).

Joe Taylor, Fudge win Kiwanis

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

More than 100 valley golfers and their guests showed up Wednesday at Western Hills C.C. for the 20th annual Kiwanis Club of Greater Pomona Tournament.

And when all the firing was over, Joe Taylor of the PB's advertising staff, and Royer Fudge of Claremont were the big winners for the day.

Taylor fashioned a superb 75 over the par 72, hilly layout to win low gross honors. Included in Joe's round were four birdies and a host of pars.

Fudge won low net honors with a nifty 63. Flight winners in the Peoria System of handicapping were Paul Woodstra, Art Lund and David Hucaby.

Dexter Jones won the pitching contest, an annual fixture for the event. Richard Smith hit the day's longest, straightest drive, and Bob Harbicht landed his ball closest to the pin on No. 6.

Gordon Taylor, tournament director, rated the event a "real success." The Greater Kiwanis Club of Pomona will donate a check for more than $300 to a scholarship fund established in the name of Robert Headland, a longtime Kiwanian and golfer who died last summer.

Don Hughes of Western Hills captured low net honors with a torrid 65 in the recent National Assoc. of Amateur Golf tournament at Pala Mesa C.C.

Garth Sangster of San Juan Hills shot a 77 to win low gross. Next event for the National Association is Thursday, at Sangster's home course, San Juan Hills.

The member-guest event is slated for Saturday and Sunday at San Clemente Municipal on Thursday, Oct. 20, beginning at 11 a.m.

For more information contact Jerry Sharman at 496-0065.

Johnny Fought, the most prominent amateur golfer in the country, will make his debut in the $30,000 Long Beach Queen Mary Open Championship Thursday through Sunday at El Dorado Municipal in Long Beach.

Fought, 23, an accountant from Tualatin, Ore., compiled a record this past year that few other amateurs have ever chalked up. For example, he won the National Amateur, the TransMississippi Championship, the Broadmoor Invitational. He finished second among amateurs in the U.S. Open and second among amateurs in the Masters.

Fought also played on the U.S. Walker Cup team and was unbeaten.

Other top amateurs turning pro in the Queen Mary are NCAA champ Scott Simpson of USC, California amateur winner Lee Mikles of Arizona State, and Southwest Conference champion Ed Fiori of Downey and Houston U..

First prize is $6,000.

Winners in the La Mancha women's league recently were May Estale, Lucille Moore, Bonnie Woodrow, Lillian Smith, Laseeta Hief and Debbie Scott.

Mae Wellborn is publicity director for the fall season.

Fifty-five California golfers will try to qualify for PGA regionals Monday and Tuesday at Saticoy C.C. Across the country some 678 golfers will be aiming at places in the PGA Qualifying School at Pinehurst, N.C.

The Kathryn Crosby/Honda Civic Classic, which attracts the largest field for any tour event, will be played March 15-19 at Rancho Bernardo Golf Course.

The purse is $165,000, the second largest on the Ladies Professional Golf tour.

Harvey Korman, the comedian, will get into the tournament act with his celebrity invitational event scheduled for Rancho La Costa C.C. on Dec. 2, 3 and 4.

The tournament will benefit the Marianne Frostig Center of Educational Therapy. The two-day, 36-hole tourney will be played from a scramble format with five-man teams headed by celebrity friends of the television and movie comedian.

The $100,000 Sunstar Classic, the first major women's pro tournament ever to be held in Los Angeles, will be conducted at the Rancho Park Golf Course, it was recently announced by tournament chairman Yasuyoshi Kaneda and Mayor Tom Bradley.

The 72-hole event, featuring the greatest women golfers in the world, will be played March 9-12, 1978.

There have been other events called the Los Angeles LPGA Open, but none has been held in L.A. proper. Inglewood, Montebello, Buena Park, Pasadena, and Calabases Park have all been sites for the open.

Bill Hall, former tournament director of the Ladies PGA Tour, will direct all operations of the Sunstar Classic.

The San Dimas Canyon club championship 36-hole event is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15-16 . . . The Hot Rod Association holds its annual tournament Thursday at Red Hill C.C. . . . This weekend winds up the 72-hole club championship at Western Hills C.C.

If you'd like to play one of the best private clubs around these parts, you might tee it up at Red Hill C.C.

Burt Wheeler, who really knows his golf, says the Cucamonga course these days is in excellent shape.

"I've been a member since 1947," says Wheeler, "and I've never seen the course in better condition. We put in our new fairway sprinkler system recently, and it has made a terrific difference."

The greens too, according to Wheeler, are in outstanding condition.

Wheeler, one of the foremost authorities on golf courses in the valley, is remembered for his efforts to save Mountain Meadows Golf Course from becoming a housing tract some years ago.

Today Mountain Meadows, lush, green, challenging, stands as a testimony to the foresight and hard work of Wheeler and the entire "save Mountain Meadows" group.

I for one am especially appreciative. It seems to me we have enough housing tracts and not enough parks and golf courses.

I'll have a chance to play Red Hill C.C. this week so I'll see a fine course.

Hillbilly Hubert Green

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Hubert Green, the winner of the 1977 U.S. Open goes in for country talk and has a reputation as a hip hillbilly. But Green grew up in a sophisticated atmosphere. Born in Birmingham, Ala., his father was a successful doctor and young Hubie learned his golf at posh country clubs. In college he was a business marketing major.

"The hillbilly bit?" he said. "I guess it started because I'm from the South and I look like Huckleberry Finn with a golf club instead of a fishing pole. I get a kick out of putting on an act."

Bud Grant shoots for 100

By Associated Press

They say the first 100 victories are the toughest for a National Football League coach, and Minnesota's Bud Grant takes his first swing at that milestone today.

Grant takes a 99-39-4 regular-season record into the Vikings' game at Minnesota against the Green Bay Packers. Only 11 other coaches have reached the 100-victory milestone, and of that group, only Don Shula, Tom Landry, Hank Stram and George Allen are active.

This week's NFL schedule is split exactly along conference lines. Besides Minnesota and Green Bay, the National Conference games are New Orleans at Chicago, the New York Giants at Atlanta, Philadelphia at Detroit, St. Louis at Washington, San Francisco at Los Angeles, and Tampa Bay at Dallas.

In Monday night's game, Oakland plays at Kansas City.

Shula is the winningest active coach with 146 victories at Baltimore and Miami. Landry has 139, all at Dallas. Stram has 128 with the Dallas Texans, Kansas City and New Orleans, and Allen has 108 at Los Angeles and Washington.

Grant won No. 99 last weekend at Tampa Bay, but it was no laugher. The Vikings had to come from behind for a 9-3 victory over the expansion Bucanneers, with Fran Tarkenton throwing a 31-yard touchdown pass to Chuck Foreman for the victory.

The Packers, who have lost four straight and seven of the last eight meetings against Minnesota, lost to Houston last week when Willie Alexander raced 95 yards with an interception for the winning touchdown with less than five minutes to play.

That was the second straight victory for the Oilers and set up their game with Miami as the only contest this week between unbeaten teams.

The Dolphins edged San Francisco last Sunday with flanker Nat Moore scoring all three touchdowns, two on passes from Bob Griese.

Both clubs feature the popular 3-4 defenses and both have been solid in that department this season. No NFL defense, however, has been better than Denver's. The Broncos haven't allowed a single point defensively in two games with the only touchdown against them scored on a blocked punt.

Seattle will try and solve the Broncos' defense after throwing at least a momentary scare into Cincinnati last Sunday. The Bengals had rushed to a 28-0 lead before surrendering 20 quick points to the Seahawks. Then the Cincinnati offense added two wrapup touchdowns, clinching the victory.

That victory left the Bengals at 1-1 in the AFC Central and tied with Pittsburgh, which lost to Oakland last Sunday. Both clubs are one game back of unbeaten Cleveland, which scored a dramatic overtime victory against New England Monday night.

After two weeks, only seven of the 28 NFL clubs still are undefeated. Besides Miami, Houston, Cleveland and Denver, the perfect records belong to Baltimore, Dallas and defending Super Bowl champion Oakland.

Rizo honored

FORMER CHINO HIGH star Randy Rizo was recently honored as the University of Nevada Las Vegas player of the week for his role in a 35-28 win over Troy State.

Rizo, a junior defensive tackle, was credited with four tackles, four assists and one quarterback sack.

UNLV defensive line coach Doug Johnson commented, "Randy has done everything and more that we have asked of him. I'm very pleased that his weight is down and he's strong and quicker than he has ever been.

Sightless repairman does job on 'jets'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Ralph Gotcher, a longtime civilian employee of the Air Force at Tinker Air Force Base here, works daily with accurate measurements as he overhauls jet engine fuel pumps. And after work Gotcher relaxes by either going fishing, bowling or playing the piano or guitar.

While these activities could be those of almost any worker at the sprawling Air Force Logistics Command base, Gotcher is just a little different. He is blind.

Sightless all his adult life, Gotcher has worked at the Oklahoma base for the past 33 years. During World War II, when he applied for a defense job at Tinker he was first hired as a helper.

Receiving training on the job, Gotcher worked first in the electrical department, helping to overhaul generators and starters. Later, he transferred to hydraulics where he worked on electrically operated pumps and valves.

"I set the switches to work in the right sequence," he said, adding that he has worked on almost every kind of valve that goes on an airplane.

Currently Gotcher easily performs with the minute accuracy required for his exacting work. Housing clearances on fuel pumps, for example, must be accurate to within two-ten-thousandths of an inch.

He measures those tolerances with special micrometers and feeler gauges. But primarily it is Gotcher's incredible sense of touch that serves him best on the job.

"What you do is line up the parts so that they are working smoothly," he explains. "Any part that doesn't work properly is rejected and you get another one."

Gotcher received all his training on the job. Because of his handicap he didn't go to school as some of the others here did. He just started to work and picked up his skills from his sighted co-workers as he went.

His proficiency has earned him several awards that recognize his outstanding job performance.

"At 17 I had a brain tumor," he says. "As a result of the operation I began to lose my sight. The first few years after the operation I had some sight, but it gradually got worse."

Gotcher attended the Oklahoma School for the Blind at Muskogee.

"At that time," he recalls, "they taught woodworking, piano tuning and a few other trades, but they didn't teach anything like what I ended up doing."

Student 'inspires' play on coal town

CRESSON, Pa. (AP) — A theater group in western Pennsylvania's coal country, inspired by student writings, has produced a play about life in mining towns — a proud story of grim lives and hearty people.

An unemployed high school teacher wrote "Out of the Dark," and based its characters on the real people who toiled in deep, dark mines near here in their quest for a better life in a new land.

"The main town is simply called Coal Town," said playright Fred Vrabel. "And many of the people in the play could be found in any coal region in the world."

The story opens with a festive Polish wedding celebration, but the party is interrupted to take the audience back through the period of the couple's courtship.

Emily Jubisky, a storekeeper's daughter, is torn between a handsome college student who fled the mines in shame and a young miner whose work is dirty and dangerous.

"It's essentially a humorless play. I don't think there's one laugh in it," said Erma Konitsky, the English teacher whose students wrote the tales of everyday coal life sprinkled through the work.

"In spite of this, it has a kind of optimism about it that hardship builds character."

The same theme was evident in the two volumes produced by her students at Northern Cambria High School in nearby Spangler, but Vrabel admits giving the drama a sense of pride was his hardest task.

"When you think of coal mining, the first thing you think of is disaster and a grubby kind of life," he said. "It was a challenge to look into these people and find out what gives them their strength; what makes them go into the ground day after day and risk it all."

In the end, Emily marries Tony Santini, the college man who had listed his father as an engineer to hide his shame.

"By the end of the play, he's had a change of heart," Vrabel said. "He's learned about the people of Coal Town and is almost able to convince them that they have something to be proud of."

John Yost, the miner who courted Emily, is killed in a cave-in.

"There are a couple people who die in the play whom we get close to," said Vrabel. "But life is like that. It's a familiar cycle in mining towns."

Near-capacity audiences have responded to the story in very personal ways. An older man cried out in anguish during a cave-in scene.

"He was overcome by what he saw," said Mrs. Konitsky, whose only part in the play was as a spectator. "The play is very moving, very dramatic. Anybody who lives in this kind of area could certainly recognize the mine life in it."

Foreign films are assailed

A few snags remain to be ironed out before Jakarta can become Hollywood-on-the-Java-Sea, however.

It's government policy to replace imported goods with those that can be made at home. Applied to the more than 900 theaters, this means they must increasingly screen movies made in Indonesia instead of the often more popular imported variety.

Quotas announced four years ago were designed to phase out almost all imported offerings over a five-year period while, it was officially hoped, local moviemakers developed talent and expanded production.

More than 700 films were imported in 1973, the year before quotas were imposed. Imports were limited to 500 in 1974, 400 in 1975 and 300 last year. Only 200 movies are to be allowed into the country this year and 100 next year.

Starting in 1979, no foreign films except specially selected ones will be authorized.

The 900-plus cinemas need about 350 movies each year, according to unofficial estimates. Where are they going to get them?

Peak output of the domestic industry was 77 feature-length films in 1974. Production slipped to 41 in 1975 and rebounded to 60 last year. No precise forecast was available, but several moviemen said there would be about 100 releases this year.

In addition to quotas, 71 separate importers were consolidated last year into four groups to handle American, European, Mandarin and non-Mandarin Asian films.

One importer, who declined to be identified, said he expected the quotas to be relaxed.

"They could encourage domestic production by giving importers the right to bring in six or eight foreign films for every one they produced or financed in Indonesia," he said.

Local productions rarely meet with critical acclaim.

Nine judges at the annual film festival in March reviewed 27 of the movies made here last year. They decided none was worthy of the title, "Best Film of the Year" for 1976.

Who will be on next bus to the moon? Scientists see a probability--

they are unlikely to happen until the 21st Century.

One common belief among scientists, however, is that a new space age has begun. The time has come for a scientific conquest of the heavens.

In March 1979, the U.S. will launch the first of many manned orbital space flights to usher in the new age.

The Space Shuttle Transportation System being developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and Rockwell International Corp., will for the first time give man the ability — on a large scale — to live and work in space.

Within 20 years, experts believe, space industrialization will become a reality.

By the year 2000, many people will be working on scientific research, electronics mmanufacturing and medical breakthrough 500 miles above the earth.

Space industrialization will take place, the experts believe, because it is economical, practical and possible.

"Our studies indicate that space industrialization offers an overreaching concept potential. It can produce mind-expanding endeavors, challenge our imagination and capability and provide a substantial return on the U.S. space investment," a Rockwell corporate executive told Congress this week.

George W. Jeffs, president of Rockwell's space division, informed the Subcommittee on Space Science and Applications the world is about to experience a new industrial revolution because of space.

"I'm convinced the last two decades of this century will be notable for space activities and accomplishments, involving both the United States and a growing international space community," said Jeffs.

Scientists predict large space industries to begin manufacturing processes by the mid-1980s.

Manned and unmanned space stations will be used for agricultural forecasting, energy study, wildlife management, astronomy, communications and bio-medical processing by the mid-1980s.

Shortly thereafter, processing of metals, minerals and fluids, electronics production, solar energy collection and space mining of the moon and asteroids can be expected.

"We're only 10 years away from the beginnings of serious space industrialization," said Dick Barton, Rockwell's director of public relations for the space division.

"Congress and the government should be taking a bolder and more imaginative look at the space program. It offers a multitude of possibilities for the future. The benefits are numerous."

Rockwell and other space companies are involved in research projects for solar and nuclear propulsion systems.

Such systems would provide future space travellers with virtually unlimited supplies of autonomous power. In conjunction with large space stations, such systems might someday allow unlimited travel through the universe.

Plans to capture much purer forms of solar energy in space and transmit them to earth are being considered by the research community. Many believe space offers a forum for the solving of many of the earth's problems; the energy crisis, pollution, overpopulation and war.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has cited space exploration as a hope for the future. "As long as there is a safety valve of unexplored frontiers, the creative, the aggressive, the exploitive urges of human beings can be channeled into long-term possibilities and benefits; but as those frontiers close down and people begin to turn upon themselves, that jeopardizes the human fabric," he said.

Glenn Briggs, public information specialist at the Dryden Space Center at Edwards Air Force Base, believes an expansion of the present space age is imminent. "The space shuttle program and other future programs will allow us to do much in space," he said.

"It's a decision that is going to be up to the American people," he said. "We pretty much have the technology. It's where do we go from here?"

Most experts are hesitant to predict when the full impact of space exploration and industrialization will hit earthlings, but the consensus of opinion is that many of the fantastic proposals will become reality within 40 years.

Dr. Samuel Gilkins, a radio astronomer and space expert at Jet Propulsion Laboratories in Pasadena, said, "I believe technologically we are able to go into space now.

"In the future, we will be even more able to go. I think we are on the verge of an exciting expansion in the space age."

Gulkis believes large space stations by the year 2000 are a "reasonable possibility." "Within the 1980 decade, there will be people in space in a shirtsleeve environment.

"It's very speculative, but I believe we will see scientists, workmen and researchers living in space communities during our lifetime."

About $60 billion has been spent on space travel and research since the Russians first launched a tiny metal ball, the Sputnik, into earth orbit in 1957, heralding in the space age.

But for the first 20 years of space experimentation, there has been little in the way of monetary and economic return. For that reason, many in the late 1960s and early 1970s questioned the point of space exploration. Other more severe problems on earth; hunger, overpopulation, crime, pollution and other problems were more pressing, they claimed.

In his book, "Dynamics of Change," Don Fabun prophecied: Here we are, standing on this neon-lit, garbage filled corner of the earth waiting for the next bus to the moon. And that sound in the background is not Muzak. It is the rising angry clangor of empty rice bowls.

Throughout its early days, the space age was not generally viewed as a method of dealing with the earth's problems.

Indications today, however, suggest such a view is rapidly changing. Many believe space exploration offers imaginative solutions to world crises.

Technological breakthroughs caused by future space experimentation may someday help fill many empty rice bowls.

Anyone out there?

five years looking for evidence of life.

"We are going to try and put the whole question to an observable basis," Gulkis said. "We're not looking to communicate with anyone, just to determine if higher life forms in space are there."

The JPL scientist said he and his colleagues are cautiously optimistic the experiment will prove a success. "We're not doing any speculating," he said. "We're just searching."

Stressing improvements in human rights policies

Todman trying 'speak softly' approach for South America

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The United States appeared to be trying a "speak softly" approach to bringing about an improvement in human rights policies during Asst. Secretary of State Terence Todman's tour of four military-ruled South American countries.

Whether the stick was wielded behind the scenes with enough force to ensure results may not be known for some months.

The only obvious outcome of the 10-day mission, which ended Saturday in Uruguay and was to be followed by a two-day rest in Brazil, was the Chilean government's announcement a week ago that it was dissolving the DINA, the security police implicated in the arrest, disappearance or torture of thousands of people.

Although the government newspaper said the change had nothing to do with pressure from Washington, it was widely believed among Chileans that President Augusto Pinochet moved up the planned announcement to coincide with Todman's presence in the country.

At the same time, Pinochet created a new agency that will inherit the DINA's staff and properties but is supposed to devote itself only to gathering security information without the right to detain people.

Todman said he was "very pleased" with Pinochet's action, and it is beginning to appear that Washington is ready to welcome even small steps toward eliminating human rights abuses, rather than demanding major steps at once.

This view reportedly was argued by the former U.S. ambassadors in two of the countries visited by Todman, Robert Hill in Argentina and David Popper in Chile.

The Carter administration clearly was trying to use the Todman tour, which also included Paraguay, to find ways to warm up relations with the four nations, traditional friends of the United States.

The ties were strained by a combination of related factors, including Congress' cutoff of military assistance and sales to Chile and Uruguay for human rights reasons, Argentina's rejection of such aid because it was conditioned on human rights improvements, and President Carter's constant talk about human rights.

Todman, a 51-year-old career diplomat in charge of interAmerican affairs in the State Department, said only good things publicly about the countries he visited, accusing reporters in Argentina and Chile of not presenting an accurate picture of the two countries to the outside world.

Todman met with a wide range of people in all four countries, not only presidents and cabinet ministers, but also former elected officials, labor leaders, heads of once-active political parties, chrchmen and others concerned with human rights violations.

But he refused to talk to about 100 mothers of missing Argentines outside President Jorge Videla's office in Buenos Aires and barely paused before about 30 Chileans demanding word on missing relatives outside the Supreme Court in Santiago.

The unofficial Argentine Assembly of Human Rights says at least 700 persons have been kidnaped this year for political reasons, and possibly as many as 2,000. In Chile, families have reported to courts the disappearance of 501 persons since the military overthrew the late President Salvador Allende, a Socialist, nearly four years ago.

The Argentine government blames right-wing terrorists for the kidnaping of political liberals and moderates, and human rights leaders blame security forces. The now-dissolved DINA is blamed by relatives for the disappearances in Chile.

Chile also jailed many thousands of leftists after the coup, but the majority have now been freed. Argentine human rights workers say there are 5,000 political prisoners there.

In Paraguay, a human rights group estimates there are 200 to 300 political prisoners. A top Uruguayan military official has acknowledged that his government has about 1,800 political prisoners, although a U.N. Human Rights Commission official has put it higher.

Todman was not the only American official in South America last week to assess the human rights situation.

A subcommittee of the House International Relations Committee followed the State Department official into Santiago and on to Buenos Aires, and Todman's tour coincided with visits to Latin America by U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, alternate U.N. Ambassador Allard K. Lowenstein and Patricia Derian, the State Department's human rights coordinator.

Cranberry preserved in museum

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A new museum, located less than a quarter of a mile from Plymouth Rock in this historic town, is devoted to the cranberry, which grew wild in the area long before the Pilgrims arrived.

"Cranberry World," in telling visitors the story of the cranberry from pre-cultivation days to modern times, offers a unique perspective on the nation's history from the colonial era to the present, according to Anita Franks, curator-administrator.

In addition to a series of portraits of men and women who contributed to the growth of the cranberry industry, the museum displays an enlargement of the well-known painting of the 1880s, "Cranberry Harvest in Nantucket," by Eastman Johnson.

The museum contains a diorama depicting the topographic features of a 20th-century cranberry "plantation," a grower's house and a representation of a bog and harvesting implements.

Various scoops and related tools used in harvesting over the years are on display and a slide show on contemporary methods of cultivation, harvesting and processing is shown.

Other exhibits spotlight the immigrants who contributed to cranberry history and the many Indian tribes who played key roles in the cranberry saga by introducing the first settlers to the berries' use as a food, dye and medicinal poultice.

The museum, which sits on a picturesque site overlooking Plymouth Harbor, is expected to play host to approximately half a million tourists a year who visit Plymouth.

But it's in danger of being loved to death

Great California desert offers 'wonderland' of dramatic terrain

EDITOR'S NOTE: In other parts of the world, people worry about the spread of deserts. In California, people are worrying about preserving theirs. So many citizens love the desert that it's in danger of being loved to death.

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

DESERT CENTER, Calif. (AP) — The great California desert, an arid region the size of Ohio, is a wonderland of dramatic terrain and hardy, increasingly scarce forms of life.

It's also a wilderness museum of human habitation, from the dwellings of prehistoric tribes to the trails of mule skinners and Gold Rush miners.

Naturalists, scientists and seekers of solitude love the desert.

But they bring new questions with them. Will the easily marred sands be mined and motorcycled into a wasteland? Will the hordes of weekend visitors doom the animal species already rare and endangered? Will scenic places be spoiled by power plants, pipelines, electric cables?

After years of near-anarchy, the federal government has ordered that these and several other questions be settled and a master plan for managing the desert be created.

Under a 1976 federal law, specialists are combing the 12.5 million acres of public land in the California desert, walking, driving, flying over it and using satellite photos in the first step of the $40 million planning effort.

"There are more creatures and plants out there than anyone ever thought," says Neil Pfulb, head of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's desert planning staff based in Riverside. By 1980, the staff must complete the master plan.

The lands lie scattered over 20,000 square miles that make up one-fourth of California's area. Occupying the southeast corner of the state, these lands are intermingled with state, private, Indian, municipal and military lands.

"Competition for lands and resources is keen here in the desert, with a growing demand for outdoor recreation, power sites, wildlife, energy transmission corridors, grazing, mineral development, agriculture and other uses," says BLM Associate Director George L. Turcott.

Until recently, most people thought of the desert as a barren, hot waste, left over in the westward march to the California Dream on the state's lush coast.

"The California desert is one of the last great reservoirs of open space," says state BLM Director Ed Hastey. It has become a playland for many of the 12 million people who live jammed into cities and suburbs along the Southern Calfornia coast.

"The desert gives us the feeling of an area that hasn't been carved up," says Ike Eastvold of the Sierra Club.

But the desert may be getting carved up in subtle ways.

"The California desert environment is a total ecosystem that is extremely fragile, easily scarred and slowly healed," noted the law creating the California Desert Conservation Area.

In the scantily dressed desert, any wound remains undisturbed and is only rarely overgrown. Wandering out from Desert Center, you can still come upon tracks left by tanks of Gen. George Patton's forces that trained here during World War II.

The recreation explosion spawned the surge of off-road vehicles — dune buggies and dirt bikes — which desert specialists say present the greatest threat of damage.

Not only do the dirt-scattering tires rip the soil and trigger erosion, they also send dirt particles into the air, contributing to air pollution.

Archeological sites and habitats of desert animals have been destroyed by the buggies and bikes. Some dug ruts across the huge figures known as intaglios that were carved by ancient Indian tribes into the desert surface along the Colorado River.

Desert tortoises are vanishing from prime habitats in the northwest Mojave because of land development, overgrazing and off-road vehicles, says Kristin Berry, wildlife specialist on the Bureau of Land Management's planning staff.

Off-road vehicle drivers have formed clubs and organizations that protest that they're being unfairly condemned. They contend that the desert is tough enough to withstand hard recreational use. Conservationists counter that damage to the soil itself has been scientifically proven.

Dr. Howard Wilshire of the U.S. Geological Survey studied nine sites used by

Scouting gala slated Oct. 16

The fifth annual Evening for Scouting sponsored by the Women's Service Board of Old Baldy Council, Boys Scouts of America, will continue to raise funds for special programs for the council.

The annual party is scheduled Oct. 16 at 5:30 p.m. in the Founders Room of McConnell Center on the Pitzer College campus in Claremont.

Reservations are due by Oct. 7 and are available at the council office, 626-3551, or from board members.

Antipasto and wine will be served prior to an elaborate Italian dinner. A Chinese auction will follow the dinner.

Proceeds from activities of the Women's Service Board over the years have been directed toward remodeling and equipping the kitchen for central feeding at Holcomb Valley Boy Scout Camp near Big Bear.

The board maintains a uniform bank at the council office, 120 W. San Jose Ave., Claremont, where over 1,000 uniforms have been recycled. Funds from this project have provided $900 in scholarships for underprivileged children.

Mrs. James Edwards and Mrs. James T. Johnson are chairmen for the dinner.

Other chairmen are Mrs. Robert Burwell and Mrs. Ronald Brundage, auction; Mrs. Wayne Sheffield and Mrs. Donald DesCombes, decorations; and Mrs. Theo T. Nowak, publicity.

Greeting guests will be Mrs. Richard Kirkendall, president; Mrs. Charles Martz, vice president; Mrs. Craig McManigal, treasurer; and Mrs. David Ormiston, secretary.

Other board members participating are Mmes. Edward Girard, John McGwire, Fred Moore, Robert Shacklett, Jack Steele, William Walker and Roger Wheeler.

DOUG JONES

The Claremont Travel Film Series will open its 24th season on Friday with a premiere performance of "Egypt," narrated by Doug Jones.

Mr. Jones is one of the youngest and most interesting personalities in the film lecturing business. He graduated from the University of Missouri with a degree in radio and television broadcasting and now lives in Indianapolis, Ind.

In addition to working as a radio announcer and European tour guide while in college, Mr. Jones has visited 29 nations of Europe, Asia and Africa.

He has appeared on virtually every important auditorium series in the United States and Canada and, in 1972, was named "Film Lecturer of the Year."

The film will be presented at 2 and 8 p.m. in Garrison Theater, Claremont.

The Claremont Travel Film Series is a benefit project for the Development Fund of Pomona College.

Mrs. Milo Tigner, chairman of the film series, will be assisted by Mrs. Wesley Leighton, ticket sales; Mrs. Roy Miller, treasurer, and Miss Esther Ballew, Mrs. Charles Gill, Mrs. Earle Jones, Mrs. Jackson Niebrugge and Mrs. Stuart Wheeler.

Single tickets for "Egypt," which covers the grandeur of the pyramids to the present in this timeless nation, may be purchased at the box office for each performance. Season tickets are available for the afternoon series only.

Courtesy coffee will be served in the foyer during the evening performance by members of the committee.

Tension doesn't discriminate

First in a series
By HARRIET P. DUSTAN, M.D.

CLEVELAND (NEA) — Until recently high blood pressure — hypertension — was popularly thought to be a serious problem primarily for men. In the past few years it has become more widely understood that this disease does not discriminate according to sex.

Untreated, it can kill or disable both men and women. Of the 23 million Americans suffering from high blood pressure, nearly half are women.

There has been speculation that women are now suffering from hypertension in greater numbers because of a new, more stressful, ''liberated'' lifestyle: more women in the work force, in managerial positions, smoking, having cocktail lunches. Do these factors account for hypertension in women?

Actually, in only a few cases do we know what causes high blood pressure, and there is no evidence to indicate an upsurge in the rate of hypertension in women. The change is that women have become more aware of the problem, and more of them are finding that they suffer from hypertension.

The effects of abnormally high blood pressure may be devastating. Untreated, it can lead to heart failure, stroke, kidney damage and more. Yet only a small fraction — about one-fifth — of all Americans with the disease are being adequately treated. Only about 70 percent are even aware they have it!

What is blood pressure? It is the force within the arteries as the blood flows. There are two figures to remember. Systole is the pressure inside the arteries when the heart pumps blood. Diastole is the pressure when the heart relaxes. These measurements are indicated by the familiar two-number notation, with systole first or on top. A reading of around 120 over 80 is normal for most people.

Blood pressure rises at certain times — when you are excited or during strenuous physical activity — and this, of course, is normal. But it is not normal for blood pressure to remain at elevated levels. This is why a physician often takes several readings before making a judgment about high blood pressure.

The problem is further complicated by the fact that hypertension often has no symptoms in the early stages. For this reason women should pay special attention to the following situations which may be related to the occurence of high blood pressure.

—The Pill. The rate of high blood pressure is two and one-half times greater in women taking oral contraceptives. The risk is even greater in women who are, in addition, overweight, have a family history of high blood pressure, have mild kidney disease or have been hypertensive during pregnancy. Women should have a blood pressure check before having contraceptives prescribed, and every six months thereafter.

—Being black. No one knows why, but black women, even very young black women, have a higher rate of high blood pressure than white women. In fact, one in every four black persons older than 18 is estimated to have high blood pressure. Half are women. It is the single biggest killer among blacks in the United States.

—Family History. High blood pressure tends to run in families. Chances are greater that an individual will have it if parents or other relatives do. Regular blood pressure checks are appropriate for all members of hypertensive families.

—Pregnancy. If a woman is already hypertensive, she may become more so during pregnancy. Other women who have never had high blood pressure before may develop it when pregnant. In some cases it disappears after pregnancy; sometimes it does not. Under any circumstances, a pregnant woman should have her blood pressure checked frequently.

—Menopause. In industrial nations, like ours, blood pressure seems to rise with age. Thus, as women grow older, they become more susceptible to high blood pressure, and may become even more susceptible than men. The chances of developing it are particularly great after menopause, although this does not mean that menopause itself causes hypertension.

—Overweight. Many other factors may contribute to high blood pressure in certain individuals. Chief among these is obesity, which puts an added strain on the entire circulatory system.

Although there is no cure for high blood pressure, it can be successfully treated. The first step is discovering it. Then it may require medication over a lifetime, or perhaps modification in dietary or exercise patterns. But proper treatment is well worth the effort, to insure a longer, healthier life.

In addition to stripping small plant cover, says Wilshire, running 3,000 bikes at a time over the course wiped out 90 percent of small mammals that lived there.

When the State of California proposed two off-road vehicle recreation areas of 19,000 and 14,000 acres, the publisher of Cycle News said, "If they think they're going to put us on a reservation like the Indians, they're going to have to think again!"

The Bureau of Land Management in 1973 drew up an interim plan to control vehicle use, closing about 6 percent of the desert, leaving another 6 percent for unrestricted vehicle use and imposing varying restrictions elsewhere.

The motorsports fans feel the plan inhibits their activities; the conservationists say it is poorly enforced.

Increasing the fears of vehicle enthusiasts is a recent executive order from President Jimmy Carter, giving the bureau added authority to seal off areas of the desert when it feels vehicles are harming it.

The bureau's planning experts still are in the first phase of their work, an inventory of the huge arid region to pin down what is there to be managed.

The survey aims to determine the varieties and numbers of animals, plants and flowers in the desert; where mineral deposits are likely to be found; potential sources of geothermal energy; still-undiscovered archeological and historical sites like old stagecoach stations, burial grounds, gold mines, Indian dwellings; the quality and extent of grazing land, and other things.

Then, the Bureau will decide what uses will be allowed in what areas. Conflicts will be tough to reconcile, says planning staff chief Pfulb: "The areas of highest probable mineral value will probably be in the areas that also have the highest cultural and recreational value."

Results of these decisions will be pulled together in the plan due in September 1980 for congressional approval. Some of the $40 million authorized for planning will be used to manage the desert while planning is going on.

Funds will permit increasing the Desert Ranger force, from 27 to 72 rangers, and giving them law enforcement powers to combat vandalism which has become a big problem. For example, ancient rock art — pictographs and petroglyphs — has been spoiled or stolen; cactus plants have been carted away by landscapers; archeological sites have been looted by pothunters; the country's only desert tortoise natural preserve near California City has been vandalized numerous times.

The bureau also plans to build several "way stations" — one has been completed in Barstow — with displays and exhibits to inform visitors about the desert.

"We have taken the position that the desert is a national resource, and the guy in New Jersey who loves the desert has a rightful concern about it," says Bob Badaracco, outdoor recreation specialist on the desert planning staff.

'We're after people who defraud the public . . .'

Hunter enjoys diet of roasted politician

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "Too many scoundrels and rascals get into public life," says Gerald Gallinghouse in a southern drawl thicker than taffy.

As U.S. attorney in New Orleans, Gallinghouse is a hunter and the game he stalks runs from international grain firms to congressmen, from the governor to the state's attorney general.

A Republican, serving under a Democratic president, Galinghouse has won the praise of Democratic senators Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Dick Clark of Iowa.

A bald, heavily-built six-footer of 57 years, Gallinghouse has become known in cynical courthouse circles as "Sir Galahad."

His willingness to prosecute state public officials accused of running afoul of federal law has made him the feared and often detested huntsman of Louisiana politics.

"A U.S. attorney can't sit back and wait for somebody to bring in a ready-made case," he says.

With that philosophy, Gallinghouse has sent the state's previous attorney general to prison on a conviction of lying to a grand jury during an investigation of a loan company. He filed bribery charges against New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison, who was acquitted at the trial but lost his place in public life.

Gov. Edwin Edwards says that he's being stalked but hasn't been caught because he's done nothing illegal.

But a major contributor to Edwards' 1971 race for governor, Lewis Johnson, was nabbed. The wealthy New Orleans builder and former chairman of the state highway commission, was convicted of tax evasion, accused of claiming some campaign contributions as corporate tax deductions.

Johnson faces a year in prison. His case is still on appeal.

A lot of Gallinghouse's staff, believing his job would fall to a Democrat when President Carter went to the White House quit for other jobs. Gallinghouse gave no thought to quitting. He continued hunting.

He bagged a congressman, Democrat Richard A. Tonry, forced to resign during a federal investigation of election fraud. Twenty-one polling commissioners pleaded guilty to casting fake votes for Tonry.

Though Tonry was not implicated in vote fraud, he was imprisoned in August for a year under a law forbidding a candidate to accept individual contributions in excess of $1,000.

In the midst of that, Gallinghouse reported that he had come upon more rascals skinning taxpayers, neck to ankles, in suburban Jefferson Parish.

He predicts it could blow up into something worse than the Louisiana Hayride, a fabled scandal of the late 1930s. The Hayride involved some 250 indictments and an estimated $50 million in alleged graft and brought down the political machine which had survived the assassination of the Kingfish, Sen. Huey Long.

Senators Humphrey and Clark wrote Carter shortly before he took office last January asking that Gallinghouse be retained as U.S. attorney at New Orleans or moved to the Department of Justice.

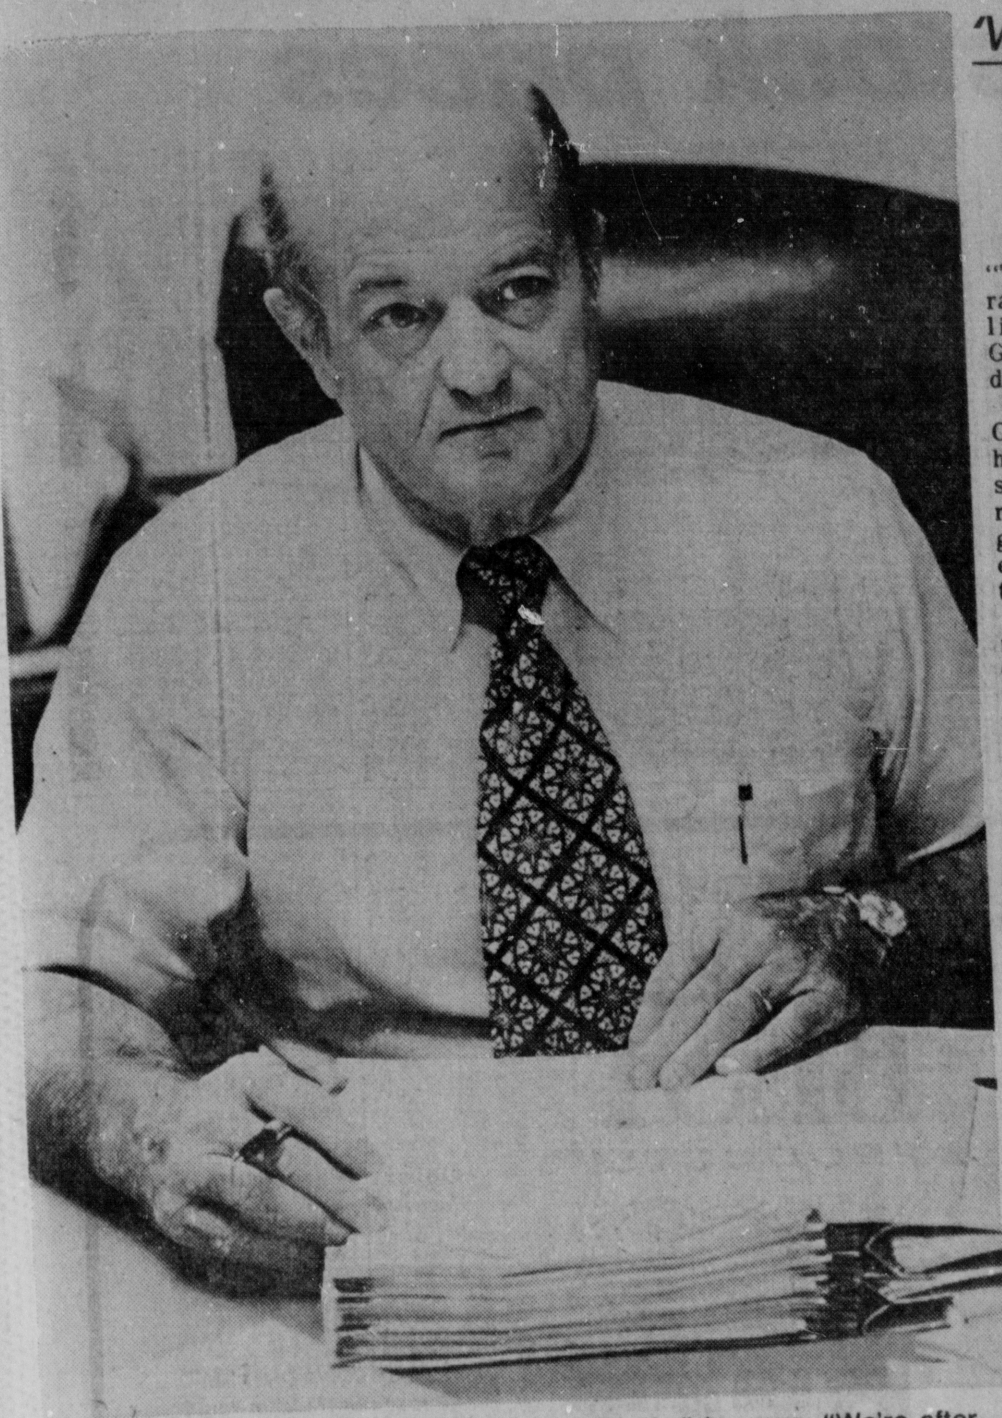
Their admiration stems from his investigation of the Great Grain Scandal, where Gallinghouse estimates the crooked take, mainly by big grain companies, topped $1 billion over a span of years. There were 71 convictions on fraud charges and four of the world's biggest grain export companies pleaded no contest and paid fines of $10,000, the maximum under the law. Congress imposed a new federal system of grain inspection.

Although Gallinghouse's hardnose style has piled up political points, he's suffered his share of penalties.

When President Ford was still in office, Gallinghouse was stymied in a bid to become a federal judge. The American Bar Association, which passes on nominations, said Gallinghouse was unsuitable. The ABA has no authority but is influential and Gallinghouse withdrew his name.

Ben Toledano, a New Orleans lawyer who backs the legal establishment but speaks his mind, was furious.

He said the big law firms used their influence to block Gallinghouse, and the ABA investigation committee "provided the perfect forum for the anonymous vilification of a decent, honorable man."



THE HUNTER — U.S. Attorney Gerald Gallinghouse, at work in his New Orleans office, seems to enjoy a diet of roasted politician basted with publicity. "Too many scoundrels and rascals get into public life," he says. "We're after the people who defraud the public of millions of dollars, skinning the taxpayer from the neck down and the ankles up."

NEW YORK (AP) — Within the next three months a decision is due that will have manifold consequences for investors, publicly owned companies, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the nation's stock exchanges.

The decision, to be made by the SEC, will involve the largest substantive issue that agency ever faced, according to William Batten, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange.

It might even be bigger for the exchange; it could mean its survival or death.

The exchange, however, is relatively helpless. It must sit and listen to the tick of the clock. Accused of crying wolf too often, its credibility on the issue involved has been diminished. It must rely on friends for help.

Those friends — corporations and investors especially — have sometimes failed to realize, said Batten in an interview, that their interests are entwined with the fate of NYSE Rule 390, which the SEC has proposed repealing by Jan. 1.

Rule 390 requires exchange brokers to bring their buy and sell orders to the exchange floor. That is, it prevents them from setting their own private price deals; it compels them to expose their orders to the full flow of bids and offers on its auction market.

Rule 390 is the linchpin of the auction market. Pull it, and the machinery could disassemble like the one-horse shay.

The SEC has already indicated the rule might be anticompetitive. Mandated by Congress to develop a competitive national securities market, the SEC and others tend to view Rule 390 as self-serving.

Batten said he concedes the anticompetitive feature of the rule but he points out, without contradiction, that it can also be defended as being competitive in that each order is exposed to every order, resulting in pricing efficiency.

"The most important competition is the competition among orders," he observed, adding that no market now offers more pricing interaction from more varied sources than does the exchange.

Should the rule be repealed before the national market system, a linkage of the existing exchanges and dealers, is in place — a system, more than incidentally, that the exchange has been accused of delaying — the securities industry might be fragmented.

Orders would be "taken upstairs" to brokers' offices, said Batten. That is, brokers would become dealers for their own accounts, buying blocks of stocks and selling them in their own minimarkets at their own prices.

As Batten sees it, transactions might become more costly because these dealers, selling from their own inventories, must be paid for their added risks. Surveillance and liquidity would be impaired. Small dealers would be squeezed out. Relatively inactive stocks would have even less of a market. And public confidence, and therefore the ability of corporations to raise funds, would be damaged.

"It doesn't make much sense if you wish to unify the system," he said. Whereas the SEC is mandated to create a national market, he said, removal of the rule at this time would have the opposite impact.

Still, there is some feeling in the industry that the SEC will back down on its proposal to eliminate Rule 390 and its equivalent on other exchanges, at least until the national system is developed.

Exchange officials aren't counting on that, especially with time shrinking. They are worried. They have had no firm indication of the SEC's thinking.

"We don't have any evidence the SEC has changed its basic position," said Batten. "Neither do we have any indication they are thinking of a delay; rumors and comments once in a while, but nothing official."

And so Batten and others at the exchange are soliciting help from their listed companies and from the public in general, which they maintain will be hurt even more than the exchange.

That is the reason for mailing of a long document to the chief executives of the exchange's more than 1,500 listed companies.

L.A. mart planning set

Fashions actions downtown

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you want a preview peek at next summer's fashions, don't look in Beverly Hills — the real action is in downtown Los Angeles, home of the world's largest wholesale clothing complex.

The California Mart, where more than 8,000 clothing lines are displayed, is the brainchild of Harvey Morse, who began acquiring downtown real estate 25 years ago and opened the 2-million-square-foot complex in 1963. Today, the mart has 1,700 showrooms where manufacturer "reps" display the wares of every major American wholesaler as well as French, English, Spanish and Mexican goods.

"In the old days, because wholesalers were geographically scattered throughout Los Angeles, it took out-of-town buyers nearly a week to complete their business. My idea was to centralize everything so they could do it all here."

The idea paid off. More than 10,000 buyers will visit the mart during its Oct. 10-16 "Fashion Week." The clothes selected during their mass buying spree will appear next spring and summer on the shelves of major department stores and fashionable boutiques throughout the United States.

Morse, who started in the ladies panties business, now leases showrooms to such names as Pierre Cardin, Yves St. Laurent, Countess Mara and London Fog. Also represented are clothing giants like Levi Strauss and J.C. Penney, as well as what Morse calls "fiber people" (Celanese, Monsanto, DuPont and Trevira.)

Manufacturers pay a flat rate for space and untold sums on decorating. The St. Laurent showroom is pure silver — rugs, sofas, walls and ceiling. Others have gold foil wallpaper or elaborate storefront facades that look like London's Carnaby Street transplanted. It's so difficult to get a showroom that tenants frequently get premiums of $10,000 or more for subletting their space and Morse recently announced a 650,000-square-foot addition to the mart.

Although his enterprise clearly has made the big leagues, Morse retains a paternal concern for the hundreds of small operators who lease his showrooms. A walking tour of the 13-story mart (each floor is devoted to a specific product line) is punctuated with comments on each showroom and a short history of its operations.

"Some of these places are like my grandchildren," says Morse, who says he isn't sure how many of his relatives work for him.

Although the mart attracts buyers from all over the world, a goodly portion of its business is with the California apparel industry, which United California Bank says will post a 12 per cent sales gain in 1977. The mart is a major part of that industry, whose sales have risen 98 per cent in the last six years, compared to a 32 per cent growth for the industry nationwide, according to UCB.

'Star Wars' rentals set

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (BW) — Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. has achieved $100 million in film rentals from the release of its feature film, "Star Wars," it was announced jointly by Dennis C. Stanfill, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, and Alan Ladd Jr., president, Twentieth Century-Fox Pictures.

The film will be released in most overseas markets in 1978.

Townhome clusters

Hacienda Creek is opening today

Hacienda Creek, a limited edition of well-priced adult and family townhomes opening today in the established community of Hacienda Heights, takes its name seriously.

Clusters of tan townhomes with red tiel roofs and a definite Spanish accent will immersed in rich landscaping highlighted by a namesake creek, a natural-looking lagoon and a quiet pond. Flowering shrubs will add splashes of color to the greenery of stately trees and thick lawns which hug the shorelines and the meandering walkways.

Known for exciting landscape concepts, Mayer Construction Corp., builder of Hacienda Creek, also includes a private recreation area complete with swimming pool, jacuzzi and tennis courts for the exclusive enjoyment of Hacienda Creek residents and their guests.

Priced from $63,500 to $76,500, Hacienda Creek offers three one-story and one two-story floor plans. The townhomes range in size from two to three bedrooms and 1,099 to 1,638 square feet of living space. All plans include two baths and attached two-car garages.

The interiors feature such attractions as solid core, raised panel front doors with security, deadbolt locks; entry foyers; casual kitchen nooks in addition to dining rooms; vaulted ceilings and gas fireplaces. All models offer attached, double car garages.

Modern kitchens include a full array of built-in appliances including a continuous-cleaning oven and a microwave oven. Luminous ceilings provide attractive, energy-saving lighting.

Other energy-saving features at Hacienda Creek are central gas heating and fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings.

Designed with outdoor living in mind, one plan features both an atrium and a generous patio, large enough for outdoor dining or a private spa. The two-story model includes both a patio and an upstairs balcony off the master suite as well as a distinctive skylit kitchen.

Hacienda Creek will be maintained by a professionally - managed homeowners association, insuring immaculate grounds and well groomed exteriors for enhanced resident satisfaction and long range value.

Hacienda Heights is located only 30 minutes from downtown Los Angeles and Orange County. A full service neighborhood shopping center is located one block from Hacienda Creek. Golf, tennis and horseback riding facilities are also nearby along with a mature school system and the Puente Hills Mall with its [illegible] shops, restaurants and major department stores.

To find Hacienda Creek, take the Pomona Freeway to Hacienda Boulevard. Turn south on Hacienda Boulevard to La Subida Drive. Turn right on La Subida to the models.

Record firm has record sales-profits

GARDENA (BW) — Integrity Entertainment Corp. announced that profits for the company's fiscal year ended June 30 nearly doubled on an 18 percent increase in sales.

Net income for 1977 was $844,514 as compared to $442,315 for 1976, an increase of 91 percent. On a per share basis, earnings were 29 cents primary and 27 cents on a fully diluted basis, compared to the prior year with earnings per share of 15 cents primary and 14 cents fully diluted.

Both years were based on approximately 2.9 million shares outstanding. Sales for the year were $46,069,661, up 18 percent from sales reported for 1976 of $39,146,486.

Fourth quarter earnings were $228,694, or 8 cents per common share on a primary basis and 7 cents fully diluted. This compares to the fourth quarter of 1976 with reported earnings of $375, or no cents a share. Sales for the fourth quarter were $12,107,606 as against $8,852,647 in the prior year.

1977 earnings of $844,514 represent a 25 per cent return on equity.

Leon C. Hartstone, president and chief executive officer, stated that in addition to the impressive increase in profits, the balance sheet has been strengthened measurably with stockholders equity as of June 30 amounting to $3,799,119, an increase of 29 percent compared with $2,949,355 in the previous year.

Integrity Entertainment Corp., from a standing start seven years ago, has expanded to a point where it is currently the largest record retailer in California.

Building permits slacken after surge

Building permits in the 200 largest cities eased 8.8 percent to $1,670,684,353 in April after surging to a record $1,831,077,441 in the previous month, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Nevertheless permit volume maintained a solid lead over 1976 activity as it topped by 17.8 percent the year-ago valuations of $1,418,036,240 in the similar month.

A 28.8 percent drop occurred in the building plans filed in New York. Plummeting to $14,827,964 from $20,838,429 a month earlier, New York's total shrank to less than one-half the $33,988,525 registered last year.

In the 199 cities outside New York, permit issuances eased moderately, 7.3 percent, to $1,655,856,389 but still represented the second highest volume on record, exceeded only by the previous month's unprecedented $1.8 billion. Gains between March and April were relatively rare but noteworthy jumps took place in Honolulu and Columbus, Ohio.

For the first four months of '77 building permits issued in the 200 largest cities soared to $6,003,585,428 a hefty 24.3 percent more than the first four months of the '76 period. Los Angeles and Houston continued to head the list in aggregate valuations of permits.

However, the sharpest increases from the comparable four months a year ago took place in Baltimore, Las Vegas, Memphis, Atlanta and Phoenix.

Klick earns sales award

Bob Klick, associated with Glee Realty, Upland and Claremont, has been awarded the sales award by the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors for having the largest single listing sold and the largest single sale for the month of August.

Klick, a former Merchandise Manager with the worlds largest retail chain is now in his third year of real estate and is active in residential resales, apartment sales and other commercial investments.

Klick and his wife Skippy, who is also in the real estate profession, are the parents of seven children. They reside in Claremont.

Apartment seminar planned

Realtors, attorneys and a former Real Estate Commissioner will be among the featured speakers at a seminar entitled, "A Case Study: Apartment Syndication," to be held at the Hotel del Coronado.

The two-day seminar will examine the legal, financial and management aspects of apartment syndication. It is being sponsored by the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, and will be held Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. The hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the registration fee of $75 for non-members, and $65 for members covers the seminar, one lunch and coffee.

Speakers and topics will include Ron Fenolio, San Francisco attorney, speaking on "Legal Implications;" Gary Aminoff, Certified Public Accountant and Realtor, on "Acquisition;" Edward F. Paul, C.A.R. Real Estate Syndication Chairman, on "Compensation;" William Schoeffler, Certified Property Manager and Realtor, on "Property and Partnership Management;" Burton Smith, past C.A.R. president and former California State Real Estate Commissioner, on "The Commissioner's Role;" and again, Gary Aminoff, who will close the seminar with "Winding Up The Partnership."

Applications for hotel reservations must be submitted by Oct. 15. Interested persons should send checks to Syndication Division, California Association of Realtors, 505 Shatto Place, Los Angeles, California 90020.

Top producer earns plaudits

James F. Carland, a former top producer in new home sales at Walker and Lee, has become the first Salesperson of the Month award winner at the new Montclair office.

"It's Jim's first month in our Resale Division, and he is already doing the fine job he did for our firm in new home sales," said Clark Cornman, Southern California vice president for the Resale Division.

Carland, who has been in real estate since 1973, joined Walker and Lee in 1976 and was the top producer in new homes sales five months in a row during his first year with the company.

Originally trained as an electrical engineer, Carland attended Iowa State University, Southern Methodist University, University of the Pacific and Claremont College. He holds a B.S. degree in electrical engineering and a Masters in Business Administration.

A native of Iowa, he now lives in Claremont with his wife, Wynn.

The Montclair office of Walker and Lee is at 9537 Central Ave., in the new Stater Brothers shopping center. The office was opened to expand service to Walker and Lee customers that originally purchased their homes through Walker and Lee from thirty of the new home developments in the Pomona Valley. Manager of the new office is Dave Darnell.

Realtor-associate clears hurdle

Virginia Bailey, Realtor-Associate of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors, has completed Course I on her way to the nationally recognized designation "Graduate, Realtors Institute" awarded by the Realtors Institute Division of the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, it was announced today by Dean Murphy, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

Earning this certificate requires completion of 30 hours of specialized real estate educational courses offered by CAR on subjects including: Introduction and organized structure of real estate, urban growth, legal and ethical environment, listing, selling, and personal and career management.

Hawkins sales holds pace

While most real estate firms have reported a slow-down in sales in recent weeks, buying activity appears to be holding a steady pace at 100 Herbert Hawkins Realtors offices in Southern California.

Sales volume for August totaled $57½ million, including cooperative sales. Total sales for the year reached half a billion dollars by Sept. 1, still maintaining a 50 percent growth rate over 1976.

$2.25 billion

Summer sets film record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that the nation's students are back in school the film companies are counting the summer theater receipts and smiling — mostly.

More money poured through the country's box offices than in any summer of movie history, according to the trade publicaton, Variety.

The paper's computer predicted the 1977 gross will reach $2.25 billion, which would be eight per cent above the previous record in 1975.

"Star Wars," of course, is the moneymaker of 1977, each week bringing new records and fresh grins to the 20th Century-Fox sales force. The latest box office gross compiled Wednesday: $154,819,488 of which the company received $104 million.

Fox's summer also was brightened by the slow but steady income from "The Other Side of Midnight." The latest box office gross: $33 million. A surprise bonanza has been a re-release of "Young Frankenstein," which collected a cool $17 million this summer.

"It looks as if we'll have one of the two top pictures of the summer in 'The Spy Who Loved Me,'" comments Mike Medavoy, production chief for United Artists. "It is shaping up as the biggest Bond picture ever, with a world-wide distributor's gross of between $65 and $75 million — $25 million domestic.

"'A Bridge Too Far' so far has a domestic gross of $20 million, below our expectations," continued Medavoy. "It's too early to teli about 'New York, New York,' but the box office gross has been $15 million domestic. When all the chips are down, including the television sale, the total rental should be $18 to $20 million, which should be the break-even point."

A happier film for United Artists is "Annie Hall," by far the biggest Woody Allen movie. It has grossed $15 million domestic and is doing surprisingly well in Europe.

Columbia could dispute United Artists' claim for the No. 2 movie of the summer. "The Deep" has reported a theater gross of $50 million domestic, with big sales abroad.

The summer brought good news to Walt Disney Productions. "The Rescuers" proved to be the studio's biggest moneymaker of cartoon features in their first release, amassing $16 million at the box office. "Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo" also performed well — $14 million.

Universal had a happy surprise in "Smokey and the Bandit," which was expected to be just another Burt Reynolds chase. Instead, it has chased up $30 million in domestic rentals, making it the studio's best performer since "Jaws."

"Smokey" helped ease the disappointments of Universal's other summer products. "MacArthur" did not return to the hearts of movie goers; "Rollercoaster" was a disappointment and the $21-million "The Sorceror" proved a disaster.

Another notable bomb: Warners' $11-million "Exorcist II: The Heretic." Columbia's $8 million "March or Die" decided on the latter.

Beside's being a summer of higher quality product, many observers credit more precise studio targeting of public tastes for the summer's record-breaking receipts.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST — Paul the Gorilla (Jim Boyd) and Jennifer of the Jungle (Judy Graubart) are stars of the popular children's television series, The Electric Company, opening its new season Oct. 17 on 272 member stations of Public Broadcasting Service.

Artist to lead classes

Ryo Terasaki will conduct workshops from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday and Oct. 22 at the Rowland Adult School art class at the Walnut Center, 476 Lemon Road, Walnut.

Miss Terasaki, a native of Southern California, specializes in florals, landscapes and seascapes.

Park building new coaster

Colossus, billed as "the longest, highest and fastest roller coaster ever built," will open next spring at Magic Mountain, Valencia amusement park.

The wooded "racing" coaster has two parallel tracks, transporting passengers on a side-by-side race to the finish line.

Colossus' double tracks, a total of 9,203 feet in length, will propel guests at speeds of more than 60 miles per hour, offering two "drops" in excess of 100 feet from top to bottom, surpassing those of any other roller coaster in the world.

The first wooden roller coaster built in Southern California in 30 years, Colossus in now under constrution.

The ride, covering some 10 acres, joins The Revolution, the Earth's biggest steel coaster, and 75 additional rides and attractions at the Valencia park. Magic Mountain had more than 3 million guests last year, placing it as one of America's top five amusement parks in annual attendance.

First decoys

A thousand years ago. Indians made the first decoys in order to attract birds to move within an arrow's range. They were made of bulrushes, woven and twisted into duck shapes.

Chorus seeks singers

The Claremont Community Chorale, conducted by Susan Winckler, is seeking new singers for the forthcoming season. It is open to all residents of the valley.

The chorale meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays in Room 101 at the Claremont High School. It is sponsored by the Claremont Adult School. The repertoire includes music by Vivaldi, Handel, Mendelssohn and Brahms.

Further information can be obtained at 626-3280 after 5:30 p.m.

MOVIE GUIDE FOR FAMILIES

G: "General Audiences." Film contains no materials most parents are likely to consider objectionable even for younger children.

PG: "Parental Guidance Suggested." Rating cautions parents they might consider some material unsuitable for children. It urges parents to inquire about the film before deciding on attendance.

R: "Restricted." Film contains adult-type material and those under 17 years of age are not admitted except in the company of a parent or adult guardian.

X: This is patently an adult-type film and no one under 17 is admitted. The age limit may be higher in some places.

"CHOPIN LIVES"
Garrison Theater Oct 8 Sat, 8:01 pm
Robert Guralnik, accomplished American pianist and actor, presents a highly polished drama-music portrayal of the character and music world of the composer-pianist. In elegant 19th Century attire, and using subtle stage effects, Guralnik "reincarnates" Chopin. A unique blend of great music and theatrics. "If technique to burn would set a theatre afire, Guralnik would be an arsonist of dangerous proportions." — N.Y. Times

Garrison Theater Oct 15 Sat, 8:01 pm
International darling, with the style of a Duchess and the brashness of a Cockney waif. Singing, playing the piano, indulging in zany irreverences, she serves a feast of non-stop comedy. Time Magazine termed her ". . . the crown princess of musical parody." "She spoofs the music world with calumny and outrageous slap-stick," said the Philadelphia Inquirer.

TUT GUARDIAN — This porcelain reproduction of the Egyptian goddess Hathor, who guarded the tomb of King Tutankhamen, will be on exhibit Friday through Oct. 14 at the San Marino branch of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of South Pasadena, 2355 Huntington Drive.

Painter to do pastel portrait

Laguna Beach artist Diana Neville will demonstrate portraits in pastels at a meeting of the Pomona Valley Art Association at the Claremont Library at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Miss Neville began studying art at age nine and began her professional portrait career at 14. She received scholarships to the Art Students League in New York and to the Chicago Art Institute and completed her studies at the Colorado Institute of Art in Denver.

Miss Neville's works are in many private and public collections throughout the nation. In her career she has sold more than 12,000 paintings, including portraits of such celebrities as Jimmy Durante, Sergio Franchi, Robert Goulet, Phil Harris, Wayne Newton, Lee Trevino, Frank Robinson, Wes Parker, Joe Louis, and numerous prominent politicians and statesmen.

Chaffey slates energy exhibit

The Wignall Museum-Gallery at Chaffey College will present "California, a Place in the Sun," an educational program on energy, starting Saturday.

The exhibit features nine modular display panels which illustrate solar energy conversion technologies. Various types of solar collection devices will be demonstrated outdoors. There will be an information center housing solar experts who will provide additional information.

This traveling exhibit is sponsored by the University of Colorado at Denver and was assembled by the staff of the Solar Energy Exhibition Program. This was originally founded by the National Science Foundation. Many other contributors have joined the NSF in making the program available to the public.

The exhibit is geared for people of all ages and was seen by over 46,000 during the first four months tour in Colorado. Director Elizabeth Kingman originated the project and carried out the research and planning.

Along with the opening of the Museum-Gallery an Energy Affair is being held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. throughout the campus. The exploration of "Black Hole Energies and Their Potential" will be presented several times in the Planetarium. In the Forum Building there will be a continuous showing of films about various energy forms and uses. In the theater, Congressman Jim Lloyd, member of the Sub-Committee on Science and Technology, and other energy experts will be speaking throughout the day.

Exhibits will be shown on how to heat your pool; generate your own electricity; heat and cool your house; pump water; run your car; cook, dry, and preserve food; generate oxygen and new air for your home; cook without fuel and distill water.

This show will be at the gallery through November 10. Docent tours will be available by reservation. Hours at the gallery are Monday through Thursday, noon to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Friday's hours are noon to 3 p.m. and Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m. There is no charge for admission.

MAGIC MOUNTAIN, Valencia amusement park, has gone on its fall and winter schedule. The park will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today and Friday and from 9 a.m. to midnight Saturday and Sunday. After that it will be open only Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

On the Hollywood scene

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Kim Hunter will guest star on NBC's "The Oregon Trail" on Wednesday, Sept. 28. . .

Jeffrey Byron will play Tatum O'Neal's boyfriend in "International Velvet". . . Cliff Pellow, Kim Milford, Isaac Ruiz and Richard Altman have joined the cast of MGM's "Stingray," starring Mark Hamill and Annie Potts. . .

Syndicated columnist Jack Anderson will begin a new television interview show, "The Truth — With Jack Anderson." Guests will agree in advance to a lie detector test, truth serum, voice analysis or other means to get the truth, said producer Ralph Andrews.

LEAVE HER TO HEAVEN — Samuel Ramey, in the title role of Boito's "Mefistofele," has no desire to have Johnanna Meier go to heaven in the New York City Opera production. It will be staged Nov. 17, and 19 and Dec. 6 in the Pavilion of the L.A. Music Center.

CCAA plans shows

The Chaffey Community Art Association will present a series of shows in the Ontario Public Library starting this month with an exhibit of weaving and stitchery by Gretchen Gilbert.

The fabric and fiber show may be viewed in the library's Garden Room through the month. The public is invited to a reception to meet the artist and hear her discuss her work next Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Gilbert's show will be followed by an exhibit of the works of Stan Book, local printmaker and painter, opening on Nov. 6, with a reception for artist on Nov. 13.

Highlighting December will be an exhibit of watercolors by CCAA president Robert George, well known Claremont artist. His paintings have been exhibited widely in California and have been shown elsewhere in the United States and Italy.

The December calendar will also feature a Christmas gala for members and guests with dinner and program.

Membership in CCAA is open to artists and all others interested in the arts.

COUNTRYSIDE—A LEWIS HOMES DEVELOPMENT

Sales now starting in Chino

'Countryside' in framing stage

The Countryside, a community of single-family homes in the southwest Chino area, is now in the framing stage of construction, with sales now starting, it was reported by Lewis Homes.

"We are making purchase available at this stage of construction in order to give buyers a sufficient period of time to sell the homes they're currently living in," said Lewis Homes president Richard A. Lewis.

The Countryside centers at Pipe Line Avenue, one block south of Carbon Canyon Road, alongside the colorful Chino Hills.

Its nearness in commuting time from cities in both Los Angeles and Orange County makes it a popular residential haven for families seeking rural-like environment, Lewis said.

The homes taking form will feature refrigerated air-conditioning, with Lewis noting that they will also be equipped with such built-in conveniences as microwave ovens and instant hot water dispensers.

Ranging in actual interior floor space from 1,416 to 2,223 square feet, they are being constructed in one and two-story and split-level elevations. Cedar shake roofs and a variety of architectural motifs will characterize the exterior styling.

Ceramic tile entries, wood-burning fireplaces, double front doors and master bedroom mirrored wardrobe doors or walk-in clothes closets are style appointments noted. Family rooms and breakfast nooks or eating counters are floor plan features.

Various models will also display guest powder rooms, formal dining rooms, wet bars and inside laundry rooms.

The Countryside's price range is from $64,000 to $85,000.

The development is reached from the Pomona Freeway by turning south on the Corona Expressway (71) to Pipe Line Avenue in Chino. The route continues south on Pipe Line to Carbon Canyon Road and right one block to the Lewis Homes sales center.

Information and floor plan drawings are obtainable at the site from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Century 21 opens new region offices

The rapid growth of Century 21 activities in the local area has necessitated the moving of Century 21 Region V's general offices to new and larger facilities.

Scheduled for Oct. 15, Region V will occupy the entire penthouse floor of the new Coast Federal Savings Building at 100 N. Citrus St. in West Covina.

The new facilities will utilize most of the 14,000 square feet of space on the sixth floor, centrally located in West Covina at Citrus Street and San Bernardino Freeway. Century 21 Region V supervises 160 brokers from the western part of the San Gabriel Valley to the Arizona border.

The educational and training facilities are more than doubled in size. The new facilities will enable the region to accommodate 250 people for pre-license and after license training, lectures, broker council activities and advertising meetings. Part of the expanded square footage includes workshop space for creation of more sophisticated pre-license training courses as well as implementation of the "2&1" after license training program. The development of future advanced sales management, and more sophisticated broker training. Broker services, accounting, administration and executive offices are doubled in size as well.

The new office structure will include a 2,000-square-foot executive suite, the administrative head office of Century 21 region V. Philip J. Yeager, regional director, and William P. Yeager, administrative director — will have space in the new complex. In addition to Region V, Phil and Bill Yeager also own and supervise regional operations in the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, where they have separate regional facilities.

Since its founding in 1972, Century 21 has become the largest real estate franchise operation in Southern California as well as in most major markets in the United States and Canada. Since 1972, it has grown to over 4,500 offices, with over 45,000 associates to serve the real estate needs of North America.

Special action urged by builders

California tax relief periled

California homeowners and renters will be deprived of 700-to-800 million dollars of property tax relief during the current tax year unless the Legislature is called into special session promptly, according to Jerome Blank, president of the California Association of Realtors.

Bland indicated that he had wired Governor Brown, Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy and Senate President Pro-Tem James R. Mills urging action to call a special session so that work can be completed on a tax bill by November 1.

"Unless legislation is adopted by the November 1 date," Blank said, "the administrative machinery necessary to deliver property tax relief to homeowners and renters during the present fiscal year cannot be accomplished." He indicated that the state surplus would permit such relief without any new taxes and that deferral of its use for this purpose would lead to pressures for possible diversion of these surplus funds to government spending programs.

The Realtor president pledged the continuing participation of his 100,000-member Associaton with the Legislature and the Governor's office in the evolution of a tax package, but stressed his organization's preference for a "simplified measure" that would include basically only four principles:

1. No new taxes or new tax authorizations — utilization only of the existing and continuing state budget surplus.

2. A limitation on property tax revenues which may be raised by governmental entities to insure long term continuance of relief.

3. Direct reduction of homeowners taxes through state rebates, credits or subventions to local governments.

4. Comparable renter relief.

Blank indicated that tax relief and property tax limitations continue as the "most pressing issue" confronting California.

"As Realtors who are in daily contact with homeowners, homebuyers and renters, we are accutely conscious of the public demand for tax relief and the need for it," Bland concluded.

CARET meeting planned

The California Association of Real Estate Teachers (CARET) will present a special conference at the 73rd annual Realtors convention in San Diego on Oct. 6 featuring Irv Johnson, well-known author and lecturer.

Johnson, a Ventura-based consultant, will present an innovative approach to selling real estate by mortgage-equity anlaysis based upon his recently published book of a similar title.

The session, scheduled for 2:15 p.m. at the Town and Country Hotel, is open to all.

The first of its kind, Johnson's book and presentation focuses on the analysis, valuation and sale of investment properties offering a simplified mortgage-equity technique which bypasses the complicated traditional methods with easy to follow procedures.

Johnson, with more than 30 years experience in the field, is a nationally recognized authority on real estate appraisal and investment analysis.

In his presentation, he will deal with two basic types of real estate investment: income producing properties such as apartment houses, shopping centers and office buildings; and non-producing properties purchased for appreciation, particularly land and older improved properties in transitional areas.

In each of these areas, he provides specialized assistance in every phase of the transaction from initiation to closing; analyzing and listing the property at a realistic and justifiable price, making a clear presentation to the client, building a knowledgeable basis for investment decision-making and financing the sale.

Numerous case histories are used to further explain the mortgage-equity technique, as are more than 70 patterned arithmetic procedures.

The California Association of Real Estate Teachers, a division of the 100,000-member California Association of Realtors, is an organization whose members have a prime interest in the improvement of instruction in continuing real estate education. CARET stresses those activities involved with teaching, particularly courses leading to the California Real Estate Certificate, the five basic courses necessary to meet requirements for the Brokers License Examination and other elective real estate courses.

Just a few of the quality homes at C/L Inc.'s Northview single-family home development in Alta Loma are still available, according to Gene Comer, sales manager for the exclusive sales agents, Walker & Lee.

"Buyers are quick to pick up on the value at Northview because they realize that C/L Inc.'s built-in promise to use the best materials and craftsmen for the money is a fact not a slogan," Comer says in explaining the success of the project.

High quality features found in the community include barbecue gas stubs, pass-through windows, wet bars, step-down living rooms, sloped cathedral ceilings, eye-catching cantilever hearth in master suite and separate master bedroom suite dressing area.

Each of the homes, priced from $72,950, has wall-to-wall carpeting, tempered sliding glass door to rear yard.

For safety and convenience, each home is also equipped with floor safes, smoke detectors and burglar alarms, laundry service areas and additional wall and ceiling insulation.

Exterior styling includes brick and stone vaneers, medium shake or tile roofing, all set on an extra spacious lot.

Pigeons win battle of nerves

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Hangar 122 at Oceana Naval Air Station is home for a flight of A6 Intruder jets and about 75 persistent pigeons.

Officials are trying to evict the pigeons, whose droppings are threatening the airplane's skin with corrosion.

"That many pigeons can leave quite a deposit," said Lt. Cmdr. Mike Schuster, a safety officer at Oceana.

Schuster said rotating beacons were installed in the hangar to generate a pattern of shifting shadows to scare the birds.

Several other devices were considered and rejected, including rubber snakes and effigies of owls and hawks.

Schuster says he has some other ideas: a barrier of plastic strips along the top of the hangar doors to keep pigeons out or stringing mesh netting throughout the hangar's roof area to keep the them from flying around or roosting.

"If they had no place to land, I think it would be a short time till they sought a more hospitable residence," he reasoned.

Meanwhile, the Oceana pigeon flock is "alive and healthy," he said.

Employees in decline

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An endangered species they're not — but Los Angeles County employees certainly are not as numerous as they were last year.

The record showed Monday that there were 76,425 employees on the roster at the end of the fiscal 1976-77 year. That is 4,776 fewer county workers than at the beginning of the fiscal year.

The figures show a significant decrease from the 86,000-employee high in the summer of 1975, and reflect the hiring freeze imposed by the County Board of Supervisors, officials said.

SALE OF SCRAP METAL
CALIFORNIA STATE POLYTECHNIC UNIVERSITY, POMONA
3801 West Temple Avenue
Pomona, California 91768

Sealed bids for the purchase of scrap metal will be received by the Procurement and Support Services Department, Building 75, until 10a.m., October 11, 1977, at which time they will be publicly opened and read. Award will be to the highest bidder meeting the University's requirements as set forth herein.

Prospective bidders may arrange to inspect the scrap metal located in the Corporation Yard of the Physical Plant Department by contacting Mrs. Elizabeth Crowell, Warehouse Manager (714) 598-4071.

Bids will be accepted only on the bid form which will be presented to each potential bidder at the time they inspect the scrap metal. No bids will be accepted which do not include a firm dollar bid for the entire lot of scrap metal. The bidder to whom the bid is awarded will be responsible for cleaning up the scrap metal storage area to the entire satisfaction of Mrs. Crowell.

The successful bidder will remove all scrap metal from the aforementioned site within two (2) consecutive working days commencing the day after the bid has been awarded to the highest bidder. Payment in full to the University will be made to the Property Clerk, Building 75, before the scrap metal is picked up. Payment must be made by certified check payable to "California State Polytechnic University, Pomona" in the full amount of the bid.

The University reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

The successful bidder agrees to indemnify and save harmless the University, its officers, agents, and employees, from any and all loss, damage, or liability that may be suffered or incurred by the University, its officers, agents, and employees, caused by, arising out of or in any way connected with the removal of the said property.

ATTENTION!

ALL FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME STATEMENTS FILED IN 1972 MUST BE REFILED IN 1977

(if the business is still operating)

AND ALSO

those with changes must be republished at the time of refiling

HERE IS THE LAW —

(Business and Professions Code)

Sec. 17917
(c) Where a new statement is required because the prior statement has expired under subdivision (a) of Section 17920, the new statement need not be published unless there has been a change in the information required in the expired statement.

Sec. 17920
(a) Unless the statement expires earlier under subdivision (b) or (c), a fictitious business name statement expires at the end of five years from December 31 of the year in which it was filed in the office of the county clerk.

Sec. 17917
(b) Subject to the requirements of subdivision (a), the newspaper selected for the publication of the statement should be one that circulates in the area where the business is to be conducted.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON THE FIVE-YEAR FICTITIOUS NAME LAW

1. QUESTION: When do new requirements in the Fictitious Name Law go into effect?
ANSWER: Beginning January 1, 1977, all statements filed during 1972 must be refilled with the County Clerk.

2. QUESTION: Who must file the required new statement of doing business under a fictitious name?
ANSWER: All individuals, partnerships, trusts, corporations and associations which operate under names not their own must refile.

3. QUESTION: Is there a statutory fee for refiling?
ANSWER: Yes, by law the County Clerk must charge $10.00.

4. QUESTION: Will 1972 registrants receive notification that they must refile in 1977?
ANSWER: Yes, the law requires the County Clerk to give such notice at least two months before the end of the year 1977. In Los Angeles County, where some 35,000 statements were filed and published in 1972, notification will begin to go to registrants in January, 1977, when all those who registered in January, February or March, 1972, will receive notice with the offer of forms for refiling. In April, similarily, those who filed in April, May or June, 1972, will be notified and in July those who filed in July, August or September, 1972; and in December those who filed in October, November and December, 1972.

5. QUESTION: Must statements when refiled be republished?
ANSWER: Yes, if there has been any change in the statement as originally filed in 1972.

6. QUESTION: What is a Fictitious Firm Name?
ANSWER: One that does not include the surname of the operator, or one that implies the ownership participation of others such as "Brothers", "Sons", "Associates", "Company"; or if a corporation owner, a name different from that registered in the Articles of Incorporation.

7. QUESTION: What is the purpose of the fictitious name procedure?
ANSWER: The requirements have been in effect in California since 1872 and are designed to protect the consumer by enabling him to identify the person or persons with whom he is really dealing.

8. QUESTION: Must all firms presently doing business under fictitious names file new statements?
ANSWER: Yes, all must refile under new code sections of the Business and Professions Code, 17900-17930 and also Sections 7540 and 101595 and Section 10522.5 of the Business and Professions Code.

9. QUESTION: Is it true that a mere change in the residence address of an individual or general partner doing business under a registered fictitious name excuses the party at the five year refiling interval from meeting the publication provision which requires a new publication "if there has been a change of information in the expired statement"?
ANSWER: The wording, "change in the residence address" in Section 17920 of Business and Professions Code is confusing: It has reference only to the statutory expiration of any Fictitious Business Name Statement "40 days after any change in the facts." Changes in residence address are specifically exempted from the changes which invalidate a fictitious name filing. The requirements for publication with "any change in the information" is in Section 17917 of the Business and Professions Code. It is not related to the exemption in Section 17920. It has been held that change in any residential address, as well as business address, is a "change in information" and will therefore require republication upon renewal at the end of any five year renewal period.

10. QUESTION: Must statements filed in 1973 be refiled in 1978, those filed in 1974 in 1979, and so on?
ANSWER: Yes, statements must be refiled every five years.

11. QUESTION: What is the penalty for failure to file and publish?
ANSWER: One penalty will be inability to entertain a court action until the law has been complied with. In addition, most banks demand evidence of filing and publication prior to opening an account under a fictitious name.

12. QUESTION: On a first filing must there be a newspaper publication?
ANSWER: Yes, the refiling law does not excuse first filers from meeting the statutory publishing requirements.

13. QUESTION: Where are the printed forms to be obtained for this filing and publication procedure?
ANSWER: Free forms and service are available at this newspaper office or at any office of the County Clerk.

14. QUESTION: What is the cost of filing and publication?
ANSWER: Statutory filing fee for the Fictitious Name Statement, either new or refiled, inclusive of mandatory certification of a copy by the County Clerk, is $10.00. Publication charge for the four insertions of the notice is determined by the newspaper.

15. QUESTION: Can two fictitious name businesses operating under different names of the same address and owned by the same person or persons be filed and published under a single statement?
ANSWER: Yes, more than one business name can be listed on the single statement provided all have the same address of business. Each separate business is to be indicated.

16. QUESTION: After January 1, 1977, will all new filings require publication?
ANSWER: All new filings will require publication.

17. QUESTION: Precisely what is the process for publishing?
ANSWER: Publication must be made once a week for four weeks in a qualified newspaper circulating in the area of the affected business. Publication must be commenced within 30 days after filing. A proof of publication must be filed with the County Clerk within 30 days after completion of publication.

18. QUESTION: What other values do registrants gain through publication of Fictitious Firm Name?
ANSWER: Evidential proof of priority is established in the event competitors later use or file under the same name. Also, there is direct advertising value for the firm through multiple insertions of name and address of the business, it being noted that newspaper frequently print such names in black face type in capital letters, separately spaced.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

JENNIFER MAGLEY OF MASSILLON, OH, ASKS:

"WHERE DOES CHOCOLATE COME FROM?"

CHOCOLATE IS MADE FROM THE SEEDS, OR BEANS, OF THE TROPICAL CACAO TREE. THE BEANS GROW IN PODS THAT LOOK LIKE LONG CANTALOUPES. AT THE CHOCOLATE FACTORY, THE BEANS ARE ROASTED AND GROUND. THE GRINDING ACTION MELTS THE FATTY "COCOA BUTTER" INSIDE THE BEANS, AND TURNS IT INTO A THICK CHOCOLATE LIQUID. WHEN POURED INTO MOLDS, THE LIQUID HARDENS INTO CAKES OF UNSWEETENED CHOCOLATE.

How to use Liquid Protein to lose 8-80* lbs. fast while naturally commanding your Hypothalamus Gland to stop sending hunger signals

*8—80 lbs. is the weight loss range of Dr. Litten's patients.

HYPOTHALAMUS GLAND
Natural Appetite Suppressors

Dr. Neil Litten explains how his "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control" stops hunger. Contrary to popular belief, your hunger is not controlled by your stomach. It's controlled by your Hypothalamus Gland. Approximately 24 — 48 hours after you begin taking Liquid Protein on Dr. Litten's system, your body chemistry will change. Your body will begin to generate Natural Appetite Suppressors. These suppressors will travel to your Hypothalamus Gland and quiet your 'Hunger Control Center.' The article below will explain how you can safely lose all the weight you want — faster than you ever have before — without hunger.

"New Jersey Doctor uses Liquid Protein to help patients change their body chemistry to achieve quick and lasting weight loss".

©1977

By Richard Swan

It's all in your head! When you're hungry, this old saying is certainly true. Most people think hunger is controlled by their stomachs. It isn't. Your 'Hunger Control Center' is located in your head. It's called your Hypothalamus Gland.

By using Liquid Protein on Dr. Litten's "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control," you can naturally command your Hypothalamus Gland to stop sending hunger signals. You can then lose all the weight you want, faster than you ever have before, without hunger. Since all of us have a Hypothalamus Gland – everyone, whether 8 lbs. or 80 lbs. overweight, can succeed with Dr. Litten's system.

How much can you lose? Some people lost 13–15 lbs. the first week. Others lost 20–24 lbs. in just 14 days. Total weight losses of 20, 30, 50 and even 80 lbs. were recorded. The number of lbs. you can quickly shed and keep off will depend on how much you're over your ideal weight.

How is it possible to safely lose weight that fast without hunger? As a copywriter, that's what I wanted to know. So I flew to Cherry Hill, New Jersey and set up an interview with Dr. Litten. Here's what I found out.

Swan: How does your system work?

Dr. Litten: My system works in two steps. First, you temporarily change your body chemistry to stop hunger signals. This allows you to lose weight very quickly without the usual torturous hunger pangs. In step two, you permanently change your 'heavy body chemistry' to a 'slim body chemistry.' Like a slim person, you'll crave food less, so you'll keep the weight off.

Swan: Why do you call your method the "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control?"

Dr. Litten: Because medical research has finally revealed what overweight people have known all along – they have a different body chemistry than slim people. The key to losing weight and keeping it off is to attack the 'heavy body chemistry' problem.

Swan: What is a 'heavy body chemistry?'

Dr. Litten: Heavy people have more fat cells and larger fat cells than slim people. This gives them a 'heavy body chemistry.' A 'heavy body chemistry' has three drawbacks. First, it causes heavy people to crave food more than slim people. Second, it speeds up the conversion of food into new fat cells. And finally, it prevents fat cells, which are already there, from being burned up.

Swan: It sounds like a stacked deck. But can't a heavy person still lose weight and keep it off if they have will power?

Dr. Litten: Not really. And again the problem is body chemistry. When you starve yourself, your body begins to burn up fat for its energy. It also burns muscles and vital organs. You literally become a cannibal. Since some of the weight you lose is muscle and vital organs, you still have too many fat cells. Which means that you still have a 'heavy body chemistry.' As soon as you quit your starvation diet, your mind gives eat, eat, eat signals to repair and replace your burned up muscles and vital organs, you then gain all your weight back and sometimes more.

Swan: Can this vicious circle ever be broken?

Dr. Litten: Yes. But, you'll never break it with pills, fad diets, or by using will power to starve yourself; because none of these methods attack the real problem – a 'heavy body chemistry.' But my "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control" does.

Swan: How can you change your body chemistry?

Dr. Litten: The key to my system is a special liquid protein. You drink it 5 times a day. Approximately 24-48 hours after you begin my system, your body chemistry will change. Your body starts to generate natural appetite suppressors. These suppressors travel to your Hypothalamus Gland and quiet your 'Hunger Control Center.' Because of this, 97% of the people who have followed my system experienced no hunger when they skipped eating.

Swan: What about step two of your system?

Dr. Litten: Again, the key to step two is liquid protein. As you quickly lose weight, your protein requirements are taken care of by the liquid protein – not by burning muscles and vital organs. You lose what you want to lose, namely fat cells and excess water. As your fat cells quickly melt away, so does your 'heavy body chemistry.' And since you haven't burned up muscles and vital organs, there are no eat, eat, eat signals to replace these tissues.

Swan: What happens when you reach your ideal weight?

Dr. Litten: The obvious benefit is that you'll have a slimmer, sexier figure. But there's an extra bonus. Along with your attractive outside appearance, you'll now have a 'slim body chemistry.'

Swan: Exactly what do you mean by a 'slim body chemistry?'

Dr. Litten: We all know the slim person who eats what he wants. He enjoys food more than you because he is not guilty about eating. But he never puts on any weight. You'll have his or her body chemistry. You'll naturally crave food less. You'll be able to eat delicious well-balanced meals and totally satisfy your hunger. But since you'll be eating less, you won't gain your weight back.

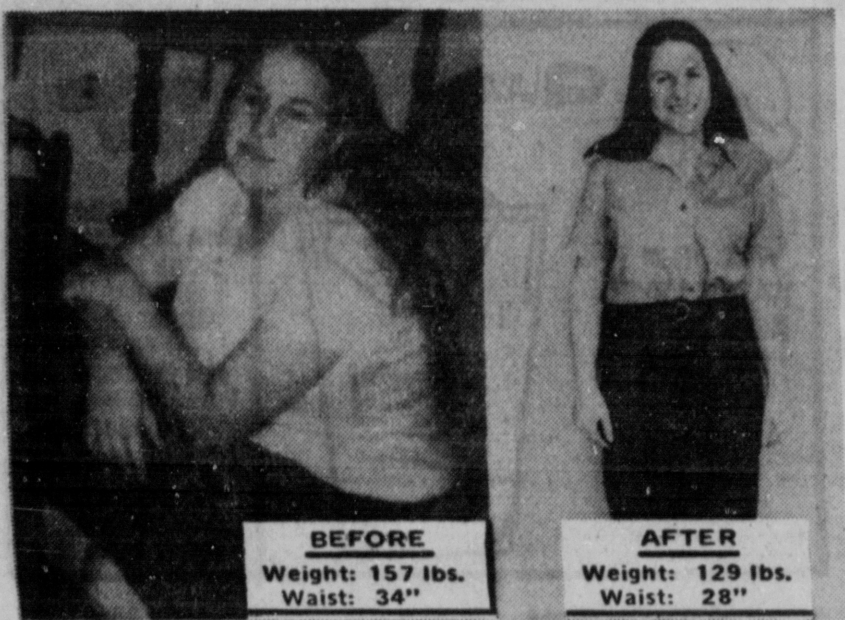
Swan: Is your system safe?

Dr. Litten: It's completely safe for anyone in normal health. In fact, I'm so proud of my system I invite you to show it to your family doctor.

Swan: It sounds great. But I'm from Missouri. Do you have case histories of successful users?

Dr. Litten: Yes. I can give you their stories and even supply before and after photos.

Dr. Litten supplied hundreds of case histories and before and after photos. Since space is limited, I've just shown two before and after photos, along with three stories. But before you read them, let me mention this. I did my own research and found that leading universities have conducted studies which verify the effectiveness of Liquid Protein for achieving rapid weight loss.



"On Dr. Litten's system, I had no side effects and mostly lots of energy – more energy than I ever had in my life. Getting on the scale every morning is a joy. I've lost 28 lbs. and I'm still losing. It's a pleasure now to buy clothes in small 7–9 sizes, instead of 15–16 or larger. It's the only diet I have ever been on that I have never felt hungry, irritable or tired. My whole life and outlook has changed – a new job, new clothes. I take much, much better care of myself than ever before."

"Dr. Litten's system has given me the best results I have ever had out of all the diets; grapefruit, diet pills and Stillmen diets. On Dr. Litten's system, I lost 8 lbs. the first week and then went on to lose 44 lbs. As a fireman, I was concerned about the loss of strength, which I had experienced on other diets. But I was able to work without any loss of strength. Since going off the system, I haven't gained one pound back."

"I was going into a size 18 dress when I started Dr. Litten's system. I lost enough weight, 43 lbs., to fit into my 23 year old daughter's size 5 dungarees. It is an easy and fast way to lose weight. It's not boring. I lost 10 lbs. the first week and I didn't feel the usual hunger pangs."

Betty Mahoney
Cherry Hill, New Jersey

BEFORE: 260 lbs. 48" waist
AFTER: 178 lbs. 37" waist

"When I started Dr. Litten's system, I was a diabetic and had hypertension. I lost 13 lbs. in seven days. While taking the protein, I was never hungry and I worked in a restaurant, where I would pick constantly before. I was weighed every 3 days and every time I was weighed, I constantly lost 1 to 3 lbs. Now that I'm off the program – and 82 lbs. lighter – I'm just not as interested in food as I was."

AFTER: 114 lbs. 26" waist

"I experienced no hunger from the beginning. I lost 53 lbs.–8 lbs. in the first week. During my 'fat days' I slept more than 12 hrs. a day. Soon after I began the system I became an early morning riser–my energy was abundant."

Shirley Watson
Delran, New Jersey

Dr. Litten's system worked for Betty, John and Shirley and can work for you too.

WHAT CAN THE SYSTEM DO FOR YOU?

After you follow his system, the following benefits can be yours:

- You can 'safely' lose weight faster than you ever have before.
- Lose inches off your waist, hips, thighs and banish ugly cellulite bumps.
- You won't be hungry, so little will power is needed.
- Once you start, you must lose weight. If you follow his system properly, it is impossible to fail.
- You can lose as much as you want. Just stick to the system to reach your ideal weight.
- After you lose your weight, you can keep it off with your new 'slim body chemistry.' You'll actually crave food less.

Dr. Litten's system is not available anywhere, except in the New Jersey area. But you can order his system right now, direct by mail.

HOW CAN YOU ORDER THE SYSTEM?

If you wish to order Dr. Litten's "Weight Loss System of Body Chemistry Control," which includes a supply of special liquid protein and an easy-to-understand instruction booklet, simply do this: Write "Weight Loss System" and your name and address on a piece of paper and send it along with $9.95 plus $1 postage & handling in cash, check or money order. (Make checks payable to Weight Loss Research Group.) If you have Master Charge or VISA, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. name of card B. card number C. card exp. date.

Mail your orders to WEIGHT LOSS RESEARCH GROUP, 536 Cleveland Ave. N.W., Dept. G–72, Canton, Ohio 44702.

Dr. Litten's system is backed with a 100% money back guarantee. After following his system, you must safely lose weight faster than you ever have before and keep it off. If this does not happen, or if you're dissatisfied in any way, just send it back. You'll receive every penny of your money back – no questions asked.

Supplies of liquid protein are becoming limited. To make sure you get Dr. Litten's system, why not order right now, while you're thinking about it. If you have any questions, feel free to call me, Richard Swan. at (216) 455–1474.

Lee Majors stars as a Vietnam veteran trying to rehabilitate his best friend, who has become bitter and withdrawn after being maimed in war action he feels Majors could have prevented in "Just a Little Inconvenience," an NBC World Premiere Movie, Sunday at 9PM. Frank Logan (Majors) undertakes to teach the embittered Kenny Briggs (James Stacy) to ski again despite the loss of an arm and a leg. Logan hopes this will snap Briggs out of his depression and return him to a useful and happy life. At the ski lodge, Briggs falls in love with Nikki Klausing (Barbara Hershey), a young school teacher on vacation but the romance is complicated by his lack of self-esteem.

A young college girl with old-fashioned virtues has a Cinderella love affair and finds herself and her unborn child entangled in an adoption racket in "Black Market Baby," the ABC Friday Night Movie (9PM), starring Linda Purl and Desi Arnaz Jr. When Anne Marcarino (Purl) meets pre-med student Steve Aletti (Arnaz) during her first year at college, she tries at first to avoid his attention, but soon finds herself deeply in love. When she tells him that she is pregnant, Aletti suggests that they see a certain lawyer, Mr. Freemont, who will place the baby in a home without going through the red tape of an adoption agency. Anne has to make the crucial decision of keeping the child or giving it up to a childless couple.

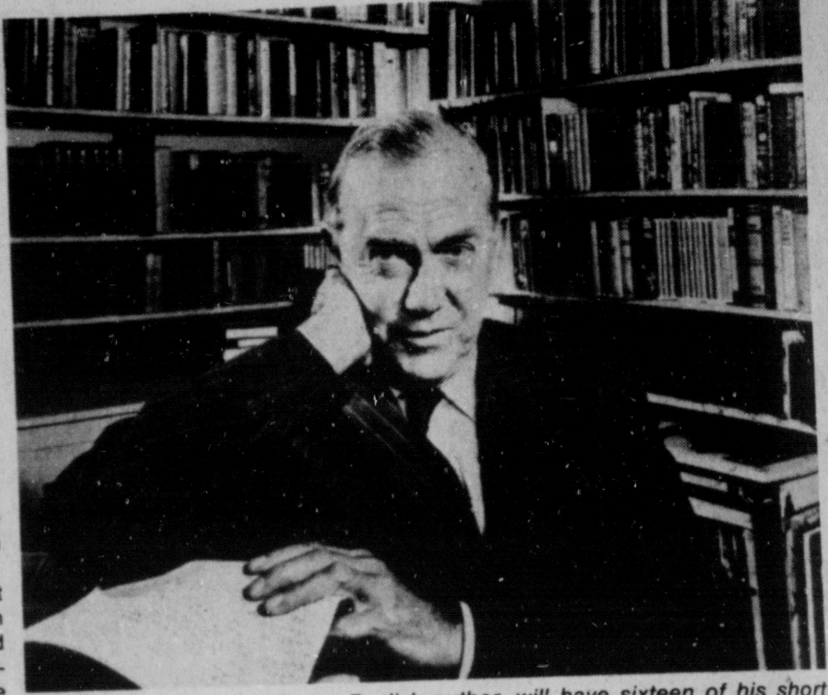
SHADES OF GREENE

Whether color or black and white, local television screens will be displaying 16 variegated new "Shades of Greene," beginning Sunday at 8PM on KCET, Channel 28.

The popular British series, produced by Thames Television, is adapted from 16 short stories by eminent English author Graham Greene. Set to air in 12 weekly hour-long programs, "Shades of Green" marks the first time the author's short stories have been adapted to another medium. Featured performers are such international stars as Paul Scofield, Donald Pleasence, Genevieve Page, Denholm Elliott, Elaine Stritch and John Gielgud.

Greene's fine sense of story, his quiet humor, his clear and deep compassion for the downtrodden and betrayed, and above all his non-judgmental understanding of the human condition, have made him immensely well-read by people all over the world. During the last 40 years, films have been made from such global bestsellers as "Brighton Rock," "The Third Man," "Our Man in Havana," "The Quiet American" and "Orient Express."

Each of the stories brought to life in "Shades of Greene" displays Greene's gift for drama and surprise, as well as his unique insight into human relationships and ambitions, passions and weaknesses. Greene himself adapted one short story, "Alas, Poor Maling," for the series. Other stories include "Special Duties," a story about a wealthy old reprobate who tries to buy his way into Heaven; "When Greek Meets Greek," in which a pair of aging con artists are bested by the younger generation; and "Cheap in August" wherein a reserved Englishwoman ventures outside of her tight little world during a Jamaican vacation. Their television adaptations bring to a still wider audience the works of a man, considered by many to be England's greatest living writer.



Graham Greene, the eminent English author, will have sixteen of his short stories represented on television in Shades of Greene, a weekly series of twelve hour-long broadcasts, on Channel 28 at 8PM, on Sundays.

VISIONS RETURNS

If a network executive were to suggest that a series of dramas—sometimes controversial, written by largely unknown writers and acted by less than well-known actors—be put on American television, that executive might might just be told to pack his briefcase and change channels.

Such a series, however, not only made it on the air last year, through the energy and talent of Barbara Schultz, artistic director of the series, but is returning for a second season this year. "Visions" the highly-acclaimed, Peabody Award-winning drama anthology, returns on Sunday at 10PM on KCET, Channel 28.

The teleplays and films of "Visions" second season are again wide-ranging, controversial and provocative, and most of the playwrights and many of the actors are not exactly household words. The opening night presentation is Murray Mednick's "Iowa," starring Bethel Leslie, Warren Stevens, Carol Fox and Peggy Feury. The play concerns a midwestern family's reunion in California, a gathering of three generations in which painful and loving memories are shared and the participants learn something about themselves. Other contemporary themes will be interpreted in succeeding weeks: "Freeman," starring Dick Anthony Williams, Lou Gossett and Paulene Myers, is about a young black man unable to find his place in society; "Alambrista" follows a youthful Mexican illegal alien on his odyssey through Tijuana to the California agricultural fields; and "The Dancing Bear," starring Charles Durning and Tyne Daly is a tragicomedy about an unemployed character actor in Hollywood—a man who refuses to give up hope.

These and other new plays, as well as repeat performances of seven of the finest from the first "Visions" season, will provoke conversation, thought, tears, and laughter, says Barbara Schultz. She should know. "Visions" has been her vision from the beginning.

Domingo Ambriz plays an illegal alien in "Alambrista."

FOREVER FERNWOOD

In the beginning...Norman Lear created Mary Hartman. Mary Hartman. which begat Fernwood 2Night. and now the new Forever Fernwood (Fernwood without Mary)...premiering Monday. at 11PM on KTTV Channel 11.

Like its sensational predecessor. Forever Fernwood is a soap opera that lathers the funnybone and bubbles with wild abandon.

Forever Fernwood picks up where MH2 left off...well sort of. Tom Hartman (Greg Mullavey) unable to cope with life now that Mary is gone. has set up housekeeping in his car. Heather (Claudie Lamb) Hartman's life is changed by a religious experience in the park gazebo. George Shumway falls into a vat of rustoleum at the plant and is given a complete lift by the doctors at the Fernwood Receiving Hospital. and comes out looking just like Tab Hunter. Martha Shumway (Dody Goodman) is afraid to go to bed with the "new" George (Tab Hunter). And Cathy (Debralee Scott). the Shumway's amorous daughter is seeing her father in a new light.

The Haggers (Mary Kay Place and Graham Jarvis) are learning about the high price of success by the new lows it's bringing to their love life. Loretta's on the road and Charlie isn't. Absence may make the heart grow fonder. but Charlie is not the only one in love with Loretta and Loretta is not the only one in love with Charlie. Complicating things are Loretta's new manager Jerry Hubbard (Fred Willard) and Harmon Farinella (Richard Hatch) her ardent admirer.

The Jeeters (Dabney Coleman and Marian Mercer) are flat broke and living out of garbage cans...but he is still Mayor. make no mistake about that!

Then there's the Major sisters. accident-prone Penny (Judy Kahan) who has a crush on Tom Hartman....and her beautiful but mean sister Eleanor (Shelly Fabares) who is confined to a wheelchair. and determined to win Tom's love...no matter what!

CLOSE-UP

WHAT'S NEW!

So what's new with Betty White? Well, quite a lot—and maybe not so much—depending on how long it's been since your television set went on the blink and whether or not you ever bothered to have it repaired!

Betty White is the star of her own television series this season, The Betty White Show (Mondays at 9PM on CBS). But what's new about that? She was the star of her own Los Angeles "talk" show in the early 1950s, and she did it "live" thirty hours each week!

Okay, how about the fact she won two Emmy Awards in consecutive years for her performance as Sue Ann Nivens, the "happy homemaker" on The Mary Tyler Moore Show. What's new about that? She received her first Emmy nearly a quarter of a century ago.

And if you noticed she was missing from the New Year's Day Rose Parade festivities on television, you were right. But only after doing it for twenty years, and it was one of her all-time favorite projects. Strangely enough, her Rose Parade "image" may have been one of the factors involved when critics and viewers alike expressed great astonishment over Betty White as Sue Ann Nivens, a character light years away from the neat, wholesome, squeaky-clean lady usually seen on television.

"I don't know how I ever got that 'goody-two-shoes' image in the first place," Miss White protests. "I guess it was the housewife role in that other series of mine, Life With Elizabeth, or maybe some of my TV commercials, but Sue Ann saved my life. I felt as if I were born again. I'd waited all my life for that kind of role."

"I think when we first started talking about a series for me," Miss White explains, "it was after Mary had decided to hang up her Mary Richards character and go on to other things. We all felt it would be a mistake to attempt to make Sue Ann Nivens the lead in a series. She was not only just plain evil (and I loved her for it) but she was pretty much one-dimensional, too. So we compromised. Joyce Whitman is slightly softer and more vulnerable which makes her a lot easier to live with week after week, but she also inherited a lot of Sue Ann's skill with a 'bitchy' line so, hopfully, we'll not lose Sue Ann completely but Joyce will have a little more depth and range."

KABC-TV MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE

abc 9:00 PM 7

Marj Dusay guest stars as a near-suicide whose attempt at self-destruction brings Barnaby back to reopen the kidnapping case which sent her husband to prison 11 years earlier in a special two-hour episode of Barnaby Jones being filmed for Fall broadcast on CBS. Bradford Dillman aso guest stars as a wealthy land developer who had known the kidnap victim's father and becomes a central figure in the developments shedding new light on the case in which Barnaby had presented key testimony years before.

Raymond Singer, co-starring in "Operation Petticoat," comedy series premiering this fall on ABC, came to Hollywood 18 months ago "just to look around" before returning to New York for a stage engagement. But within a week he was cast in his first television role–followed, in rapid succession, by 36 more.

"I don't suppose that's a record," Raymond says, "but it seems like a nice average."

Wife Beating. Some call it America's second most popular indoor sport.

Tragically, it most often goes unreported and the husbands go unpunished. And even if the wife decides to leave... where will she go? What will she do?

This week, Christine Lund provides the answers in a 4-part Eyewitness News Closeup.

You'll learn the eight danger signs of the potential wife-beater.

And you'll find out how you can fight back in your own way.

Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., established as one of television's top drawing stars, has been signed to co-star with Fred Astaire and Helen Hayes in the Ross Hunter production, "A Family Upside Down." In the sympathetic role of Astaire and Miss Hayes' son, a man who has all the willingness to help his parents, but is frustrated by a set of circumstances he is unable to control. It is a characterization in dramatic contrast to that of the popular FBI agent which made Zimbalist a perennial television favorite.

* * *

Della Reese has been set to star in a half-hour comedy pilot to be produced by the Komack Company for NBC with James Komack as executive producer. Pilot episode will be titled "Della and Son: and will co-star Franklyn Ajaye in the role of Della's son, a rolling stone who tries to con his mother into crazy business deals. Jack Donohue will direct from a script by Jerry Ross and Gary Belkin.

* * *

Dean Jones and Paul Sand have been signed to star in the Rothman/Wohl Production, "Once Upon A Brothers Grimm," a two-hour original musical adventure airing Thanksgiving Eve on CBS. The stars will be seen as Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm who collected the legends and lore that became the world-famous fairy tales.

The script by Jean Holloway will be directed by Norman Campbell. Academy Award-winning lyricist Sammy Cahn and Tony Award-winning composer Mitch Leigh are writing the score.

It will be like old Hollywood days when Donny and Marie Osmond move their show to new studios in Utah. Outside the soundstage, the co-stars of ABC's Donny & Marie will display plaster footprints and handprints of various guests who have appeared on the show. Currently they are gathering the mementoes in Hollywood during the tapings of the show.

* * *

Lawrence-Hilton Jacobs, Freddie Washington on ABC's Welcome Back Kotter, is getting ready to cut his first album for ABC Records. In order to keep in tune, Jacobs has been practicing both his singing and piano during breaks in production of the popular comedy series.

* * *

Klatu, a domestic robot, has been signed by executive producers Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts to guest-star in "The Innocent" episode of Logan's Run, MGM-TV's science fiction adventure series for CBS, starring Gregory Harrison, Heather Menzies, Donald Moffat and Randy Powell. A product of Quasar Industries, Inc. of Rutherford, New Jersey, Klatu will play the role of "Nanny," a robot housekeeper assigned to care for a young woman who is the only human being in an energy-field-protected complex discovered by Logan, Jessica and Rem as they try to escape a band of pursuing Sandmen.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR MARIE OSMOND, star of Donny and Marie

As the only girl in a family of eight brothers, have you ever wanted a sister? —C.R., Galveston, Texas

● Sure. I wanted someone to play dolls with me. My brothers never would. Good thing about being the only girl was that I didn't have to share a room. They all doubled up. If I felt really left out, Mom would pretend to be my big sister. Now I'm almost grown up, and I still think of her as my pal and big sister.

FOR BOB BARKER, daytime host of The Price Is Right

How do you remember all those jokes and funny lines you spout so easily? —P.D., Boca Raton, Fla.

● It's all spontaneous. I don't keep a joke file or use cue cards. I use them only if I have to give the name of a foundation or fund and to keep track of which act comes next. I can study acts two weeks in advance, put them away and not refer to them until time to use them — and it all comes back to me.

FOR EDITH HEAD, designer

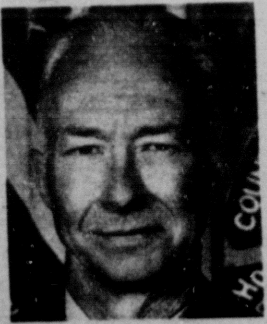
Will dresses go out of style in the next decade? —Gladys Kent, Lansing, Mich.

● No. I think dresses will be with us for quite some time. So will pants. I think this coexistence will continue for the next decade, and after that, your guess is as good as mine.

FOR LT. GEN. A.J. GOODPASTOR, Superintendent, U.S. Military Academy, West Point

Do you consider your job as challenging as your duties when you were Supreme Allied Commander and staff secretary to Eisenhower? —I.E.G., Forest Hills, N.Y.

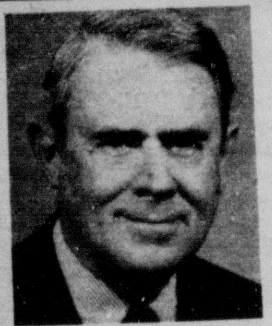
● I see my tasks less as a challenge than as an opportunity to contribute to the self-development of present and future members of the "Long Gray Line" of West Pointers. Whether as Supreme Allied Commander, Presidential staff secretary or Superintendent at West Point, the most rewarding thing is the opportunity to be of service to our country and people.



FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

There's an actress on Operation Petticoat [Jamie Lee Curtis, right] who looks like a star whose name I can't remember. Is she the daughter of a performer? —G.V., Zanesville, Ohio

● You must be thinking of Janet Leigh, who was married to actor Tony Curtis. In addition to Operation Petticoat, their daughter, Jamie, has been in Quincy and Columbo. She lives with Janet and her stepfather (stockbroker Robert Brandt) in Beverly Hills. She's an all-round athlete, plays the guitar, paints in oils, is a voracious reader and an enthusiastic photographer.



FOR CYRUS VANCE, Secretary of State

Where are you getting the money for the expensive antiques you're using to redecorate the Diplomatic Reception Rooms? —Mrs. L. Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● The antiques in the Diplomatic Reception Rooms at the State Department are gifts from individual Americans to their fellow citizens. In some cases, the antiques are lent or donated to the nation by private citizens; in others, they are purchased with funds contributed by individuals or corporations. No Government funds are spent to furnish these rooms.

FOR LORETTA LYNN, country singer

Do you ever wear flashy clothes the way Dolly Parton does? —F. Thomas, Brewer, Maine

● I would never dress in a flashy style. I wear long dresses because I want to dress in a ladylike fashion. I feel comfortable in them, and, most important, my audiences like them.

FOR BEN CRENSHAW, pro golfer

Is golf played the same way all over the world? Which country has the best golfers? —E.A.L., Oceanside, Calif.

● Because of TV, the game is being played more and more worldwide, and similar teaching facilities are also making golf more into a single, universal sport. The U.S. still has the best golfers because the sport has grown more quickly here, and the prize money is more appealing. But in many other places — Japan and Australia, for example — golfers are coming into the American tour in growing numbers.

FOR JUDY BLUME, author of children's books

Will you ever write books for older teenagers involving love and sex? —A.K., Asbury, N.J.

● I already have. My novel, Forever, is an explicit love story about two high-school seniors. My daughter, Randy, and her friends wanted to read a love story in which, for a change, nobody dies. I agreed. I also thought it was important to present sex within a loving relationship. Katherine, the protagonist, has an affair with Michael, and at the end both experience pain. In this case, Michael is hurt most by the relationship. Whoever said boys aren't equally vulnerable?

FOR JAMES BEARD, gourmet and author

If you had to live on one meal a day for the rest of your life, what would you choose? —N.R., Eau Claire, Wis.

● Heaven only knows. I've never been a person for favorites, but I know there are certain things I would hate to go without the rest of my life: fresh oysters, chicken, squab, asparagus and all the fruits — papaya, fresh litchi, ripe peaches and crisp tart apples. I've almost made a menu, haven't I? But then I left out a million other things that I like — caviar, foie gras, hamburgers, frankfurters. . . .

PRO & CON

Should More Money Be Mandated For Solar Energy Research?

PRO Prof. Erich A. Farber, Director of the Solar Energy and Energy Conversion Lab, University of Florida

Through research we have to find better methods of converting solar energy, our largest and most permanent energy income, into the forms of energy that we use in our daily lives. This will free our fossil fuels (oil, coal, gas) for medicines, preservatives, pesticides, fertilizers and plastics, which are just as vital to our survival. We should, however, not wait for the perfect answer, but put to work the knowledge which we have now for the conversions which make economic sense — such as solar energy used for water-heating and cooling. We should utilize this nonpollutant source that belongs to all of us.

CON Hans. A. Bethe, Professor of Physics, Emeritus, Cornell U.

I do not believe the promise of solar energy is very great. Solar-energy utilization is not around the corner. To harness it for truly major energy production is exorbitantly expensive by any method now in sight — and will not become practical in this century, no matter how much we spend on research. However, solar-heating of water seems reasonable. For large-scale solar-energy power, it seems most promising to direct our efforts towards using the waste from farms, forests and cities. As one example, instead of discarding the stalks from wheat or corn, they could be fermented into substitutes for natural gas.

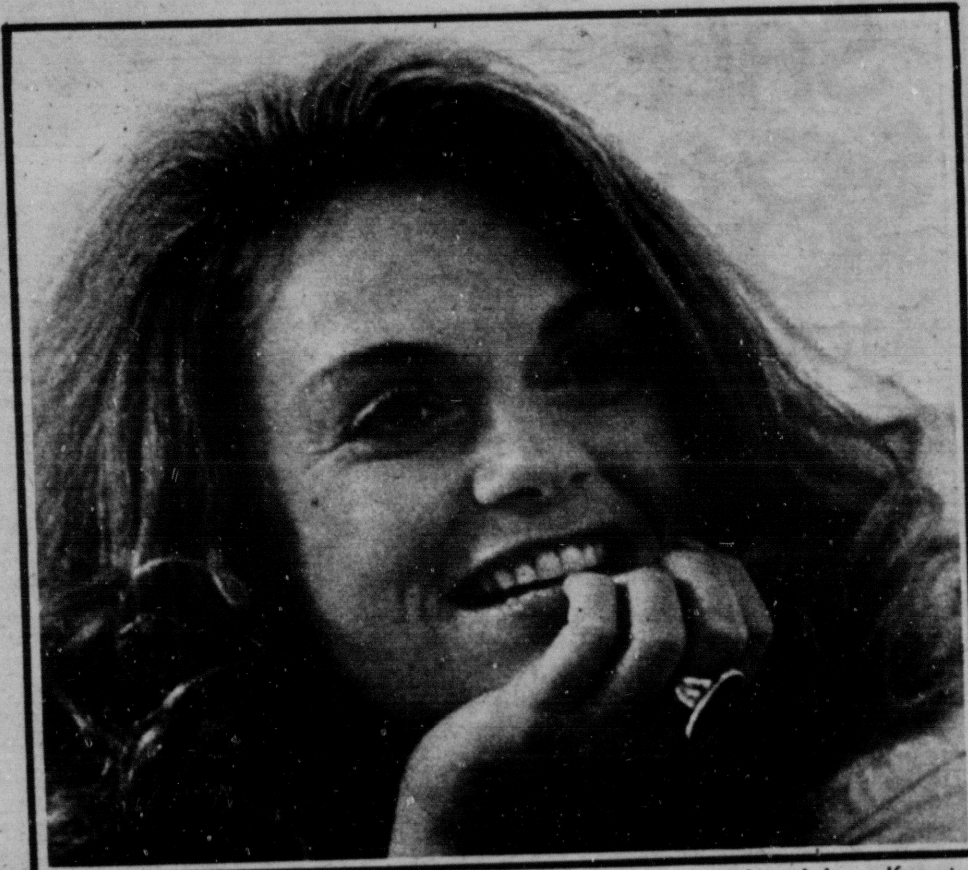
DYAN CANNON'S FIGHT FOR HAPPINESS

First there was the joy of marriage, then its loss and a plunge into anguish. Now she has discovered inner peace and new self-esteem.



Ken Regan / Camera 5

A relaxed Dyan Cannon today: she vows never to lose touch with herself again.

Pictorial Parade

Dyan with daughter Jennifer, who combines the best of Cary Grant and her mother.

By Alan Ebert

Dyan Cannon is a better actress than most know. For years, the public and press thought her to be as tough-and-together as her screen image. Only now does Dyan admit she was always "terrified, a little girl pretending to be all grown up. I was without any sense of security, any inner peace. There were days, weeks, when I had to fight to stay alive."

Yet, she seemed like the girl who had everything — Cinderella at the ball, meeting-and-marrying the prince. She came from Tacoma, Wash., to Hollywood to become a star. Her first 200 appearances in bits in teleplays did nothing but attract screen idol Cary Grant, who married her in 1965. A year later, their daughter, Jennifer, was born, and two years after that, the storybook marriage ended in bitterness and divorce.

In those days, because she seemed "tough," Dyan shrugged off disappointment. She did not allow herself to feel wretched or depressed because her marriage had failed. Instead, she fled into activity, appearing first in the road company of How To Succeed In Business and then, briefly, in a Broadway bomb, The 90 Day Mistress. When the show collapsed, Dyan didn't. She gambled on a peanuts-for-pay-or-no-play-at-all appearance in Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice. Her performance won the New York Film Critics Award for Best Supporting Actress, an Oscar nomination and stardom. Without pause to reflect, Dyan plunged into a series of sex-laden films ranging from Love Machine and Doctors' Wives to The Anderson Tapes and Such Good Friends. Only a few knew, that as her star was on the ascendant, Dyan was in a decline, sliding into a depression that found her trying experimental therapies and drugs.

"Then, I would have tried anything to ease the pain," she says. "Yes, I knew drugs were bad, but I was so desperate and self-destructive that I would listen to no one. My problem, in a nutshell, was not knowing and, therefore, not liking me. I had never learned who and what I was but had always been whatever was wanted of me. I accepted others' definitions of who Dyan Cannon was because I had never defined her for myself. I didn't think I was pretty. Worse, I didn't know if I was nice. So I ran to a lot of bad places and a lot of bad things."

That was then. Now, four years after she left therapy and a film career that brought her as much discomfort as it did fame, she says, "I couldn't play one more sex-obsessed woman without screaming." Now Dyan is in great shape. No longer does she look or act tough. There is a new softness. She is far prettier at 39 than she was at 29. Also, she is "higher" than ever, but not from either smokes or drinks. She has become a vegetarian who needs "no additives" because "for the first time, I've got a piece of the rock. I've got me."

Hers are not just words. Even her self-imposed exile from the screen four years ago at the height of her success took a rocklike courage. "I had to do it," she explains. "It was hurting me not to. I guess as my concept of me changed, I could no longer portray women I did not respect."

Dyan's life turned around on a morning she clearly remembers. "I awoke, began to once again feel that awful inner emptiness and heard myself yelling, 'Enough! Enough pain.' I forced myself to look in the mirror — something I had always avoided — to studiously study me. And suddenly, I was smiling, laughing, not at but with me. So I wasn't a perfect beauty. Big deal. But I saw something better. I saw the inner me. For the first time I recognized I am basically a good and kind person — nice. It made me cry."

It makes her cry even today. "Do you know how wonderful it is to feel comfortable within when you never have before?" she continues. "It is then you can begin to live your life. When I found me, I had to find another side of my work. I had to make another kind of statement, one that was positive."

When Hollywood didn't offer her that opportunity, Dyan made her own. Two years ago she enrolled in the American Film Institute and this year, her first product, Number One, a 47-minute short that she wrote, produced and directed, not only was nominated for an Academy Award but also was a winner at the San Francisco, Paris and Teheran film festivals.

Dyan is a bona fide success story. Even today, as she produces, writes and directs another 47 minutes of film to add to Number One so that it may be presented as a feature rather than as a short, she remembers all too well, but without sadness, the recent years of deprivation. It may surprise many to learn there were times when her local Malibu grocery would extend no further credit until past bills were paid. To get where she is today, Dyan went beyond broke and all the way to debt. But, she promises, "I'll pay every cent back." Now that she has been signed to a multipicture deal by Twentieth Century-Fox to direct, she undoubtedly will. In addition, she has been offered two Broadway musicals and, if time permits, she will kick up her heels in a musical version of Born Yesterday.

But no matter how frantic the professional activity becomes, Dyan vows never to lose touch with herself again. Each morning, as the sun rises, so does she. Donning a sweatsuit, she runs along the Malibu coastline for nearly an hour. That is followed by 90 minutes of meditation. In her bedroom and study, she writes poetry. Her time to herself is inviolable. The only person who might interrupt is daughter Jennifer. A beautiful child who combines the best of Grant and Cannon, she is Dyan's "best friend" as well as daughter. She is an amazing little person. Bright and witty, she will never have to fight, as her mama did, for self-respect. She already has that and is sure of who she is. But Jennifer has always known both her parents love her. Cary has been a wonderful father.

While Dyan once maintained she would never marry again, today she says, "Although I am not running toward a relationship, I'm not running from one. Actually, I think marriage is the ultimate experience. What is more beautiful than two people who have discovered their own uniqueness, and choosing to share it with another? I believe in marriage today because I think one's life can be that much richer when experienced with another.

"But I would not marry for security. I have that now. I have grown strong. In the discovery of self, in reaching into me and finding someone worthy of love, I found another kind of love, and peace. I found God who lives within us all."

Smiling — beaming actually, she adds: "He was there all the time, just waiting. Isn't it ironic that I found Him in the very last place I looked." FW

COOKING WITH APPLES

October is officially designated National Apple Month. Here are some delightful new ways to use them in your kitchen.

Tender slices of apples in a golden citrus syrup spooned over ice cream make a sweet ending to an autumn dinner.

By Marilyn Hansen

An Apple A Day

One medium apple contains about 70 to 80 calories, 18 grams carbohydrate, pectin and Vitamin C. Apples provide bulk in the diet for the proper functioning of the body's digestive and regulatory systems.

HOT APPLE SUNDAE

½ cup sugar
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 pt. vanilla ice cream
3 tart apples

1. In skillet, mix together sugar, orange juice, lemon juice and cinnamon. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves.

2. Bring to a boil; simmer 5 minutes. Add apples, peeled and sliced, and simmer, covered, 15 minutes longer. Serve over ice cream. Makes 4 servings

GERMAN APPLE PANCAKE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup milk
1 large apple, cored and sliced
½ cup butter, melted
¾ cup confectioners' sugar
1 lemon, cut into wedges

1. Preheat oven to 450°F. Place butter in 10-inch ovenproof skillet, quiche pan or pie pan; put in oven and melt.

2. Beat eggs well. Add salt, flour and milk; beat until smooth.

3. Place apple slices into melted butter in pan. Pour batter over all. Reduce heat to 350°F. and bake until crisp and brown.

4. Serve in wedges with butter, confectioners' sugar and lemon juice. Makes 4 servings

Editor's note: Grilled link sausage goes well with the dish.

APPLE 'N' CHEESE BREAD

1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1¼ cups whole wheat flour
¼ cup wheat germ
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ cups milk
1 egg
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup finely chopped apple

1. Grease and flour a 9- x 5- x 3-inch loaf pan. Preheat oven to 350°F.

2. In bowl, mix flours, wheat germ, baking powder, sugar and salt.

3. Beat together milk and egg; add to dry ingredients, blending well.

4. Stir in cheese, walnuts and apple. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake for about 1 hour and 15 minutes or until a cake tester poked in center comes out clean. Remove from pan and cool on rack. Makes 1 loaf

BIG APPLE CHEESE BALL

Assortment of red and golden Delicious apples
4 cups grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 pkg. (3 ozs.) cream cheese, softened
½ cup apple cider or juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon onion salt
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 teaspoons caraway seeds
Paprika
Cinnamon stick
Crackers

1. Chill apples. Combine cheeses, cider and seasonings. Beat until smooth.

2. Refrigerate 2 to 3 hours. Shape into a round, apple-shaped ball. Roll on side of cheese "apple" in paprika. Insert cinnamon stick for stem. Refrigerate until served.

3. Serve cheese apple as a spread with crackers and wedges of red and golden Delicious apples. Makes 3 cups spread

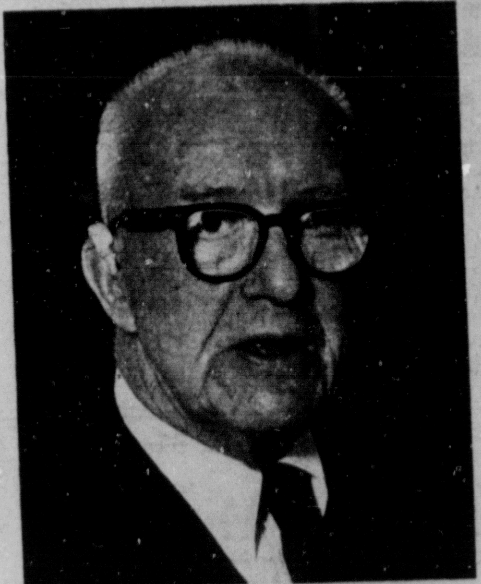
HOW TO TALK WITH YOUR PARENTS ABOUT RETIREMENT

The spectacular achievements of many who are past retirement age can serve as an inspiration to us all.

Composer Richard Rodgers.

Anthropologist Margaret Mead..



Architect Buckminster Fuller.

Adm. H. G. Rickover, USN.

Actress Lillian Gish.

By Ernest V. Heyn

If your parents or parents-in-law condescend to discuss things with you like, say, retirement, you might make a suggestion. It's based on an old Italian saying, "Dolce far niente," which means "It is pleasant to do nothing" — but you add to it. What you'd like to tell them about retirement is: It is pleasant to do nothing, as long as you have something to do.

There's much discussion these days about the wisdom of setting an arbitrary age for compulsory retirement. On the one hand, employers say that younger employees are discouraged if those reaching, say, 65, won't step down. On the other hand, there are countless examples of men and women over retirement age who have satisfactory or even spectacular records of achievement. A recent article in The New York Times cited 25 men and women, among them Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, 77, actress Lillian Gish, "over 65," composer Richard Rodgers, 75, anthropologist Margaret Mead, 76, jazz musician Count Basie, 73, choreographer Martha Graham, 83, singer Mabel Mercer, 77, architect Buckminster Fuller, 82, and countless others still active.

But our premise is that mandatory retirement is a fact of life, and you'd like to tell your parents your ideas about that "something to do." Which brings you to hobbies. A life-long hobby comes in mighty handy after retirement. People with green thumbs are the luckiest ones. If they've been tending a garden through the years, now there's more time to branch out from the regular maintenance chores and plan an improved landscape, replacing old worn-out plants, mapping out and planting new flower beds.

The man (or woman) with a workshop where wonderful things can be built for indoors and out is to be envied. Your retirees can get books and magazines with exciting plans — and perhaps invest in some new, long-desired tools; working people rarely have time to build all the useful and beautiful improvements they dream or read about. The time is ripe for a full program for the do-it-yourselfer.

I met a man recently who had taught school all his life, until that mandatory age limit caught up with him. His hobby had always been repairing and improving old furniture. Now it was paying off. He showed me what had been a dilapidated old wooden table he had rescued from a neighbor's attic and which he had rebuilt and refinished into a beautiful, shining work of art. He's done dozens like it — chairs and chests of drawers as well. He charges reasonable sums, keeping in mind that he can't earn more than $3,000 a year and still collect all of that tax-free social security. And he's really a busy man.

A friend of mine had a hobby of collecting old clocks. When he retired he opened a shop in his house and made a business of his skill and knowledge. And he's much happier than he was as an advertising salesman. Of course, there are those talented people who can paint or sculpt or play musical instruments but do not necessarily make a business of their talents. Their "something to do" is taken care of.

If your parents tend to be too sedentary, you could tell them: get out of the house and not be hypnotized by the "boob tube." (I like watching television but only as a diversion — not an occupation.) If it's just a long walk or a visit to the library (they've always wanted time to read) or paying a call on an old friend, anything is better than just sitting there. Betty Ford wasn't kidding when she told ex-President Jerry not to come home for lunch.

Speaking of walks, you might suggest they step up their exercise program. Unless there's a physical problem, calisthenics, walking or easy jogging is a great up-lifter. And the latest wrinkle is — skipping rope. Health expert Curtis Mitchell took it up in his seventies and has written a book about it, The Perfect Exercise (Simon and Schuster). The cardiovascular system (heart and lungs) cries for activity, and that isn't accomplished by just sitting around.

You might convince your parents that the years after retirement could be the very best ever. One of my good friends discovered, in retirement, the joys of an annual trip on a freighter. It's not as expensive as you might think to take a cruise on one. They'll meet others, and there are some colorful and stimulating ports of call. And if they're "into" camping, now's the time for that kind of travel without the nagging thoughts about what's happening back at the office or factory. Yes, suggest the joys of travel. They've earned them.

Tell them not to sacrifice their own opportunities because they're saving the money for you to inherit. I can't believe that any reader of this magazine would approve of that type of self-sacrifice. If you are able to support yourself and your family, tell your parents that retirement is their reward for all the help they've tried to give you thus far; not necessarily financial help, but their moral support and encouragement.

Above all, you might like to tell them this is their chance to make new friends, and to spend more time with old ones. Point out that the courage to try new things (a correspondence course, a charity that needs help, a community project?) isn't limited to the young. They could make your parents' lives more fulfilling.

Now we come to that forbidden subject (or is it?) — sex. Young people can't imagine those old fogies still enjoying the warmth and excitement of physical love. But many do — and you'd be surprised at what age.

The father of a friend of mine recently married his late wife's good friend — he's over 80, and they enjoy every minute of their busy life — in every way.

And there's that marvelous skier, horseback rider and adventurer — who's still young at 85 — who, earlier this year, spent his honeymoon touring the world. His name is Lowell Thomas.

Tell your parents their life can be great after retirement, if they truly have "something to do." Unless they are ill or financially pressed, they have years of relaxed and constructive living ahead of them. Now your parents have more time for their friends — and I might add — for you.

But they must realize that you, too, have a life to lead and that routine meetings on specific days of the week are frustrating and counterproductive. Your relationship with your parent or parents, after retirement, should be based on a real desire to be together, perhaps often, perhaps just occasionally. But that relationship should never be a burden or a bore, either for you — or for them.

Talk these things over with them. I think they'll understand and be grateful for your loving interest in their future.

The author is a former editor-in-chief of Family Weekly and later of Popular Science, where he reached the age of mandatory retirement. Now he writes books, two of which have been published by Doubleday: A Century of Wonders and Fire of Genius.

Real discovers the way to keep natural taste in. Artificial out.

The difference in low tar Real is 'nothing artificial added.' Real's flavor is natural. All natural.

All other major brands enhance their flavor artificially. Real does not. It doesn't need to. All that great taste and flavor in Real is natural.

That includes the menthol in Real Menthol, of course. It is fresh, natural. Not synthetic.

You get a rich, satisfying smoke. Taste you can feel. Full, natural taste. Discover the difference yourself.

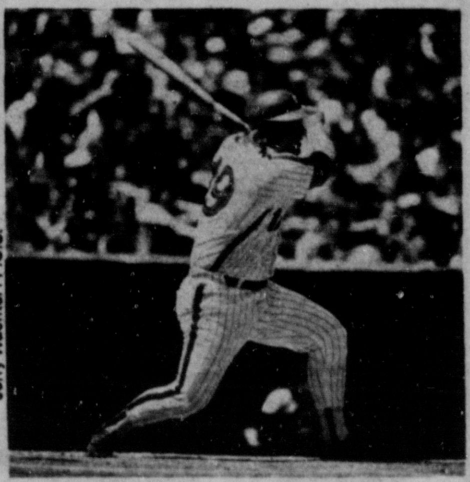
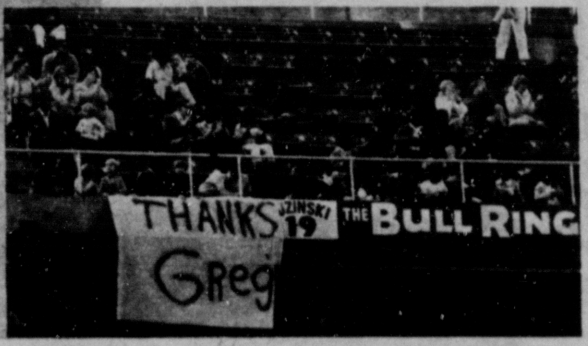
GREG LUZINSKI: A BIG-HEARTED HERO



Jerry Wachter / F.O.S.



This phenomenal slugger stands out: He's a special kind of superstar kids can look up to with their parents approval...he's loyal, modest, hard-working, family oriented...he's generous to the tune of $20,000 a year.

By Richard Berman

In this age of the "what's-in-it-for-me" professional athlete, Greg Luzinski, the left fielder for the Phillies, is indeed an authentic hero one can admire both as a man and as a player.

For instance, this year Luzinski quietly spent more than $20,000 of his own money to buy box seats to the Phillies games for underprivileged kids and has pledged to do the same for the next three years. "The fans have been super to me," he says, "and I want to do something for them. Many children have never had box seats, and I want to give some of them a chance to see how much fun it is to go to a ball game."

The kids had 126 seats on each of 36 home dates. The section is known as "The Bull Ring" (Luzinski is called "The Bull" because of his hulking 6′1″, 275-pound frame and tremendous strength) and is located in the left-field stands directly above Luzinski's outfield position. The Bull also gives each youngster an autographed picture and donates $100 to the favorite charity of any Phillies player hitting a homerun into the section.

Generosity is only the beginning of a list of qualities that make him a special superstar. He is one of baseball's gentlest and most tranquil men, and he is congenial toward everyone, even umpires ("If I respect them, they'll respect me.") and nagging sportswriters. Fellow Philadelphia slugger Mike Schmidt has said that Luzinski's temperament may be his greatest strength: "He'll never be a basket case about his hitting. He doesn't let himself get hyper, and he doesn't go into deep depression."

Phillies manager Danny Ozark also thinks his star left fielder's even temper is a valuable asset, particularly over a long and arduous season involving a tight pennant race: "In a crucial situation you never see perspiration flowing down his face. Nor do you see him relax. We can be five runs ahead, he's still the same. And he's the same in the clubhouse after a game, whether he has gone 0-for-4 or 4-for-4. He's very unemotional and determined, and that's a tough combination to beat."

Luzinski is also loyal to his team. When he recently signed a handsome contract with the Phillies (approximately $1.5 million over five years), Luzinski knew he could command much more as a free agent. But he says the Phillies have been a positive force in his life. "They've been friends, and that should count for something."

If "The Bull" sounds like a pussycat off the field, he is a veritable volcano in the batter's box. Luzinski is indeed a rare commodity — a consistent .300 hitter who also hits for power. (He has been averaging about 30 homeruns a year over the last three seasons.)

He hits to all fields, and his swing is quicker and more compact than that of most homerun hitters, who frequently swing for the fences and thus don't make contact as often. Luzinski is also exceptionally knowledgeable and disciplined when it comes to hitting. "If I made up my mind to go for long balls all the time, I'd wind up leaving too many men on base. Maybe if I played somewhere else with different kinds of guys in the supporting cast it'd be different, but here I'm better off as a spray hitter."

Teammate Schmidt is especially conscious of Luzinski's value to the Phillies -- and to his own career: "I wouldn't be where I am today, statistically, if I didn't have Greg hitting behind me. Let's face it, most pitchers would rather pitch to me than Greg. So I see a lot more fastballs when they get behind in the count."

Luzinski, 26, has already appeared in three consecutive All-Star games (for the last two he received more votes than any other National League outfielder), and his potential is staggering. In 1975 he was runner-up to Joe Morgan for the National League's Most Valuable Player, and he is given an excellent chance of winning it this season. His recent contract has made him even more determined to succeed. "I have something to prove," he was quoted as saying. "I have the feeling, because of all the money being thrown around, a lot of people are saying guys won't go out and play. When I signed my contract, that was number one in my mind — to prove to the people I'm worth every penny."

Luzinski has certainly captured the hearts of Philadelphians. The fans obviously appreciate his talent, generosity and loyalty, but other factors also have contributed to making him the town's most popular baseball player. With his flowing blond hair and smooth, fair skin, he perfectly fits our image of the clean-cut all-American sports hero. (His only blemish is a small divot over one of his blond eyebrows, which he got during the only childhood fight he recalls having.) He goes about his work without complaining or bragging. He's a favorite with his teammates. "Everybody likes Greg," says Schmidt, "because he's Polish, because he keeps things simple, because he's a family man who's made good."

Maturity also has a good deal to do with the respect Luzinski has gained from the fans and his peers. "He's always been mature," says Phillies shortstop Larry Bowa. "He got married real young. He had a family real young. He knew his responsibilities and met them."

In the clubhouse, "The Bull" is a leader without, as he says, "the rah-rah stuff." And, finally, perhaps the fans identify with a man who, like many of us, is not a great all-round athlete. In his early major-league days, Luzinski's bulky frame and awkward strides created a comedic effect in left field. But he worked tirelessly to overcome weaknesses in the field, as well as a serious knee injury, and now is at least an adequate fielder.

His lack of speed and agility in the field is the source of Luzinski's one sore spot with the Phillies. Sometimes in the late innings of a game Ozark removes him for defensive purposes. Luzinski hates to leave a game, and once, upon entering the dugout, his competitiveness got the better part of his reticence, causing him to hurl a batting helmet and some sharp words in Ozark's direction.

What accounts for his quiet determination and even temper? "It's just the way I was brought up," Luzinski says. His wife, Jean, whom he met at a high-school baseball game in his home town of Chicago, says her husband still can't believe he's a star. "He still cares about the $4 the fan paid to get into the game," she says. Referring to Greg's disposition, Jean confides that her husband would prefer to stay at home and play with their daughter, Kimberly, and son, Ryan, than face the throngs of admirers who seem to appear every time Jean and Greg go out in public.

Unlike some players, Luzinski's towering presence makes him instantly recognizable to Phillies fans. The Luzinski family lives in Medford, N.J., a Philadelphia suburb, and Jean says parents have even driven their kids up to the lawn to gape at the house. Luzinski reacts to all the fame with the same modesty and equilibrium that he reacts to everything else. He doesn't blow his top. He doesn't engage in public feuds with other players. And he doesn't attempt to make his salary a national concern. He is content doing what he seemingly always wanted to do — playing baseball.

In high school he began to play baseball as a freshman and never batted under .500 for four years. He also was a top football prospect in Illinois before being drafted by the Phillies in the first round of the 1968 draft. Since coming up from the minors in 1972, his batting average has climbed steadily, with this season being his best ever at the plate.

Although Luzinski seems to be an uncomplicated man, his actions could have deep meaning for professional sports. If teams, other than the very rich, are to survive, there must be players like Luzinski who are not ashamed to consider team loyalty along with salary. But, more important, we aging fans know baseball is really a kids' game. We remember how we idolized players like Joe DiMaggio, Stan Musial and Jackie Robinson. They set an example for us, and it was a good one. Are there enough players of such stature today? All sports need more people like The Bull from Philadelphia who combine talent and integrity.

THE NFL'S LEAST-UNDERSTOOD COACH

Mickey Palmer / F.O.S.

John Madden is brilliant and lives and sleeps football. Yet why, even after a Super Bowl Championship, do fans see him as only a puppet on a string for the Raiders' owner?

By Frank Cooney

It seems odd that an event as gaudy as a Super Bowl could bring anything into proper perspective. Although billed as a championship game, it has become the National Football League's annual Mardi Gras, a superfluous spectacle featuring not mere men, but stars, superstars and folk heroes.

Yet, last January in Pasadena, amidst the ballyhoo and buildup for Super Bowl XI, one of the most misunderstood men in American sport somehow managed to reveal his true personality. After toiling eight years in a shadow land of misconceptions, Oakland Raiders coach John Madden emerged in that bright limelight as, well, a real human being.

Not a humorless prison warden or a paranoid puppet or a bumbling truck driver. For years, these were typical lame attempts at quickie caricatures of the big, red-headed coach. Like much of the folklore surrounding the Oakland Raiders, it was fiction repeated until it was accepted as fact.

In those hectic days before Super Bowl XI, a dubious public realized otherwise. Garish and grueling press conferences became a daily entertainment hour as Madden melted even hard-core pessimists with his homespun yarns and easy, but poignánt, jokes. Humorless? This man was a closet comedian, complete with exaggerated facial expressions and hand gestures.

And on the practice field he was obviously the architect and general contractor for impressively organized workouts. This surprised those who thought managing general partner Al Davis, the Raiders' resident genius-owner, really ran the show. In fact, Davis never attended a practice all week. A paranoid puppet? No way. Here was one of the most self-confident football coaches in the NFL.

Then, finally, last January 9, he also proved he was the No. 1 coach. A resounding 32-14 victory over the Minnesota Vikings capped a season of unbelieveable adversity with the ultimate prize. He was absolutely the No. 1 coach of the No. 1 team.

To those who know him well, winning a Super Bowl was no surprise. It was inevitable. Ever since he was a hyperactive school kid in Daly City, a San Francisco suburb, all he ever wanted to be was a coach.

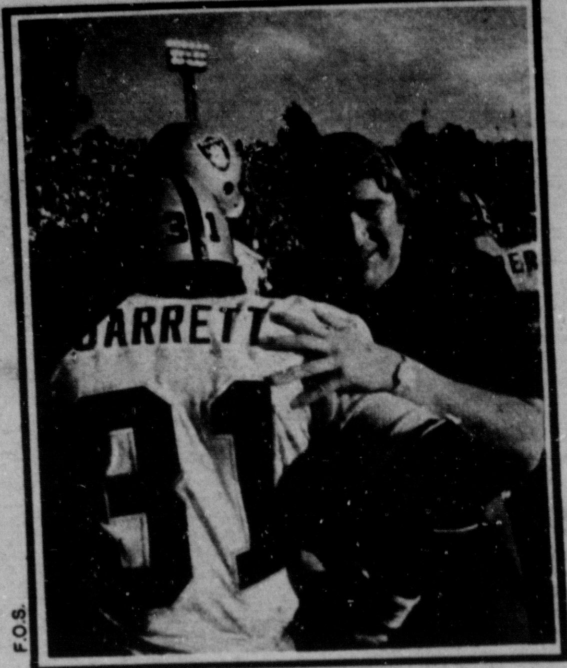
"Coaching isn't work; it's more than a job," says Madden. "Football is what I am. I didn't go into it to make a living or because I enjoy it. I am totally consumed by football, totally involved. I'm not into gardening, for instance, or any of the usual hobbies. I don't hunt, I don't fish, I don't camp. I'm into football, period."

His lone diversion is his family, and even that has been organized to fit in with his devotion to duty. During the season, he usually spends seven days and six nights a week on football.

"I have Friday nights at home," he says. "I'm usually so tired that I take a nap, then get up and go to bed early. My family knows and understands what this is all about. My wife, Virginia, is a very independent person. She teaches fifth grade, and she doesn't depend on me. During the off-season Virginia and I and our boys, Mike and Joey, do things together. But starting in July, my life is the Raiders."



F.O.S.

A Raiders' victory: team and coach are one.

And that brings up his more publicized relationship, his business marriage to Davis. Together they form the entire executive board that makes all important decisions about the Oakland Raiders. It is more of a friendly relationship than a business arrangement. Strong mutual respect, as well as their considerable knowledge, make it the most efficient executive board in pro sports.

"What I think about John as a person and as a coach," says Davis, "is that he is a very close friend and a freaking genius of a coach. He has been somewhat overlooked because of the type of organization we have, but it's just a matter of time before he is recognized as the greatest coach."

There are those who wonder why Madden does not aspire to loftier goals. Why doesn't he follow the current trend toward the head coach-general manager combination? He has been offered such a position by other teams but realizes they are not real promotions.

"The true measure of a man's position isn't his title, but how many people he must answer to," says Madden. "In my case there is only one, and he knows what this business is all about from all angles.

"Anyway, I am exactly what I always wanted to be — a coach. I don't think it is a good arrangement to be coach and general manager. First you sit down at a desk and hassle over a contract with a player and maybe don't come to an agreement. Then you are supposed to go out on the field and coach him. That's not for me."

Madden measures every move he makes, especially when it involves his players. Last year, when the Raiders lost several starters to injuries yet kept building toward the Super Bowl, the players heaped endless praise on him for holding everything together.

"He went through hell and made it seem like heaven," says defensive lineman Dave Rowe. "Most coaches would have been tight-jawed. They would have done a lot of screaming, especially during those tight games. People talk about how Vince Lombardi made winners by treating his players like dogs. John knows that won't work with today's more sophisticated, more affluent athletes.

"This team is well known for having a variety of unusual people. We have players here other teams rejected as being uncoachable. Yet John took the most diversified personalities in the league and made them work together.

"I know coaches who couldn't have handled this team for a week," continues Rowe, "yet he made it look easy. The problems we had would have sent most clubs to the outhouse, but we wound up in the penthouse. John Madden was obviously born as a coach and has improved his abilities every day of his life."

Why a State Farm agent may be your best life and health agent, too.

The first time Ron and Helen Steinmetz of Sikeston, Missouri, called on Cliff Morris, it was about life insurance.

They'd talked to some other agents and wanted to see what State Farm had to offer.

"We discussed our financial situation and our future plans with him," recalls Ron, "and Cliff came back with the program we felt would do the most for us."

"It was comfortable talking to him," says Helen. "I liked the way he explained things so clearly, and suggested we take all the time we needed to make our decision."

It was a sound decision.

As a State Farm agent, Cliff Morris has undergone extensive training in all phases of family insurance. He's backed not only by America's largest insurer of cars and homes, but one of the country's largest life companies, too.

Later Ron and Helen bought State Farm policies for their home and car. So now, if they have a question about any of their family insurance, or a claim, they just call Cliff.

If you want someone who offers the outstanding protection and personal service the Steinmetzes enjoy, just check the Yellow Pages and call the State Farm agent in your neighborhood.

MOVE OVER, DOROTHY HAMILL

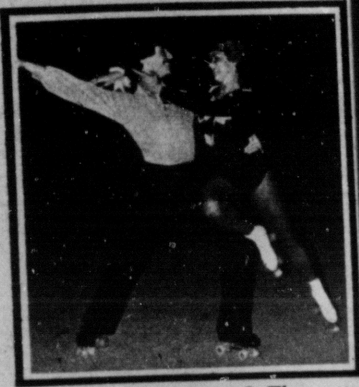
By Haru Roberts



Dynamic duo Dan & Fleurette

When 21-year-old Lex Kane finishes his eight-hour shift at a motor company plant in Sterling Heights, Mich., his real working day is just beginning. Lex gets into his car for the 100-mile drive to the rink in Toledo, Ohio, where he will practice his skating for 4 to 6 hours before returning home. "So what?" ask those familiar with the rigors of a figure-skater's life from watching the Olympics on television. Well, there is a difference — Lex is a roller skater.

The dedication it took to make Lex this year's national senior men's champion will come as no surprise to the country's 25,000 competitive roller skaters, but to most Americans roller-skating conjures up visions of roller derby Amazons rather than first cousins to Peggy Fleming.

Roller skaters will be getting long- awaited recognition of their sport when it is included for the first time in the 1979 Pan-American games. And with that recognition, they ask, can Olympic status be far behind?

Competitive roller-skating falls into three categories: hockey, speed and artistic. Within the artistic category, which is the most popular, is a variety of events. There's dance-skating, in which couples skate dances specially created for roller-skating, and pairs-skating, where couples do complementary freestyle skating. Individuals can compete in figure-skating and freestyle skating, in which the skater performs a routine that includes often breathtaking jumps and spins to music.

Currently, there is not the monetary incentive to become a champion roller skater there is in ice-skating, says senior international dance champion Fleurette Arseneault. "Dorothy Hamill wins the Olympics and she's doing all kinds of commercials. A roller skater wins the world title and there's nothing."

But the lack of any gold other than a World Medal at the end of the rainbow hasn't discouraged Fleurette and her partner, Dan Littel, who placed second in last year's World Championships and are favored to win this year. Each weekend 19-year-old Fleurette flys from Boston to New York to practice. Twenty-five-year-old Dan has only a short drive to the rink in Levittown, N.Y., but he has already moved cross country to train.

Most competitive skaters are introduced to the sport early — it seems to run in families. Lex Kane was taken to a rink at the age of five weeks by his parents, who had met at a roller-skating rink. An exception to the rule is a nationally known coach John Dayney, who had never been to a rink until he was 15. Dayney started his own skating dynasty. His son, Randy, is a former world champion, and his 18-year-old daughter, Robin, just took third place at the Nationals in Ladies Singles.

What do roller skaters get out of their sport? In addition to the fun, exercise and opportunity to socialize, many skaters would agree with John Dayney's pupil, 13-year-old Linda List: "Skating has taught me that if I want to do something I can."

Want to start your own skating family? Unless your children develop competitive gold fever it doesn't have to cost you much. Although some children start earlier, John Dayney says six is a good age to begin. Beginning skaters of any age should start at general sessions. To progress, the skater should try figure-skating in a class. Then he or she will need private lessons.

Skates can be rented, but if the skater is serious it's better to buy one's own. Growing feet can be accommodated by putting larger boots on the plates.

The Third Generation Monte Carlo. A new dimension in affordable luxury.

With immense pride, we present a trim and timely new edition of Chevrolet's popular personal luxury car: The Third Generation Monte Carlo.

Front and rear overhang have been reduced. The turning diameter is over two feet shorter than last year, giving the car added agility in cramped quarters.

The new interior is a virtual "Driver's Suite," with sumptuous cloths and carpets, tall windows, a totally new instrument panel, and special Monte Carlo "touches" throughout.

Surprisingly, there is more rear-seat leg room head room and hip room than last year. More trunk space, too.

There is a new standard powerplant, a 231 Cu In. V6. A 305 Cu. In. V8 is available. (Monte Carlo is equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your dealer for details.) The Third Generation Monte Carlo. Drive it soon.

Trim and contemporary in design, the new-size Malibu is just full of new ideas. About powerplants and personal pleasures. About interior room and exterior size. About ride and comfort and economy.

In short, it's a lot of good news.

Good news about V6 power.

The new-size Malibu was designed with V6 power and efficiency in mind.

In California, it is equipped with an available 231 Cu.·In. V6 and automatic transmission.

This V6 offers the smooth power you want, plus the efficiency that common sense now demands.

And it is good news. Because the new-size Malibu has impressive EPA mileage estimates as you can see from the accompanying box.

Of course, your mileage may vary depending on how you drive, where you drive, your car's condition, and its available equipment.

Good news about room and size.

The new-size Malibu takes up less space in the world than last year's mid-size Malibu. But, amazingly, the Coupe and Sedan give you more front and rear leg room; more front and rear head room. Also, more usable trunk space.

Good news about corrosion resistance.

Many of the anti-corrosion treatments developed for our best-selling New Chevrolet Caprice and Impala can be found on the new-size Malibu.

Including: Extensive use of galvanized steel. Extensive use of Zincrometal® panels. Extensive use of special coatings, primers and sealants.

And, in the long run, that has to be good news.

AT 18 SHE'S ALREADY A BIG SHOT

What's a nice 18-year-old girl doing in a pool hall? Winning five straight women's titles, that's what.

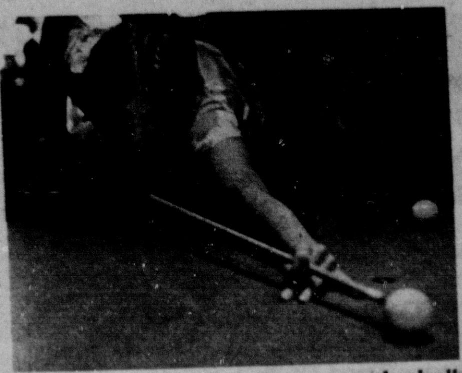
Pool-playing "hotshot" Jean Balukas.

By Pam Lambert

When an official at the U.S. Open Pocket Billiards Championship saw a 9-year-old girl taking shots on one of the tournament tables, he told her that spectators were not allowed to play. But, much to his surprise, the girl was actually a competitor. That was nine years ago, and today, with five U.S. Open women's titles behind her and a recently won world crown, no one is likely to mistake Jean Balukas for a spectator again. And after finishing second in the last two women's Superstars competition, in which she competed in several sports against top athletes on national television, Jean is as likely to be asked for her autograph at a Broadway musical as at a pool hall.

It doesn't seem too surprising that Jean became caught up in pool — her father owns a pool hall within walking distance of the family's home in Brooklyn. But when Al Balukas brought home a pool table 14 years ago for his four sons, he was still in the grocery business and was just doing a favor for a friend who didn't have room for the table.

Jean was only 4 at the time — in her words "just tall enough to see over the table," but she took to the game immediately. "My favorite expression then was, 'Daddy, play me a 50,' " she says.



Take a cue from Jean: eyes on the ball

Five years later Jean was ready to enter her first U.S. Open. She still remembers the letter tournament officials sent her cautioning that she wouldn't be allowed to stand on a box to play.

As Jean improved, she found it increasingly difficult to get games at her father's pool hall. "If I'd beat one of the guys, his friends would tease them about losing to me," she says. Now Jean comes to the hall only weeks before a tournament when she plays Johnny Goon, her father's day manager.

That Johnny can beat her illustrates the gap that currently exists in pool — as in other sports — between the top men and women competitors. "I'm supposedly the top woman player, but I'd have a tough time beating the number 50 man," says Jean. "If I was a boy and played pool, I'd be a nobody."

Jean thinks that women pool players still have a long way to go because pool has been a man's game for so long. "When they think of pool players, people have this image in their head of gambling and smoke," she says.

Jean, however, is far removed from the stereotype of a tough pool shark. With close-cropped hair and a dusting of freckles over high cheekbones, there's still something childlike about her. Maybe it's the lingering traces of her childhood shyness, the way her blue-gray eyes won't quite meet those of the person she's talking to until she breaks into a smile.

Although the sport is not lucrative enough for a career, Jean plans to continue playing pool as a sideline. "Why quit?" Jean asks. "It's not as though I'm practicing every day all year long."

For a career, Jean thinks she has a good shot at becoming a golf pro, but her secret love is tennis, which she has studied with fellow Lithuanian Vitas Gerulaitis Sr. She says a bit wistfully, "I wish I'd started tennis at four instead of pool."

Jean says that one of the highlights of her sports career was meeting her sports idols at ABC-TV's Superstars competition. With characteristic diffidence she says, "I really didn't think of myself as a superstar like the rest of them."

Jean won four of the seven events in which she competed in both 1976 and 1977. She was as surprised as anyone else at her performance, despite the fact that she was a New York City bowling champion and center for her high-school basketball team. Jean does not take full credit for her achievements, saying, "I think what I have in sports is a gift from God, and that's why I can get out there and do so well."

What does Jean think would have happened if her father hadn't brought them that pool table when she was 4? Without any hesitation she answers, "I probably would have gotten into some other sport."

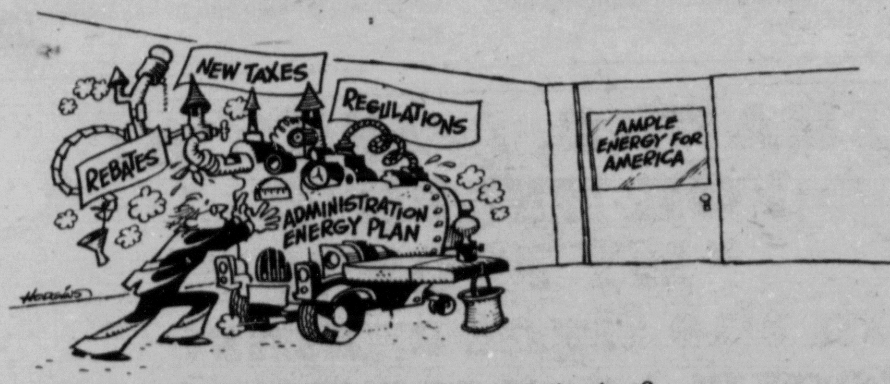
Observations

Telling it like it is. While we've been critical of the Administration's energy program, we have not been alone. Many newspaper editorials and television commentators have been bringing the program's shortcomings to the American people. Here are some comments from newspapers and TV:

DAILY NEWS "The weird concoction of taxes, rebates, regulations, and fuzzy objectives which President Carter packaged as an energy program has... [had] inexcusably sketchy examination. Americans can only hope that the misguided and fundamentally flawed proposals will be weighed and measured more. ...An effective energy policy should be directed at two principal goals—reducing drastically the nation's dependence on imported oil, and assuring certain, steady supplies of energy in amounts sufficient to sustain economic growth. In its present form, the President's plan fails dismally in both key areas."
New York, August 8, 1977

St. Louis Globe-Democrat "The government has proven beyond all doubt that it is totally incapable of supplanting the open market in regulating prices or in controlling supply and demand. Washington has manufactured the energy crisis. The sooner it gets out of the energy business, the sooner this federally created crisis can be ended."
June 11, 1977

The Topeka Daily Capital "This plan would do nothing to encourage exploration for oil. The tax would go to government—a part to pay bureaucrats, the rest to be rebated. It seems logical that government would do more to solve the energy problem if it decontrolled prices, levied no higher gasoline taxes and did what it could to encourage firms to find and produce more oil."
June 3, 1977



Clever, but will it fit through the door?

WDAU-TV "The President's program is long on conservation and short on expanding energy sources so that our economy can keep growing. It tells us—in effect—that we must lower our sights; that America's long period of economic expansion is over. That concept ought to be rejected."
Scranton, Pa. August 10, 1977

Richmond Times-Dispatch "...the basic weakness in Mr. Carter's energy plan ...is its inordinate emphasis on conservation. Very little was included in the plan to stimulate the production of energy....excessive conservation would seriously retard the nation's economic growth."
June 21, 1977

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS "...neither direct taxes at the gasoline pump, nor on oil at the wellhead, can produce incentives for one iota of additional energy. So the prime need ... is for a balanced program that offers incentives for both individual conservation and investment on the supply side."

THE MARTIAL ARTS HAVE ARRIVED

Do you know the difference between judo and aikido, jujitsu and karate? If you don't, finding out can be painful.

Judo champ Connie Kenison of Menlo Park, Cal., in action

By Jack Murray

Like a grass fire that lies unnoticed until fanned by a strong wind, the martial arts are spreading across America.

Although these various disciplines were introduced into the United States prior to World War II, it wasn't until the later 40's and early 50's that a significant number of practitioners could be found in this country. During the middle 50's, Curtis Le May, then chief of the Strategic Air Command, spearheaded an Air Force program in the martial arts that fostered their popularity among servicemen.

In 1964 judo was introduced into the Olympic Games, appropriately enough in Tokyo, and the United States had its first judo medalist, Jimmy Bregman, of Washington, D.C. For the most part, though, there was still only a small group of hardcore devotees who knew what was happening in the sport.

In the 70's ABC-TV televised a new series, Kung Fu, and thanks to some talented stunt men and some spectacular camera work, millions of young Americans became enthused and signed up for lessons in the various Oriental fighting arts.

Eventually, the public came to understand that the martial arts include several similar, although entirely separate, disciplines. The most common of these are:

Jujitsu. Perhaps the oldest of the martial arts. For many years skills were passed from one generation to another by the Japanese warrior or Samurai class. Later they were taught only to Japanese military personnel. Jujitsu emphasizes pressure on the joints, such as the elbow, wrist, fingers, and involves extremely rough self-defense techniques.

Judo. This originated in Tokyo with Professor Jigoro Kano, who wanted to give the Japanese a national sport and a means of self-conditioning. It is a form of wrestling based on jujitsu, but it is bad form to injure one's opponents.

Aikido. Another Japanese contribution. It is passive in nature and taught strictly as a self-defense skill. It incorporates many of the foot techniques of judo, along with some of the joint techniques of jujitsu.

Karate. Developed on Okinawa by monks who were forced, by their conquerors, to find a form of self-defense that did not employ weapons. Emphasis is on empty-handed striking and kicks. Within the past few years professional karate has been introduced in America. Like boxing, it is a full-contact sport, and the participants wear padded gloves and protective shoes.

One side effect of this sudden exposure of the various martial arts on television was an extremely large number of young adults who signed up for judo or karate classes for the purpose of self-defense. As the rate of street crime grew, so did the number of people donning traditional pajamalike costumes for once-a-week training. Unfortunately, most of them learned only that they had a lot of muscles that they hadn't used in a long time, and all of those muscles ached. The net result was that many of them dropped out long before they acquired any reasonable skill.

Yet by 1975, the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States estimated that at least 250,000 Americans, of all ages, were involved in some form of martial arts training. At least a third were women.

And late in 1978, the International Olympic Committee will decide whether to include women's judo in the Olympics. If the decision is affirmative, this rapidly growing sport should become even more popular. FW

Jack Murray, managing editor of American Judo Magazine, currently holds a third-degree black belt in judo.

The Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge presents its official tribute to America's fighting men.

THE AMERICAN MILITARY SCULPTURE COLLECTION

100 authentically detailed miniature pewter sculptures, honoring the courageous Americans of every service and every era—from the Revolution to the present day.

A limited edition collection, to be produced by The Franklin Mint.

Subscription deadline: October 20, 1977.

Limit: One set per subscriber.

Today, as we approach the 200th anniversary of our nation's first great military encampment at Valley Forge, it is time for Americans everywhere to recall the proud heritage of our men in uniform. A time to honor all the brave American fighting men who have served the cause of liberty—on land, on sea and in the air—from the time we began our struggle for independence right on to the present day.

To this purpose, the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge—a nonprofit organization dedicated to the perpetuation of traditional American values and ideals—is proud to announce that it will issue a remarkable series of miniature pewter figures—The American Military Sculpture Collection.

This will be the most comprehensive collection of military sculptures ever created to honor America's fighting men. It will portray Americans of every military service, in the uniforms they wore in every era of our history. And it is available to you now, for a very brief period of time.

A comprehensive collection

This unique collection will consist of 100 finely detailed and totally authentic miniature pewter sculptures. Each sculptured figure will portray an American fighting man in the uniform of his service at a specific period in our nation's history. And each will have its own distinctive character and personality.

Among those to be portrayed are:

The Colonial Private—a Virginia rifleman—who endured the terrible winter at Valley Forge in 1777 . . .

The Revolutionary Naval Captain, on the deck of his ship in full dress uniform . . .

An Army Corporal, wearing the short jacket and high collar that was regulation for our infantry soldiers during the Mexican War of 1846 . . .

A Confederate Private of the famed Louisiana Tiger regiment—and his counterpart in the Union Cavalry . . .

An Infantryman in the distinctive spiked helmet and full dress uniform of 1881 . . .

An Army Air Corps Captain—a World War I pilot—wearing the wings and medals he had so proudly earned . . .

An American doughboy of 1918, in leggings and full field pack . . .

A Coast Guard Seaman, coxswain of a landing craft for the 1944 Normandy invasion . . .

An Armored Division Private in the European theatre of 1944, with special tank helmet and holstered pistol . . .

An Air Force Captain, navigator for a giant B-52 of the Strategic Air Command in the late 1950s . . .

An Army Private, wearing the full field dress of the present-day Airborne Cavalry . . .

In all, one hundred pewter sculptures, honoring America's heroes of every rank and service—through two centuries of our nation's history.

Original works of art, authentic in every detail

Each individual figure will be an original work of art, created exclusively for this collection by Ron Hinote—recognized as one of America's leading sculptors of military miniatures. Hinote's work is widely admired for its detail and devotion to historical accuracy—qualities which distinguish this outstanding new collection.

The Infantryman of 1813, for example, will be depicted wearing a coat with long-cut sleeves. These coats were tailored long on purpose, because the material was known to shrink drastically.

The World War I Army Air Corps Captain will be portrayed in his dress uniform. And you will actually be able to see the medals he has won, including the Distinguished Service Cross—newly established by an act of Congress in 1918.

The full field pack of the American doughboy will be sculptured with painstaking detail to include entrenching tools, mess kit and other necessities of life at the front lines. The Marine bundled against the grim Korean winter of 1952 will be shown with his trusty M-1 rifle and a welcome cup of hot coffee. In every case, the uniform, the equipment—and the action—will be carefully authenticated and true to life.

To assure the highest quality, moreover, this historic new collection will be produced by the world-famous Franklin Mint. Each sculptured figure will be cast in fine American pewter. And each will be individually hand-finished and hand-polished, to bring out every fascinating detail of the sculpture and the full rich luster of the metal.

Issued in limited edition

The American Military Sculpture Collection will be issued in only one edition. This edition will be produced solely to order for individual subscribers, with an official limit of just one set per person.

After each subscriber has received his sculptures, the molds will be broken—so that this collection can never be issued again.

Convenient acquisition plan

The sculptures will be completed and issued to subscribers at the rate of one per month. The original issue price is $19.50 for each sculpture, and payment will be on a convenient monthly basis.

Each subscriber will also receive, without extra charge, a handsome five-tiered cabinet designed to display the complete collection on wall or tabletop. Crafted of rich cherry wood solids and veneers, and fitted with latching glass doors, this is a display you will be proud to have in your home—the ideal setting for this most impressive panorama of historic military sculptures.

In addition, each sculpture will be accompanied by an informative reference folder, describing in detail the significance and background of that figure, its uniform, and the equipment portrayed.

Subscription deadline: October 20, 1977

As an owner of The American Military Sculpture Collection, you will possess a work as unique as it is distinctive—the definitive tribut[illegible] to both the courage and the achievements of [illegible] American fighting man. But the deadline for entering your subscription is October 20, 1977. Any applications postmarked after that date cannot and will not be accepted.

Your subscription application should be mailed directly to The Franklin Mint. No payment is necessary at this time. But please remember: the Subscription Application at right must be postmarked by October 20, to be accepted.

WHEN YOU SHOULD SEE A CREDIT COUNSELOR

A growing number of Americans at all income levels are charging toward disaster and could need professional help to pull them out of overwhelming debt.

By Paula Dranov

Jack and Sandra were desperate. They dreaded the daily mail delivery and the ringing of the telephone. "I felt so helpless, so panicky," says Sandra of the realization that they simply couldn't pay off the $7,400 they owed on their car, a bank loan and their 12 credit cards.

"I knew we were getting in pretty deep," Jack recalls. "But before I lost my job, I figured we could handle it." Indeed, Jack and Sandra hadn't even added up their debts while he still was earning $14,500 as the manager of a small appliance store. Although he soon found a sales job, he had to take a big pay cut. "Now, I'm making only $9,500, and we just can't spend the way we used to. But it took us a while to realize that. Let's face it, until we get out of this mess, we can't spend anything at all."

Jack and Sandra aren't the only couple to find themselves in too much debt. About 5 percent of all Americans who use credit — and virtually all of us do — eventually face bills they can't pay. And with consumer installment credit rising every year — from $90 billion in 1965 to $196.16 billion today — the likelihood is that many more of us are going to find ourselves in the same fix.

For most of those in trouble today, overspending was easy. "It was the credit cards that did it," Jack says of his own predicament. "It never really seemed like spending — until the bills came in. And even then, at first, the payments seemed so low that we just kept using them."

The temptation to spend more than he could afford was everywhere, Jack complains. And it's true that today, flashing a credit card can get you anything from an original work of art to auto repairs and even taxi rides in some cities. What's more, obtaining credit and credit cards has become easier. Even young people without an established credit record can successfully apply for some charge cards as long as they've held a job for six months or so and earn about $8,000. For others, the more credit you've got, the more you can get as long as you're not delinquent in your payments.

Although most Americans use credit prudently — total installment debt is less than 15 percent of total personal income — a growing number are charging toward disaster. For many, credit cards are tickets to the good life.

Jean and Charles are much more affluent than Jack and Sandra — he earns $40,000 as a corporate executive — but they found themselves in the same kind of trouble — $25,000 worth. Ironically, other than their two cars, they didn't have much in the way of major purchases to show for all that debt.

Eventually, both couples concluded that they couldn't solve their problems alone and sought the help of credit counselors. Although this kind of counseling isn't new — the first such agency was established in Phoenix in 1958 — it has become increasingly available in recent years. There now are more than 200 such agencies throughout the country affiliated with the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, a nonprofit organization supported by contributions from banks, retail stores, consumer finance groups as well as labor, legal, credit-reporting and social-service agencies.

Essentially, a credit counselor helps clients evaluate their financial situations by reviewing their incomes and obligations. Consultations are free, but should a client want the counselor to arrange a debt-repayment scheme, there's a standard fee — except in hardship cases — of $10 per month.

Galo Cabrera, a New York counselor, says many of the people he sees don't know how much they owe before he adds up the amount for them. Often, a husband and wife will have credit cards about which the other doesn't even know. And often, clients are hopelessly naive about credit and debt management. "I even had one couple who wrote their bank saying they wouldn't make any more mortgage payments until some plumbing repairs were made," Cabrera reports. "They looked upon the bank as the landlord and figured that if that's where they were sending their money, the bank should fix the pipes!"

But worst of all, most people who come for help have no idea of cost of credit. Although aware that they're paying interest, they don't realize that on installment purchases it usually amounts to 18 percent per year and that on most bank loans it comes to 12 percent or more. Borrowing from a finance company can mean charges up to 18 to 22 percent per year.

Counseling agencies will never see one partner of a couple without the other — whether the two are married or living together. Frequently, counselors find, overspending can be traced to the anger of one partner toward the other — "revenge spending," they call it. "There's also an element of keeping up with the Joneses," says the National Foundation's Mary Quinn.

The debt-repayment plans counselors devise are designed to enable their clients to pay off what they owe without penalizing them so severely that they revert to their old habits in despair. But for many, the austerity imposed can be traumatic.

"He took away our credit cards," says Sandra. "We handed them over, and he cut them to shreds. Those cards had been our lifeline." "I was glad to see them go," Jack sighs. "I don't know if I could have resisted the temptation if we had just promised not to use them."

Their counselor helped Jack and Sandra arrive at a budget with which they could live. They agreed to shave their phone bills from an average of $25 per month to $15, to reduce the amount they spend on food by 25 percent and to curtail, until their debt is repaid, gift-giving, eating in restaurants and all but essential clothes purchases.

While credit counselors see an increasing number of clients at Jean's and Charles' income level, the National Foundation reports that the average client earns $15,000 a year and owes $6,000. In New York, Galo Cabrera's typical client is a couple in their mid-30's with two children, an annual income of $11,000 and debts of $7,800 spread among 8.8 creditors. This "typical" client spends $397 more per month than he or she earns.

Like all counseling clients, Jack and Sandra and Jean and Charles agreed to send their counselor a check each month to be used toward their debts. In both cases, the counselor was able to get an extension of the bank loans and to persuade most of the other creditors to give them more time to make payments. "Most creditors are glad to do it," says Cabrera.

In addition to agreeing to the repayment scheme, clients also must promise not to incur new debts until the old ones are paid. The National Foundation claims that 80 percent successfully complete their repayment plans. If a client defaults, the counselor notifies the creditors, who then can take legal action against the debtor.

How much installment debt is too much? The National Foundation figures you can safely owe up to 15 percent of your annual salary. That figure would include car payments but no money owed on home mortgages. When debt approaches 20 percent of annual income, "it's time to start taking a long look," says Mary Quinn.

There are some danger signals to alert you to a credit overload:

- Falling behind in rent or utility payments.
- Using more than 20 percent of take-home pay for installment payments.
- Reducing credit payments in order to meet the rent.
- Requesting a new loan before an old one is paid.
- Exchanging small debts for a big one via a consolidation loan.
- Using cash advances from credit-card issuers for daily expenses.
- Delving into savings accounts for daily expenses.

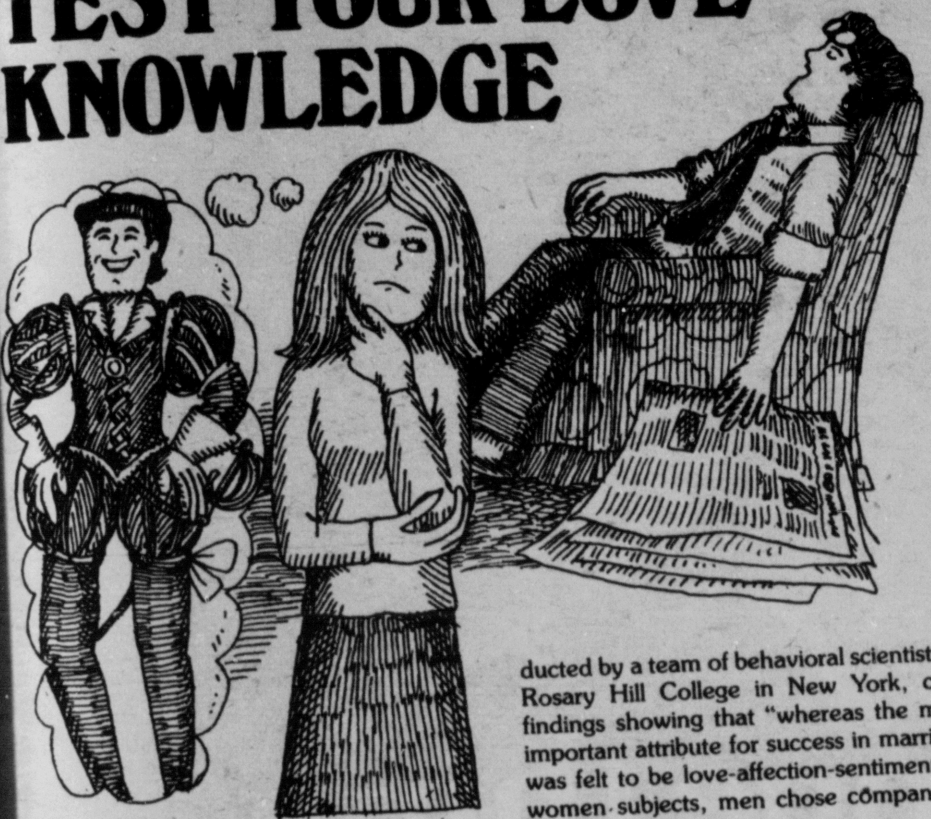
PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Does romance tend to disappear from marriage after the honeymoon? Do calculating women prefer gullible men?

TEST YOUR LOVE KNOWLEDGE



TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Romantic love — when couples idealize each other, minimize faults and see virtues larger than life — tends to fade gradually after the honeymoon.

2. Women consider love to be more important to marriage than men do.

3. When a love affair goes on the rocks, the man is more likely to terminate the relationship.

4. The more beautiful a woman is, the more likely men are to fall in love with her.

5. Love songs allow men to release emotions that are considered unmasculine in our culture.

6. Women who play a calculating game where romance is concerned are most attracted to men who are openhearted, trustful, "naive."

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies conducted by social psychologists at Johns Hopkins and Harvard investigated "the degree of idealized images in the marriage relationship." They found that romantic, pre-honeymoon images tend to persist after marriage, despite conflict and daily routine. Each spouse continues to see the other as responsible for good behavior, and circumstance or situation responsible for the bad. Seeing the best side of your partner may serve a benevolent function by acting as a buffer against irritations and minor conflicts and by maintaining the reinforcing value of continued support. The findings also strongly suggest that many marriages would not last as long as they do if love did not at least partly blind people to their spouses' faults and frailties.

2. True. A psychological study of men's and women's attitudes toward love, conducted by a team of behavioral scientists at Rosary Hill College in New York, cites findings showing that "whereas the most important attribute for success in marriage was felt to be love-affection-sentiment by women subjects, men chose companionship."

3. False. According to a National Science Foundation study of more than 100 dating and engaged couples, the desire to break up was seldom mutual. Women were more likely than men to perceive problems in the relationships and more likely to be the ones to precipitate the breakups.

4. False. In his treatise on falling in love, psychologist Vernon W. Grant reports findings showing that beauty and attractiveness are definitely not the same and that "even a high degree of beauty may have a low degree of attractiveness." A strikingly beautiful woman may have a cool, aloof or self-centered manner that minimizes her attractiveness. Conversely, a plainer female's pleasing personality may do more to make her attractive to the opposite sex than the facial features of a classic beauty. Surface features often play a smaller part in attraction than many people suppose, and romantic love, "especially when it leads to marriage, tends to stress much more vital traits of character and temperament."

5. True. In a study at the University of Northern Iowa, 200 of the most popular songs over a 14-year period were evaluated. In most of them men were pictured as emotional and submissive. Women, on the other hand, were depicted as active and aggressive in love relationships.

6. False. Psychological studies of romantic attraction at the University of Delaware, in which 144 male and female subjects were given personality tests, showed that calculating women found calculating men the most appealing. These women appeared to enjoy a relationship in which each partner sought to control or manipulate the other.

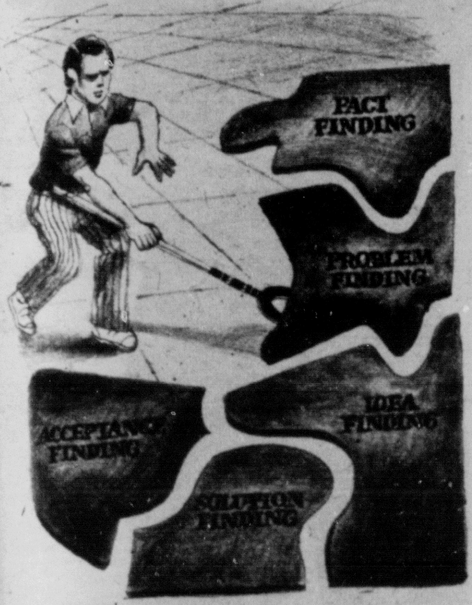
THE SECRET TO PROBLEM-SOLVING

After 25 years of research, five steps have emerged that will help you arrive at creative and original solutions to just about any predicament you may encounter.



By Edward Wakin

A group of factory supervisors were meeting to figure out how to keep plant workers from wasting time reading the newspapers used to wrap company products. The supervisors threw ideas around: use foreign-language newspapers, hire illiterate workers, blindfold them. The ideas began to sound silly, until a workable idea was triggered: hire blind workers.

That idea emerged because the supervisors kept the door open so ideas could enter freely. They were being creative by solving a problem with an original and usable idea. They demonstrated what Prof. Sidney Parnes calls creative problem-solving, a skill anyone can learn.

Experts like Parnes have taken the mystery and the magic out of creativity and brought it within reach of everyone. They have shown that it is noncreative and less effective to jump at the first solution that comes to mind, but creative and far more effective to increase the flow of ideas. Nobel Prize winner Linus Pauling has put it simply: "The best way to have a good idea is to have lots of ideas."

The past 25 years of research have led to clear directions for being creative with good ideas. The emphasis is not on the gifted few, but on the giftedness in everyone. Professor Parnes directs undergraduate and graduate studies in creativity at New York's State University at Buffalo. He and his colleagues also advise companies, organizations and schools and have trained thousands of people in creative problem-solving (CPS).

CPS involves five specific steps. Breaking a problem into parts increases the chance for solutions; the more ideas the better; postponing judgment keeps ideas flowing. The latter principle — deferred judgment — was made famous in the brainstorming techniques of the celebrated adman Alex F. Osborn, whose work is the basis of CPS. The five steps work every time.

The process begins with a mess, anything about which you want to do something. Write down what is bugging you. Keep adding to the list for as long as the spirit moves you. Then zero in on a topic that you want to work on and proceed to the five steps, remembering two points: each step leads to the next one, and during each step start with a free flow of ideas before passing judgment on them.

1) FACT-FINDING: Write down whatever you know about the mess you've chosen. Add your opinions and feelings. Make a note of what you don't know and figure out where to get answers.

2) PROBLEM-FINDING: Try to make specific statements about your problem after looking over your fact sheet. Begin statements with "How to. . . ." or "In what ways might I. . . ." Figure out what your goal is in solving the problem. Why do you want to solve it? Change the key words in your problem statements. Review your problem sheet and pick one problem statement that stands out.

3) IDEA-FINDING: After writing the statement you have chosen, put down possible solutions. That is only the beginning because the first ideas are not likely to be original. Put down whatever ideas you think of, no matter how silly they seem. Play with the ideas; rearrange them. When you feel you have gone all over the lot, review your idea sheet and make a selection of six or eight ideas.

4) SOLUTION-FINDING: Now comes a free-wheeling search for the criteria to be used in judging possible solutions. Consider issues of time, money, legal requirements, skills needed. Why did the possible solutions appeal to you in the first place? Your answers will lead to other criteria. Now come two all-important decisions: select the criteria you are going to use in picking a solution, then use them to pick that solution.

5) ACCEPTANCE-FINDING: With no mental restrictions, think of the ways in which the solution can be implemented. Who can help and how can that help be obtained? What do you have to do? When? Where? How can the solution be modified so that it will be acceptable to you and to others? After a final review, select the best ways to put your solution into action. Draw up a timetable and act upon it immediately.

When Parnes talks of results from CPS, he has no patience with words like "miraculous." "What we are really attempting to do," he says, "is to help unshackle the brain so it can perform its process of idea-production."

VITAL NOTICE:

Before starting this program, consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, or thyroid disease should use only as directed by a physician. As a matter of fact, we urge you to show this entire program to your own family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this Lifetime Road To Slimness including the few minutes of nightly toneup the doctor highly recommends is by far one of the most medically sound, fully sensible approaches to the problem of obesity.
*ALSO NOTE: People who dislike coffee or tea may use "FULL-STOP" slim cubes in clear bouillon for the same LIFETIME SLIMNESS results.

TURNS A CUPFUL OF COFFEE (or tea) INTO HOURS OF "LIQUID WILLPOWER"

(completely flavorless — affects only your appetite — not your taste.)

Most significant of all, as long as you follow this medically proven "Coffee-Off" lifetime slimness program, you actually become totally immune to fat build-up for the rest of your life — even if you've been hopelessly overweight for all your adult life.

NOW A LIFETIME OF SLIMNESS WITHOUT A MOMENT OF GNAWING HUNGER!

How can medical science make this lifetime dream come true? It's simple. Because one of America's leading weight-loss specialists has finally found a way to take ordinary coffee or tea . . . and convert it into a wondrous new kind of fat-fighting aid that SHUTS OFF EVEN A RUNAWAY APPETITE, ON COMMAND! Yes, medical science has finally found a way to take ordinary coffee or tea and actually force hunger to STOP on the spot . . . make excess pounds and inches disappear from sight so fast . . . that in just 10 days time you will simply refuse to believe your bathroom scale— and in just a matter of weeks you may actually need a brand new wardrobe!

BEST OF ALL — NO CRAVING, NO SLIDE-BACK — YOU STAY SLIM FOR GOOD ON THIS LIFETIME SLIMNESS PROGRAM!

The secret is a medically-proven formula, (that to the eye looks just like an ordinary sugar-cube) . . . BUT, when activated in coffee or tea . . . enters your system and automatically SHUTS OFF YOUR APPETITE — SHUTS OFF THAT DRIVING URGE FOR FOOD — SHUTS OFF GNAWING HUNGER for hours at a time! Actually kills your desire, your craving, your appetite for food from meal to meal! So much so in fact, you aren't lured or tempted by even the most mouth-watering food. Not by ice-cream . . . not by cake . . . not even by the most luscious steak. In a nutshell . . .

YOU'RE SIMPLY TURNED OFF FOOD FOR HOURS AT A TIME

The name of this doctor's wondrous "Coffee-Off" way to Lifetime Slimness is "FULL-STOP", because that's just what this medically-proven slim-cube formula does — brings gnawing, runaway appetite to a dead FULL STOP right in its tracks! Yes, according to medical experts just one "FULL-STOP" slim-cube in a cup of coffee or tea turns off your appetite INSTANTLY as if it suddenly went to sleep. You simply have no desire to eat for hours on end . . . even if all your life you've been cursed with a non-stop appetite. In fact, so effective is this "willpower-in-a-cube" you may actually have to consciously remind yourself to eat — which the doctor insists on — in order to prevent TOO MUCH WEIGHT-LOSS, TOO FAST!

Now, just think what this great new development means, if all your life you've had to battle your appetite and struggle with your willpower!

Doctor's "LIQUID-WILLPOWER" DEVELOPMENT Ends Torturous Diet!

It means that instead of battling those mealtime pangs of hunger . . . fighting that maddening urge for food . . . you simply reach for a "FULL STOP" slim-cube instead of fattening food and "sip your appetite to sleep" with this doctor's amazing 3-cups-a-day "Coffee-Off" way to AUTOMATIC WEIGHT-LOSS. Because just like water turns off thirst, incredible "FULL-STOP" slim-cubes switch off hunger AUTOMATICALLY all day long! Down goes your appetite— down go the calories — and down goes your weight . . . with a rush!

LIFETIME CONTROL OF YOUR APPETITE FINALLY YOURS — MEANING YOU ARE NOW JUST DAYS AWAY FROM YOUR FIRST STEP TO LIFETIME SLIMNESS!

So if you want to SIP YOURSELF SLIM with this doctor's amazing coffee development . . . if you want to melt away pounds and inches STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY . . . if you want to try this exciting medically-proven concept that combines both a doctor's scientific development and his full-satisfaction eating program that makes lifetime immunity to fat not a hope but a living reality . . . then take advantage of the no-risk offer described below! Yes, act now, on guarantee of full satisfaction or money refunded in full (except postage & handling). Simply return within 10 days.

Remember — this is the last ad for a reducing product you will ever need to read in your life. If you drink coffee . . . or if you drink tea . . . then there is simply not a reason in the world to ever again be embarrassed by a single pound of overweight fat. So why not take the FINAL STEP and get rid of all those excess pounds and inches FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE. Act now!

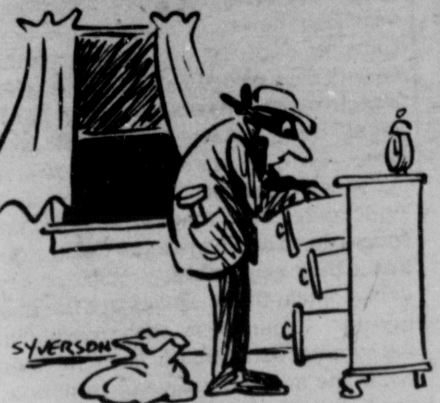
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY



ROBBING HOODS

If burglars ever should break in,
I hope they'll take that diamond pin,
Not knowing that what seems to pass
For precious gem is only glass.
I also hope they will not scorn
My wife's mink stole, no longer worn,
And add to that our TV set
That needs a picture tube, I'll bet.
But mainly let them take, with mirth,
At least a hundred dollars' worth,
Since our insurance doesn't pay
A cent beneath that, anyway.

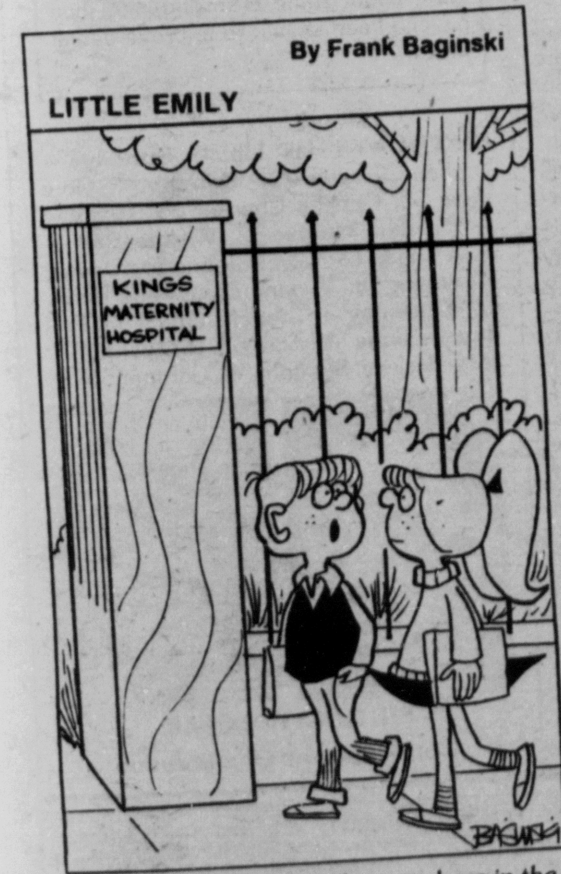
Post Pone

If the cost of first-class mail goes up any higher, the phone company could have a new theme song: "Let Me Call You Sweetheart, I Can't Afford to Write." But in all fairness, 16¢ isn't really a bad price to send a letter from New York to Los Angeles. It's only one cent a day.
—Robert Orben



"Mom says she picked me up here in the middle of the night."

Waisting Away

Though our food is the same in Relation to calories,
It's now much more effective
In burning up salaries.

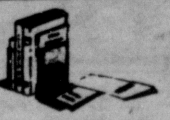
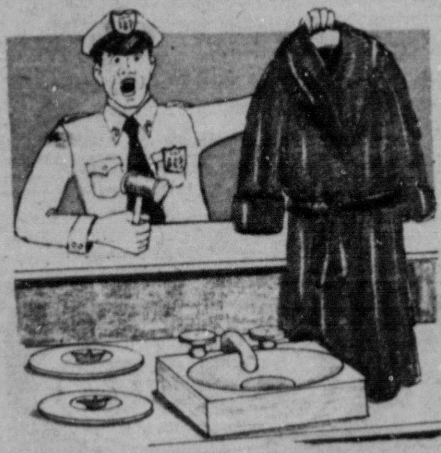
WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Booklets For You And Your Family

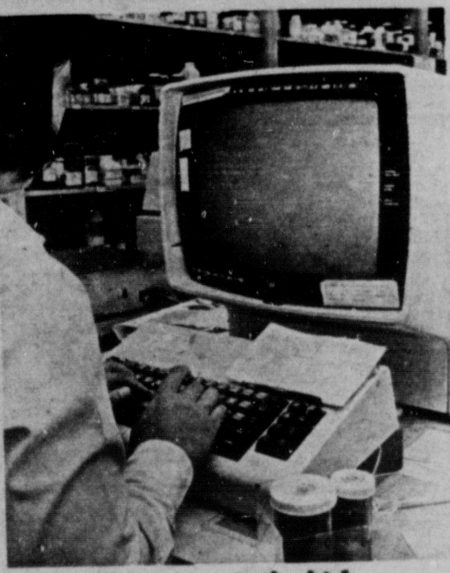


Everyone wants the meals they serve their family to be nutritious as well as delicious, but it's often hard to separate food facts from fads. To help you get the most from your food dollar, the Government has prepared some inexpensive booklets on nutrition and diet. To order any of them, write: Official Business, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009. Request the booklet by title and number, and allow 4 to 6 weeks for delivery. Fats in Food and Diet (030E. 35¢): Saturated and unsaturated fat content of common foods; includes a cholesterol-content chart and discusses the effects of dietary fat on health. Food and Your Weight (031E. 50¢): Suggestions for losing, gaining and maintaining weight; plans for nutritious diets; lists calories per portion of common foods. Nutrition: Food at Work for You (679E. Free): Functions and sources of major nutrients; how to estimate your daily food needs; tips on buying and storing food. Read the Label, Set a Better Table (638E. Free): How to use nutrition labels to save money and to serve balanced meals. Myths about Vitamins (549E. Free): Discusses claims made about various vitamins; includes a chart of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances and a list of the best vitamin sources.



A Real Steal

Want to buy merchandise at prices that are a real steal? You may have to look no farther than your local police department. Most auction off recovered but unclaimed property at least once a year, and the prices are often unbelievably low — such as a regulation-size pool table for $20 or a bicycle for $5. Bert Sloane, communications coordinator with the Beverly Hills (Calif.) Police Dept., says his department has auctioned off everything from a full-length mink coat to a set of Cadillac hubcaps. Another California police department auctioned off a kitchen sink. Less exotic items, such as kitchen appliances, lawn mowers and musical instruments, are also available, and the merchandise is sold "as is," with proceeds usually going into the city's general fund. To find out about auctions in your area, call your police department's public-information officer or watch local papers for announcements.



Pharmacist's Aide

Having Big Brother watch out for you can be a good thing when the Big Brother happens to be the IBM computer located at the Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center. The computer is used by the 5 county-owned pharmacies to print prescription labels, and when it receives the patient's file number, it automatically compares the newly prescribed drug with others the patient may be taking to make sure he will not react adversely. If there's a potential problem, the computer prints a warning so that the pharmacist can check with the patient's doctor. The computer also has a lot of friends among the county's many Spanish-speaking patients — it prints bilingual labels.

Adapting Recipes for Crockery Cooking

You can cook your family's old favorites in the handy new crock pots — but only if you make a few adjustments. Some adaptations endorsed by our food editor:

- Brown fatty cuts of meat and fowl or trim off the fat before putting them into the crock pot. Excess fat raises the temperature in the cooker, causing overcooking.
- Use only half the usual amount of liquids, such as tomato sauce, water and bouillon — they won't boil away in slow-cookers.
- To keep frozen vegetables and seafood from losing color and texture, thaw them before adding to the crock pot during last half-hour of cooking time.
- Root vegetables such as carrots and potatoes take longer to cook than meat, so slice them thinly, and put them in the cooker first.
- Milk, cream cheese and sour cream break down during long cooking, so either add them at the end of cooking time or substitute undiluted condensed cream soups that can cook all day.

Seedy Dealings

Whether you're a homeowner planning a new lawn, a farmer thinking about seed for next year's crops or a home gardener who will pore over seed catalogues this winter, there's a law to protect you if you get poor or mislabeled seed. Although you're likely to get a refund if you return the seed to the store, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture wants you to know that you can take other action. To protect yourself, save the package, your receipt and some of the seed. Then, if the seed fails to perform as advertised, get in touch with the company — mistakes can happen. If the company doesn't respond satisfactorily to your complaint, notify your state department of agriculture. To facilitate investigation of your complaint, in your letter be sure to include the package, the seed you saved and your receipt.

Protecting Girls From Sports Injuries

With women's sports as likely to be soccer as softball these days, many parents are concerned about possible injuries. But before you start biting your nails when your daughter comes home and announces she's going out for basketball, listen to Dr. Allan J. Ryan, editor-in-chief of The Physician and Sportsmedicine magazine. He says that women are no more likely than men to be injured in contact sports — with the right precautions. The first step in preventing injuries is to make sure that your daughter wears the equipment (shin guards, knee pads, etc.) recommended for the particular sport. Training in the correct movement by the coach is also important. But the most crucial step, says Ryan, should take place long before the athlete gets suited up — proper conditioning. It should include exercises to stretch muscles, general calisthenics, running and, for some sports, special workouts with weights to build up strength and to prevent muscles from tiring quickly. And it's an old wives' tale that strenuous training will make women bulky — just look at Olga Korbut.

Quick Takes

Although the set's on, many viewers apparently tune out when they watch television news. A study by a State Univ. of N.Y. at Buffalo researcher reports that people contacted after watching the evening news could recall only 1.2 out of 10 news stories....The winner of the salad sweepstakes is the tomato. The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture says that tomatoes are found in more home gardens than any other vegetable — 95% of gardens contain them. Beans are the runner-up....Youngsters who roasted in the summer sun may not like what they see in the mirror a few years from now. Studies show that 4 out of 5 young people have sun-damaged skin and that the amount of damage increases steadily with age and exposure — even without actual sunburn....As if pro football players didn't have enough injuries to worry about, now there's "turf toe." The Florida podiatrist who named the condition, a swollen and painful great toe joint that reduces a player's effectiveness, says that turf toe is caused by switching between natural and artificial playing fields....What do today's teenagers want to be when they grow up? The answers may surprise you. Although 72% of the teenagers surveyed in a Gallup poll said that going to college was important to them, the top career choice of teenage boys was skilled worker (carpenter, plumber, electrician), and secretary was the No. 1 job choice of teenage girls. An apple a day won't necessarily keep the dentist away says the British Medical Journal. Seems the apple's reputation as "nature's toothbrush" has been a bit inflated. The journal says apples may bring about some cleansing, but they haven't been shown to improve dental health.

handy—when you preview the new Britannica 3.

For over two hundred years, the old idea of the encyclopaedia remained the same. But now, to meet the demands of our changing world with its vast amounts of information . . . now, there is Britannica 3. This is a new, completely redesigned encyclopaedia. It is written in clear, readable language . . . the language of today . . . so that even the most complex subjects become much easier for your children to understand.

What makes Britannica 3 unique? New Britannica 3 is more than an encyclopaedia. It's a revolutionary new home learning center . . . America's only encyclopaedia arranged into three distinct parts.

1. The 10-Volume Ready Reference lets you get at facts, quickly and easily. Ideal for homework.

2. The 19-Volume Knowledge-in-Depth for readers who want to explore entire fields of learning.

3. The One-Volume Outline of Knowledge—your guide to the entire encyclopaedia . . . permits you to plan your own course of study on any subject under the sun.

Britannica 3 covers more subjects more completely. It is more responsive to today's needs of your family. And when you judge by its 43 million words, Britannica 3 delivers more value per dollar than any other accepted reference work. So if you want more up-to-date facts about more subjects than you'll find in any other single source, you want the new Britannica 3.
